CHRIS MARKE

Chris claims to be amazed by the games playing ability of the loyal XS crew. Now, if only he can muster a bit more sincerity, perhaps they'll believe him. Always fond of a good footballing cliche, his current favourite's "Frankly I'm as sick as the proverbial parrot!" Everyone else just smiles and shakes their heads sadly...

JASON McEACHRAN

Despite his inflated wages Jason's Scottish ancestry comes to the fore in any discussion concerning money, just ask his other half after she introduced his car to a wall. His motto's "If you've got it flaunt it!', after being mistaken for a member of Duran Duran by some groupies camping outside his B & B, after a recent concert in Bournemouth.

RICHARD FORSYTH

"Drink all night, drink all day," is Richard's motto. The eternal student lives a life of drunken debauchery, punctuated by bouts of cold turkey sweating over the Dinobasher cart. What else? Oh yeah, Richard's other motto is "If it's in a bottle I'll drink it," which could explain the loss of the small sample bottle Neil filled for his Doctor!

MARK PILKINGTON

Our resident whippersnappers mapping speed is legendary, unfortunately so is his tendency to lose the maps once he's completed them! Mark's motto's "Find me a girlie and I'll go out with her." His current preference is for feisty foreign girls and he dreams of being swept off his feet before his eighteenth birthday. Bless him!

NEIL ARMSTRONG

Suffering from mystery ailments, Neil's battled bravely to do his bit for this issue in between regular check-ups. Being a big, tough-talking Geordie, Neil scorns mottos in favour of the short, yet sweet, statement "I've already done that!" One more thing — if you ever meet Neil ask him what he likes to do when impersonating James Brown!

GAME

Many thanks to Chris and Neil at GAME in Bournemouth, for all the games this issue. They're top geezers, guv, so make sure you buy loads of games from them. For more information about your local GAME store, call 081 974 1555.

MIX IT WITH MEGA!

We all know SEGA XS readers are the best games players in the world, but, until now, you've never had the chance to prove it. Well worry no more! A new club's coming to a venue near you soon, giving you the chance to prove your games playing superiority. For the low down on all the forthcoming action read on...

The chance has arisen to play John Madden, NHL Hockey, FIFA Soccer and many more games in serious competition. The Mega Sports Club's all about setting up leagues and knockout cups.

National and local competitions will be held throughout the country in 1994, with prize money and trophies for all winners. There's local clubs in most towns and cities, with matches being played from approx. 7-10.30 PM weekdays and some weekends. Nationals will be over a full weekend and take place at hotel venues. For details, check out the Mega Sports Club's Ad in this issue or Tel 051 424 0659.

SEGA XS

EDITORIAL

Times they are a changing. This issue of SEGA XS has seen some radical alterations in personnel. To be frank, the saloon doors of change have been swinging hard recently. So hard in fact that it's been pretty damn tough keeping track of all the comings and goings!

Thankfully, the smoke's now well and truly settled. Yes, the SEGA XS team's been reborn; ever ready to do battle with even the most frustrating of carts. This is a team of dedicated gamers, each born with a silver joy pad clutched in their sweaty palms!

No monster's too tough, no platform's too high and no cart's too tricky for these intrepid young blades. They're quite prepared to work through the night (they've no choice really!) to bring you the biggest and the best in Sega solutions.

To prove their dedication the team have kicked off this issue with a tremendous exclusive. We bring you the definitive guide to the latest adventures of Sega's biggest megastar —the one, the only Sonic The Hedgehog! Yep, we've produced the complete solution to Sonic 3 — not bad eh?

It's the biggest solution ever produced in SEGA XS and probably in any other magazine. Sonic 3 covers 41 pulsating pages. Every level mapped, every problem solved and every enemy eliminated.

If you compare our in-depth Sonic 3 solution, and the cost of SEGA XS, with the standard of the many poor quality solution books coming out at outrageous prices, it's clear our readers got a bit of a bargain.

I think you guys know the value for money we're offering, so why not let everyone know SEGA XS has the only Sonic 3 solution worth getting — you know it makes sense!

Who's who?

As you may have guessed the SEGA XS crew's had a bit of a facelift. Fond farewells go to former head boy Damian Butt, designer Andy McDermott, his able assistant Carolyn Ratcliffe and staffer Jon Eves. All off to pastures new and we wish them well.

Two of the old hands remain. Well, we couldn't get rid of them and they had no where else to go. Mark Pilkington's still the youngest member of the team, but a brilliant solution solver (thanks for the fiver Mark!) and all round good egg nonetheless. Richard Forsyth completes the remnants of the old guard. Allegedly, he's been known to spend his nights in the company of not one but two innocent, young women. As yet, he's the soul of discretion! Enquiring minds need to know Richard.

Finally, these are the new boys — full of fresh ideas and evangelical fervour. First up is my good self; Chris Marke, the new editor, bravely taking on a task that seems to get ever bigger and more daunting.

Let's just say compiling a solutions based magazine like SEGA XS is one of the toughest jobs in the industry. Remember, these are complete solutions to even the trickiest of games. There's no short cuts or half-measures in SEGA XS. All the games are played right to the bitter end, with the emphasis on finding hidden extras you guys may have missed. We know you wouldn't accept anything less from us.

After that brief aside, here's a mention for our other new, bright young things— Jason McEachran's the new designer, brought to SEGA XS at great expense. The only problem's the expense is all his, or so he keeps telling us. Don't worry Jason, it's important to find somewhere nice to live, even if it does set you back your first year's wages!

Our other precious acquisition comes in the big, bad form of a certain Neil Armstrong. Sharp-eyed readers among you may have noticed Neil's name in the last issue. Credited as a contributor then, he arrived just too late to receive the recognition he believes he deserves!

Simply the best

Whatever else happens I guarantee some things will never change. We intend to maintain the high standards of quality, integrity and presentation that you, our loyal readers, expect from Britain's only complete Sega player's guide. Heck, let's not hide our light under a bushel, we intend to make SEGA XS bigger and better than ever!

It's not going to be easy, but even the best can be improved. Our comprehensive solutions, including all the latest cheats, passwords and codes, will always be second to none. We'll continue to back this up with the most in-depth reviews you'll find in any Sega magazine.

Instead of printing reviews of unfinished games, we concentrate on the facts. We're bringing you our opinions on a selection of games released in the past two months. They may have already been reviewed in other magazines, but, unlike others, our reviewers complete every game they play. This means you get the best assessment of the cart possible.

We believe you can see through the trendy percentage gimmicks used by other magazines, often hiding a lack of depth in their reviews. We cut out the bull, giving it to you straight.

Every game is treated fairly, it's up to you to decide whether to accept the reviewers opinions or not. Our trusty reviewers pledge to check out every nook and cranny a game throws at them, the rest's up to you.

There's going to be plenty of surprises in store in '94. SEGA XS is always evolving and always changing. We all hope you'll come along for the ride. Expect great things, you won't be disappointed!

There's going to be no rest for the wicked and certainly not for the XS crew. It's a dirty job but someone's got to do it!

Until next time.

SONIC 3

Sonic has made yet another triumphant, high-profile return to the Mega Drive and, as always, we're here to bring you the exclusive solution. No one believed that a complete solution to Sonic 3 could be fitted into one issue of SEGA XS, but we've silenced the doubters with this fabulous 40 page extravaganza! The trials and tribulations of the Floating Island have been smashed. No more will the epic adventures of Sonic and his trusty sidekick Tails spread frustration among SEGA XS readers. All the fiendish tricks of Dr Robotnik and his unwitting ally Knuckles have been solved. It's all laid out for you over the next 40 pages of glorious Technicolour!

ANGEL ISLAND

Welcome to the wonderful world of Sonic 3. This, the first level, is little more than a taster for the tough tasks ahead. Prepare to face stages so immense they seem to never end, a whole new set of evil Badniks, and more perilous platforms than you can shake a stick at!

As all Sonic-fanatics know, collect 100 rings and an extra life is yours! A good incentive to grab every ring going.

Bloomin" hell, it's the Bloominator! Remember, if you get hit by this, or any, Badnik, try and grab some rings back as they cascade across the screen.

SPECIAL STAGE

To get to this giant golden ring, and the special stage, spin-blast through the rock located to the right.

Level 1-1

In these early stages the onus is on you to collect as many extra lives as possible. It makes sense to accumulate some reserves before the later stages — after all nobody could claim these early stages are difficult!
The main problem here's avoiding the flaming pits caused by a typical piece of Robotnik skulduggery. Who else but Sonic's arch-nemesis would set fire to the Rain Forests? He's obviously not heard of global warming. Anyway, enough politics, just keep running and give the old meanie a good kicking at the end of the stage!

Don't run into these bumpers as they send you flying back the way you came! More often than not, this will be into the path of an awaiting Badnik.

Grab onto the death-slide's handle and zoom down the rope, collecting loads of precious rings as you go.

Level 1-2

SPECIAL ZONE

Use the spring located at the bottom of this room to catapult Sonic into the Special Stage.

The going may be hot, but this is one hedgehog who's too cool to trot. Jump over this ditch and into the heart of the burning forest. Sonic's pace is always an asset in any sticky situation.

1-UP

This is the first extra life in Sonic 3. Throughout the game there are plenty to collect and you need them!

1-UP

WAY-HEY! Run at full pelt into this loop the loop and witness one of the most famous moves in video-gaming history! It's also a must to collect 100 rings

Restart points like this one come in useful if you die, so always activate them as Sonic flies by.

Spikes are an occupational hazard for Sonic, so gauge your leaps before jumping them. This saves you from the heart-breaking sight of all your rings going to waste.

Push aside the rock located on the top of this grass platform and jump onto the ledge underneath. Fall down and grab some pretty nifty power-ups. Go Sonic, go!

More rings to collect here, so what are you waiting for?

Get ready to dice with death and take on this nasty-looking device. A well timed jump's vital, otherwise it's curtains.

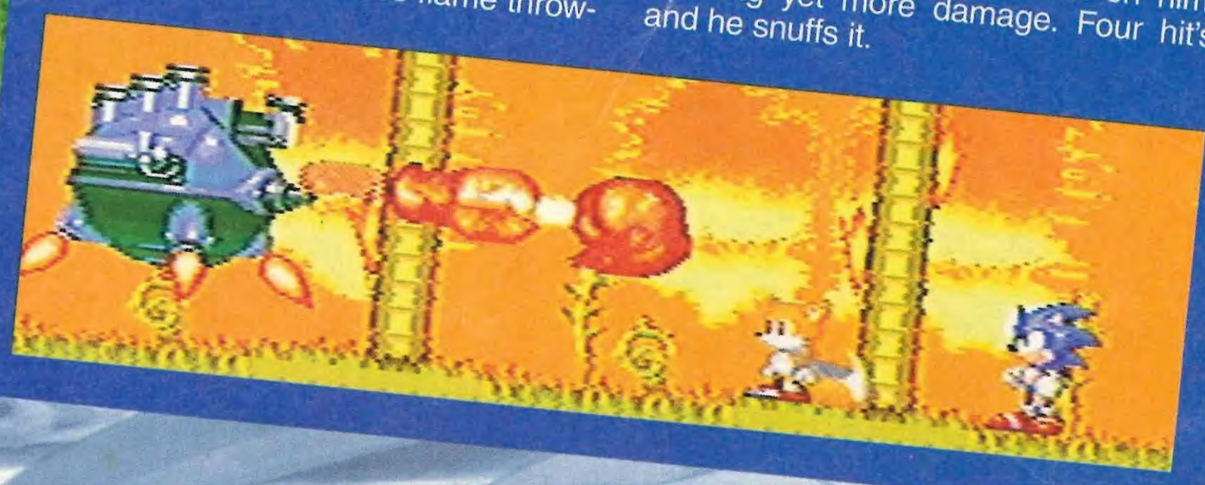

These rock-platforms disappear at timed intervals and can be a bit of a pain to contend with. However, perseverance always pays in the end. That, and a bit of good old-fashioned timing.

FLAME SHIELD

Jump over the Bloominator and grab this brilliant Flame Shield. It's enough to set Tails on fire!

The first of Robotnik's mega-guardians is the cause of the forest fire! This arsonist needs to be taught a good lesson and Sonic's just the man to do it! The robot hovers above Sonic, trying to get you into the path of it's flame thrower. You need to avoid this, but at the same time jump onto the one vulnerable part of the robot: his head. After you hit him, try to land back on him, inflicting yet more damage. Four hit's and he snuffs it.

This level brings Sonic into contact with some really long tunnels. Prepare for the time of your life as Sonic hurtles along at breathtaking speeds, accumulating a huge pile of golden rings as he goes. Not bad work if you can get it!
Collect every ring on offer at this stage. Much like the power-ups, they're a lot easier to get at than on the later levels. So this is the best time to go for the magic 100 rings, which guarantees Sonic an extra life. It's also the chance to be 50 rings in credit, allowing you to activate a Starpost. Now enter the all-new Bonus Zone and grab goodies galore!

Level 2-1

SUPER RING

Well, ring-a-ding-a-dong! It's time for a lovely bonus of ten rings methinks... And why not?

FLAME SHIELD

Jump over some lethal-looking spikes and then skill-fully grab this handy-dandy flame shield.

This platform will continually rise and fall, so jump onto it when it reaches it's zenith.

After dealing with Mr. Catakiller, you can then charge down this platform collecting the rings as you go.

A hidden bouncy-bumper will, er, "bounce" you onto the platform above here.

The evil essence of Dr Robotnik has penetrated deep into the core of the Angel Island. This is your big chance to finally release the First Act from it's mortal torment and move on to bigger and better things.
Hydrocity looms, all you have to do is find Robotnik's guardian and destroy it's rotten soul. Pretty damn easy, eh? Well maybe it is at this stage, but don't get too cocky. As our massive maps show when you read on, Angel Island's merely the tip of the proverbial iceberg. You've been warned!

Level 2-2

LIGHTNING SHIELD

After you have activated this little gem, you will be able to do double-jumps! You're invincible! You're brilliant! You're Sonic!

1-UP 1-UP

One extra life could be yours if you can reach this television box. Just beware of the sharp spikes!

LIGHTNING SHIELD

As Sonic's such a sparky fellow, he'd no doubt appreciate you grabbing this for him.

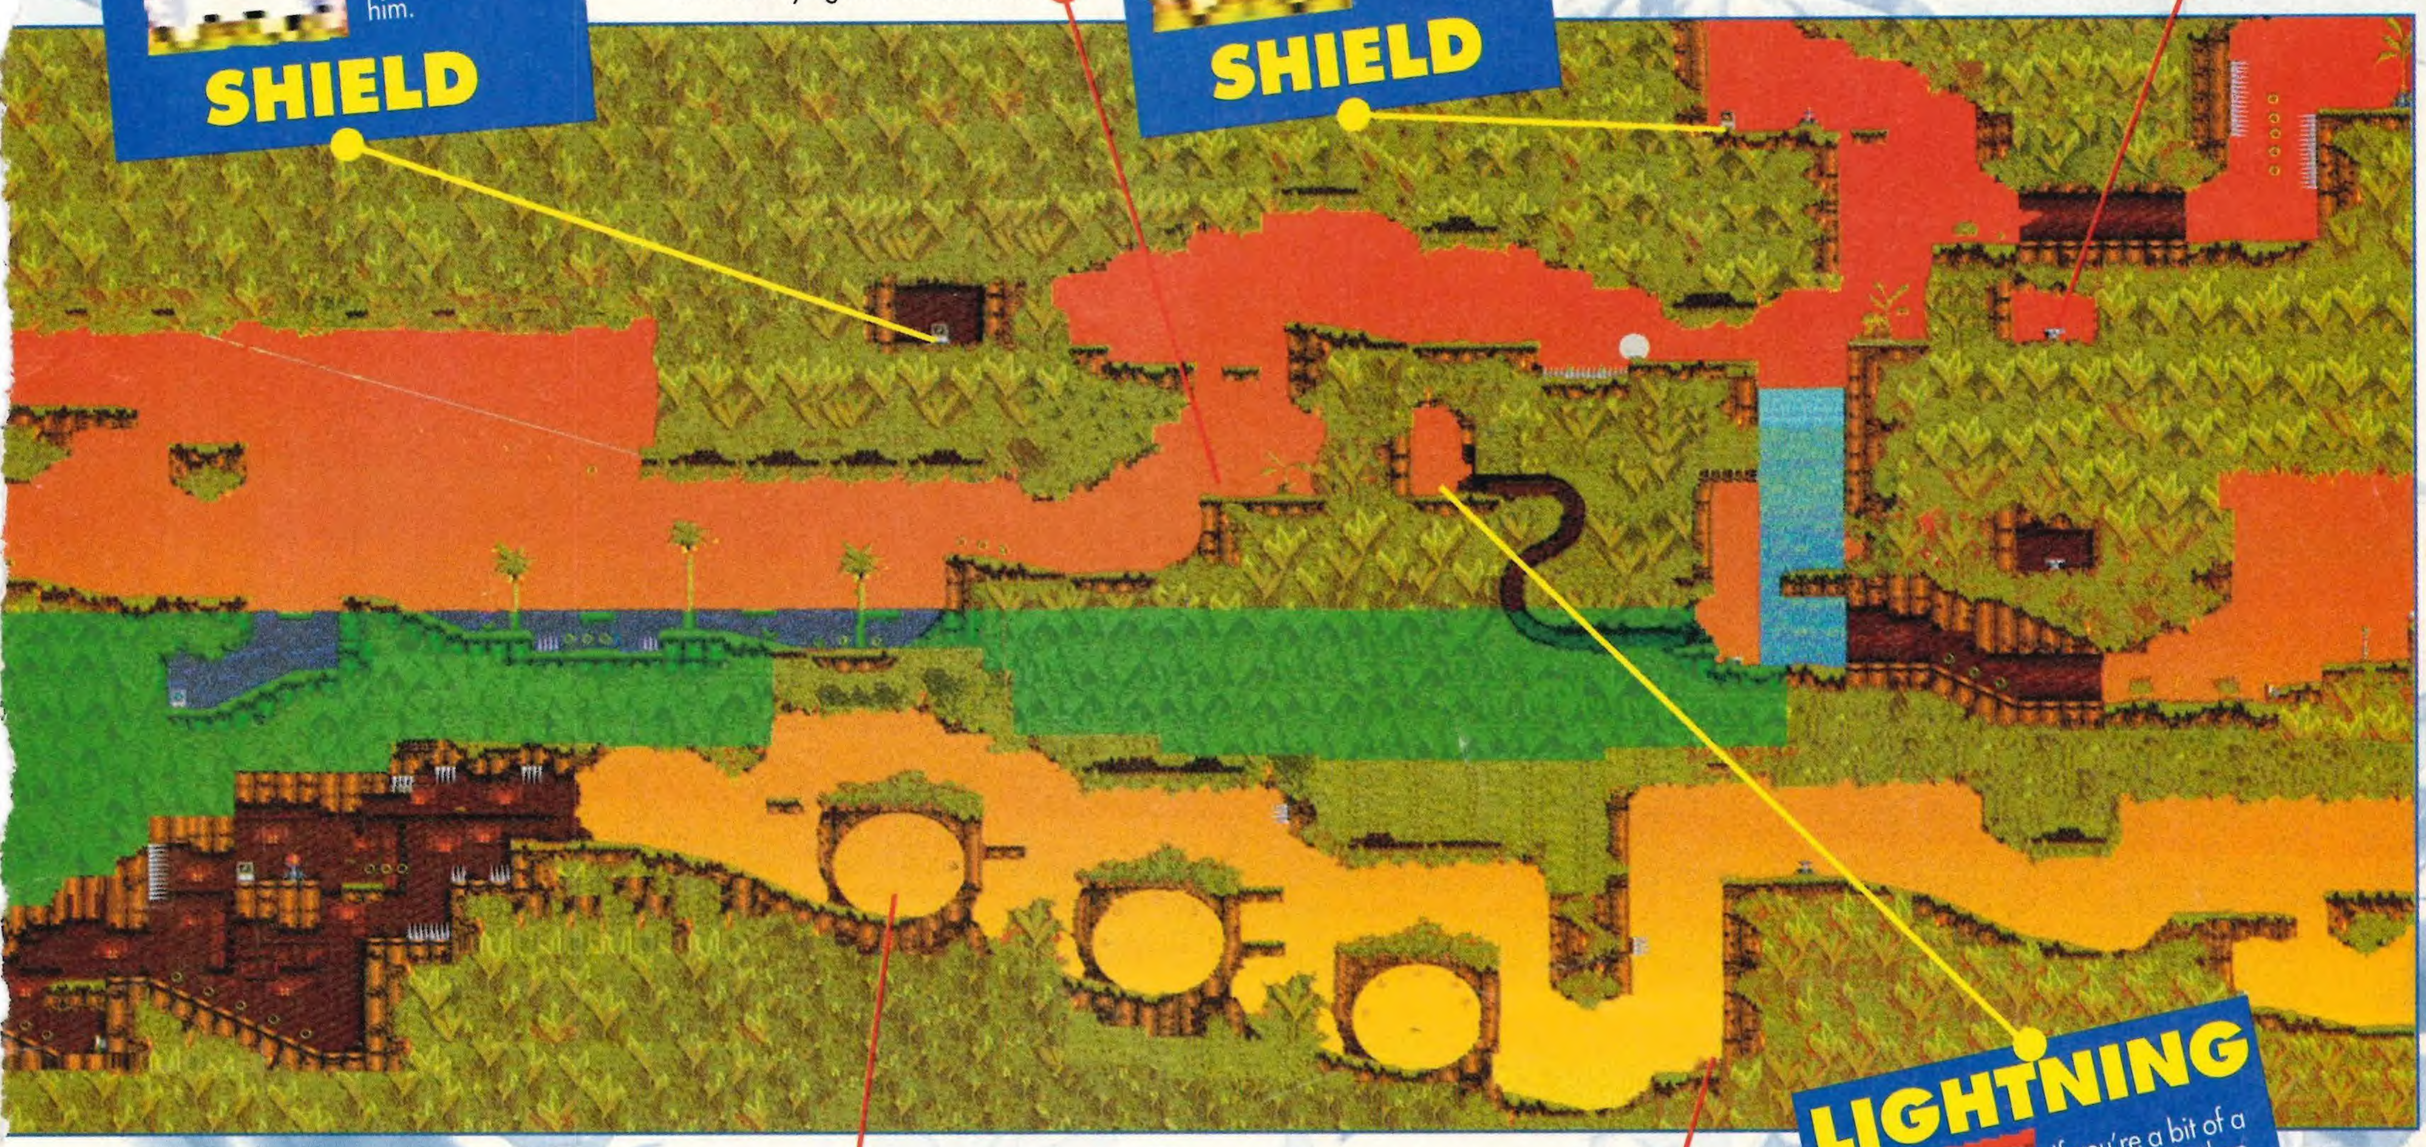

FLAME SHIELD

OK, let's turn up the heat on this thing, baby! Collect this power-up and become a living fireball!

Blast through the wall and zoom down this sliding tunnel. Can anyone see any light at the end of it?

Walk through the wall and jump onto this switch.

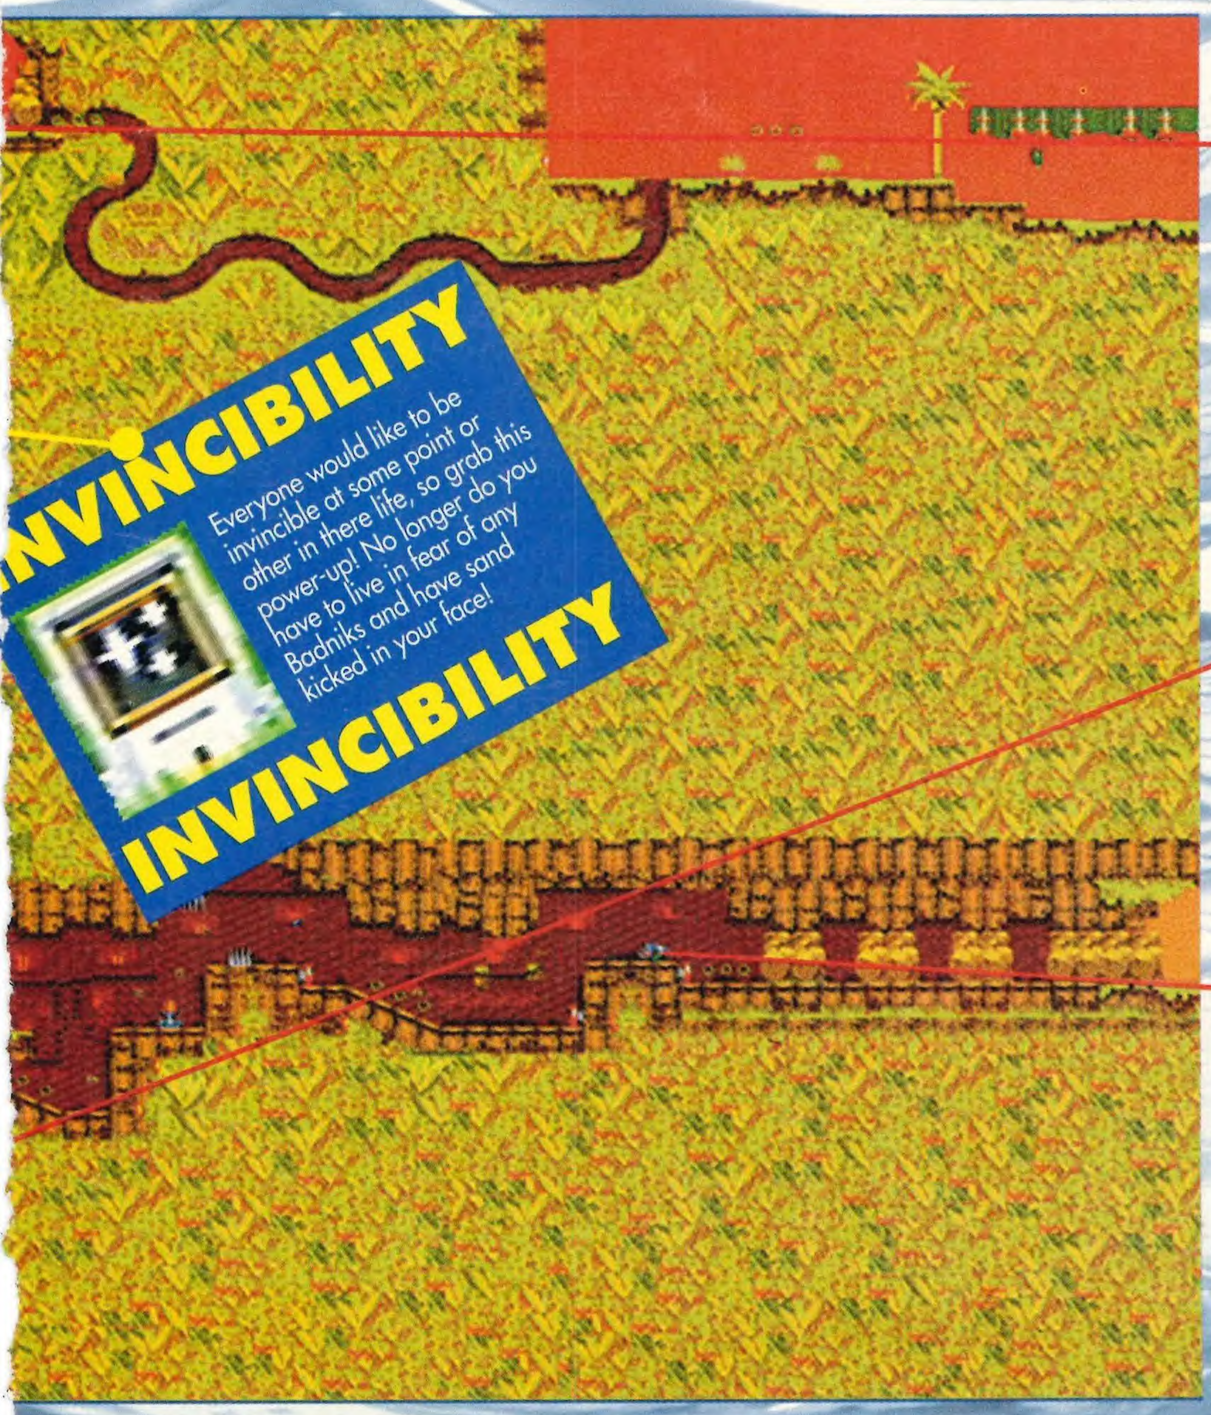

I expect this would be called a loop-the-loop-the-loop-the-loop, eh? A triple loop-the-loop awaits you here, so go at it full pelt!

Some cunningly placed spikes are, um, cunningly placed here. You should be able to avoid them if you use the hidden spring below to the right to reach the platform above.

LIGHTNING SHIELD

If you're a bit of a bright spark, then you will no doubt want to get your rubber gloves on the lightning shield. (HA!)

Mr. Monkey Dude should be spiked to death before he can attack you, so get to it!

INVINCIBILITY

Everyone would like to be invincible at some point or other in there life, so grab this power-up! No longer do you have to live in fear of any Badniks and have sand kicked in your face!

This platform will collapse, sending you falling, but you will be bounced back by some bumpers. It's a strange world, is it not?

Watch out! Rhinobots about! If you jump over him when he's revving-up, chances are that you will avoid any confrontation with him.

HYDRO-CITY

Enter the space-age city of the future for some wild high-jinx. Watch out for the ever-growing posse of bad-tempered Badniks, all out to flay Sonic's hide! This is another of those Sonic acts designed for those among you who love watching our favourite hero struggle for breath in the under-water zones. This regions full of areas ideal for all kinds of water sports, ranging from deep pools to fast-flowing canals. A particular menace to look out for is the section in which a strong current drags Sonic towards a set of spikes, sharpened in anticipation of his arrival. Use the metal poles to overcome these deadly obstacles.

Level 1-1

Hey kids, look! A whole cluster of rings, just waiting to be grabbed. A handy addition to anybodies collection!

SUPER RING

Right from the start, jump up to grab ten lovely rings. It's like taking candy from a baby.

Jump onto this switch to open the door on the right.

SUPER RING

This power-up's worth ten rings. A bit of a bargain, even by today's inflated standards!

Fans like this one blow you higher in the air. Allowing you to reach otherwise impossible platforms.

Funny things happen, and here's a fine example — bounce into one of these bumpers and continue to be bashed between the two for ever. It's a good job Sonic's so hard-headed!

SUPER RING

Ten rings are yours if you break open this wonderful television set. It's as simple as that.

1-UP

Grab this handy 1-up. The best power-up in the game, courtesy of SEGA XS. Hurrah!

Sonic uses his upper-body stre

These loops flash by so fast, you barely have time to breathe, but on the way there's at least 30 gold rings, so it's nothing to scoff at.

Slide along here to enter ring heaven.

1-up

A 1-up awaits the brave who use the platforms to ascend to these lofty heights. It's also worth checking out the ten rings to the left of this point.

1-up

SUPER RING

Ten luvly-jubbly rings are yours to keep here. Go to the TV next to it to get the water shield. Ideal for bashing on some nasties head. Those guys deserve everything they get, so show no mercy!

WATER SHIELD

WHEEEEE! Zoom around this loop-the-loop and your well on the way to finishing this level.

SPECIAL

Walk through the wall and jump into this gigantic golden ring. Groovy!

ZONE

Just go with the flow. Don't resist these bumpers, they catapult you in the right direction to finish the level.

Make sure you control Sonic carefully, otherwise the spikes are going to puncture our plucky, blue friend.

POWER-UP KEY

Every man is created equal, except a man with a power-up that is! Where would you be without a power-up, eh? But what's the best power-up to get? Confused? Well, here's a complete guide to help you.

1-UP

The most important power-up of all. Anyone attempting to complete the game, without the help of any cheats or codes, is well advised to seek out a few of these.

FLAME-SHIELD

This acts as a shield against any fire attacks. You also perform a Fireball-Spin-Dash by jumping up and pressing a button. Not to be sneezed at, unless you've got a hanky!.

INVINCIBILITY

For a limited time only, this allows you to walk through the level without suffering any damage to yourself. It's always nice to be immortal, even if it's only for a short while!

LIGHTNING

Double-jump if you press a button twice. The real bonus is rings automatically drift towards you. It also acts as a nifty shield when the going gets tough.

ROBOTNIK

This is the equivalent of being struck by one of Dr Robotnik's Badniks, or getting impaled on a spike. So don't touch it, unless you have masochistic tendencies that is!

SUPER RING

This power-up is worth ten rings. Just think kids, collect 50 and you enter the bonus room, collect 100 and you can get an extra life! If only everything was as simple!

WATER SHIELD

You can breathe underwater and bounce like a ball with this power-up. Jump on any Badnik's head to instantly kill it, without the threat of losing your rings.

Level 1-2

The spikes are harmful. Please don't touch them.

Spank that re-start point!

Don't touch that bumper, it sends you hurtling back the way you came.

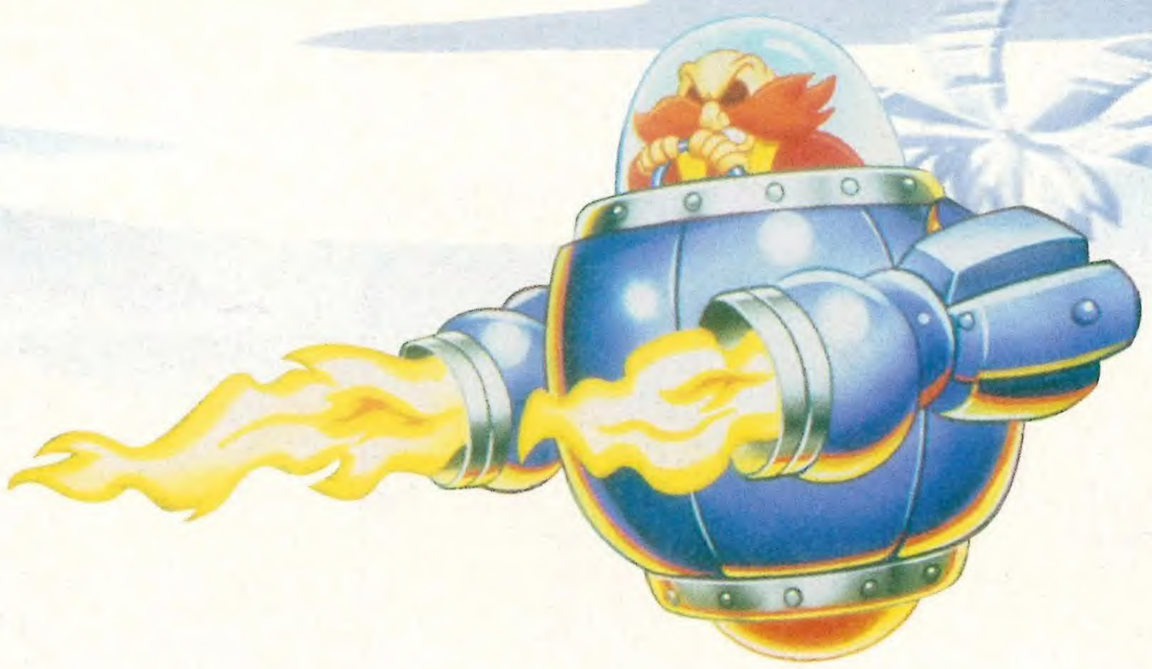

The hunt's hotting up, and Tails is panic-stricken (He remembers the last time the East Devonshire hunt came this way!). Thankfully, things can only get better. Make clever use of the bumpers, springs and tunnels to send Sonic winging on his way.

It's a hedgehogs life when you can zoom down tunnels collecting rings. Nothing could be easier.

LIGHTNING SHIELD

Lightning never strikes twice, or does it? Never fear, with this handy shield nearly all your worries are over.

SPECIAL ZONE

Jump through the wall and into the Special Zone. It's supposed to be quite nice, just avoid those red spheres

SUPER RING

It's a super ring box. You need to jump up here to get it though, so, er, get jump-jump-jumping!

Loop that loop, collecting loads of valuable rings as you go.

Hit this re-start point, just before you take on the guardian! Well, it saves time should Robotnik beat you.

Grab onto these rails and work your way upwards.

Kill Mr Pointdexter, before dropping down to gobble up the power-ups.

1-UP

Sega are making this just too easy! ANOTHER 1-up! What a generous company SEGA are.

1-UP

An extra life is yours if you break into this TV set. It's amazing how many 1-ups there are!

SPIN DOCTOR

Dr Robotnik is giving the washing a spin, unfortunately Sonic and Tails are along for the ride! To defeat this guardian, wait until the water stops churning. Once the pool's calm the robot rises, before coming down to the left or right. Wait for this moment to launch a bounce attack. Simply repeat the process until the robot explodes.

Level 2-1

Welcome to the second stage in the all-acton, faster than a speeding bullet, Hydrocity. Sonic's journey through the Floating Island is now well under way; from here on in the pace is relentless.
This level requires plenty of forward planning, especially when exploring the many under-water sections. It's no good diving to the depths if you don't keep an eye out for handy air bubbles. So always keep Sonic's lungs filled with air

At this stage in the level, don't forget to hit this re-start point.

This loop-the-loop lark makes for easy pickings on the ring front, wouldn't you agree?

Jump into this shoot to head for bigger and better things later in the level.

Quickly work your way up here to avoid the moving wall. Hedgehogs have a tough enough time crossing the road, without getting crushed by a wall as well!

Crash through these walls by using the trusty super-spin!

Use this spring to propel you up onto the higher platforms. Next head to the far left and activate the re-start point.

INVINCIBILITY

The powers of invincibility can be yours if you jump over the row of spikes that are in your way. Remember though kids, you only have about 30 seconds of invincibility to play around with, so make the best of it!

INVINCIBILITY

This water-fall sends you hurtling down the drain. Go with the flow but try to keep an eye on the terrain around you.

1-UP

1-up's ahoy, shipmates! Strut your stuff through the wall and jump this TV set to get a life!

1-UP

These groovy fans launch you up into the higher platforms for yet more ring collecting high-jinx.

SUPER RING

Blow me down! Who would've guessed it, eh? It's only a set of ten gold rings, isn't it?

Yet more rings to collect on the rollercoaster ride of a life time.

Keep the speed up along these daredevil shoots, and admire the superb animation as you go. A must for high-speed adrenaline junkies!

1-UP

Zoom up her and collect another extra life to add to your huge co lection. Life's good, eh?

1-UP

The final level of the Hydrocity is jam-packed with hair-raising water-shoots and terrifying death-slides. The one bonus is each of these is full to bursting with precious gold rings, so get your collecting hat on.
This is a massive level to negotiate and the unwary player could end up going round in circles. Watch out for the spikes often found below the exit points on the slides, otherwise all your good work's wasted!

Level 2-2

You need to be going at quite a pace to make it up here, so get those Nike trainers on!

When you make it up here, keep on running to the right.

SUPER RING

Wonder down this tunnel and lo and behold, ten rings are yours! Enough Super Rings for everyone!

SPECIAL ZONE

Jump through the wall Sonic and enter the strange and funny Special Zone: where anything goes!

Let the hand grab you to send your speedometer flying. This sends you hurtling towards the end of the stage.

ROBOTNIK'S ALL

BLOOMINATOR

Bloomin' hell! This poor excuse for a sand-mixer throws energy balls out at you, which you must dodge. Kill it by jumping on top of him after he's fired.

MONKEY DUDE

To teach this Monkey Dude a lesson is simple. Jump up and spin attack him after he's fired all his coconuts at you. Without his defenses he is harmless.

TURBO SPIKER

Turbo Spiker launches a spike off his back. Avoid this. To kill him, you should spin attack him. Just one hit, and there's one less Badnik to worry about!.

CATAKILLER

This strangely-named Badnick is a slow-moving fiend. This makes it hard to kill him, but kill him you must, so jump up and spike him!

RHINOBOT

A split second of revving-up before he charges at you is all the warning this guy gives. Take a running jump over him and you're in the clear. Couldn't be simpler!

BLASTOID

Kill this meanie before he has a chance to fire a cluster of energy balls at you. The Spin-Attack is your best bet. Jumping tends to be erratic, costing rings..

ROBOTNIK

Activate this power-up and you're dead meat. It's the equivalent to a hit from a Badnick!

ROBOTNIK

You want rings? You got it!

Time your jump onto this moving barrel and try not to get crushed! It's plain-sailing after that. Well, until the next obstacle anyway!

A good sense of timing is required here to avoid becoming a pin cushion.

1-UP

Fancy an extra life? Right. Well activate this power-up. Problem's now solved, a 1-up's yours!

1-UP

While you're underwater, keep an eye out for these spikes!

The Guardian! See the Boxout on how to defeat this particular guy.

JAWZ

To kill this flying-robot-shark, jump up underneath him before he has a chance to defend himself. Otherwise steer well clear!

POINTDEXTER

This Pointdexter character is only vulnerable when his nasty-looking spikes are withdrawn. Don't attack him when he's "Spiked-up" or it's curtains for you!

TUNNELBOT

The Tunnelbot tries to carve you up with his two drills. Jump onto him when he's floating just above you to win the battle..

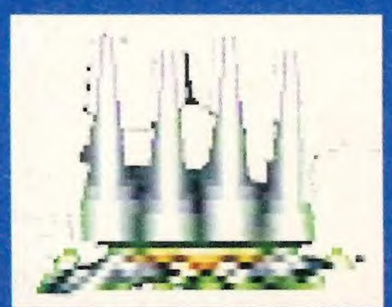

MEGA CHOPPER

Let this devious fish grab onto you and you've got real problems. His grasp is so incredibly strong he can hold you down until you drown.. A real dirty fighter!

SPIKER

These are no ordinary spikes, but rather some devious creation by Robotnik. You can jump on the spikes, but have to spin Sonic to kill it before you get hit.

MANTIS

Looking much like a grasshopper, this Badnick can be found in the Marble Garden area of the game. Chances are you can keep on running right at him and he'll jump out of your way!

MARBLE GARDEN

Level 1-1

This act brings Sonic's Spin Dash Attack to the fore. Use it to destroy any marble walls standing in the way, wipe out any Badniks dumb enough to try and stop our hero or jet propel Sonic up the steep hills found in every level.

You should also be thinking seriously about the number of Chaos Emeralds you've collected by this stage. Remember, without the Emeralds the game can't be completed properly and we don't want that do we!

This platform collapses when you stand on it. Go up for your last chance to reach the bonus room.

This bubble like Badnik's a pain in the spikes if you bump into him, and so's his smaller mate, lurking nearby.

Hit the Tunnel-Bot from underneath but watch out — it fires at you and tries to crush you.

SPECIAL ZONE

Spin Sonic into the pillar to the left to gain access to the Special Zone.

A lovely line of rings to notch up as you shoot down this steep bank.

A moving platform to catch if you want to progress up the screen and get to the first bonus ring.

SPECIAL ZONE

Access from the right to enter the Zone. A Chaos Emerald's handy at this early stage.

Miss this spinning wheel of platforms and the only way is down. This isn't a bad thing, as it just means a longer route to the end of the level.

SPECIAL ZONE

Force your way in from the left to penetrate the ring and enter the all-important Zone!

Robotnik makes a brief appearance to start an Earthquake. Don't hang around.

INVINCIBILITY

Invincibility is a truly great thing. Sonic can feel completely safe in his protective bubble.

SHIELD

Stand central on the spinning disc to see Sonic spirited off to another location.

SPECIAL ZONE

Break into this bonus level from the right and collect those blue spheres.

Steel spiked balls rotate toward the ground. Time it well to spin or walk past.

INVINCIBILITY

Three power ups to collect, including a useful shield! Leap onto the platform to grab them.

SHIELD

Spin on the wheels tucked in the earth and pillars appear to make life a lot easier for Sonic.

The lava's not fatal if you get out of there quick. Otherwise, burn baby, burn!

1-UP

An extra life's just what you need to survive for the duration and we know the place to grab one.

1-UP

This section of the Marble Garden has plenty of revolving platforms and disappearing ledges to contend with, so the watchwords are timing and patience. Unless you're using one of our nifty Action Replay codes, try to avoid jumping into anything before you've checked out exactly what to expect. Also make sure you always activate the re-start points as they go by, it saves an awful lot of heartache and frustration in the long run!

Level 1-2

INVINCIBILITY

Invincibility shield helps Sonic get past a number of traps and enemies.

INVINCIBILITY

SPECIAL

To teleport into the Special Zone enter from the right of the cage.

ZONE

Find the spinning disc on the right to fly into this shaft. Go down to get a handy power up.

These springs are very powerful and hurl Sonic backwards very fast. Avoid them unless you enjoy being sent back from whence you came!

This spiked pillar falls to the ground every other second so don't get flattened.

1-UP

An extra life to keep our blue hero going on this fast and furious level.

1-UP

Use this disc to hover through the air. Run right or left for speed and direction, while taking it easy makes you lose height.

SUPER RING

10 rings for Sonic's collection. Next to the Super Ring's a handy invincibility.

SPECIAL

Not easy to get. Timing's important to get across from the revolving platforms.

ZONE

Duck the arrows that spout from the stone face. Wait for the ground to collapse, allowing Sonic to continue.

1-UP

Ascend the three platforms and collect an extra life on this ledge.

1-UP

Take care not to rush this little collection of horrors and time a sprint through the gap.

Needless to say, if you go down this shaft you're on the receiving end of razor-sharp spikes. Our advice — seek an alternative route!

A pair of Badniks linger about, waiting for an innocent hedgehog to pester.

FLAME

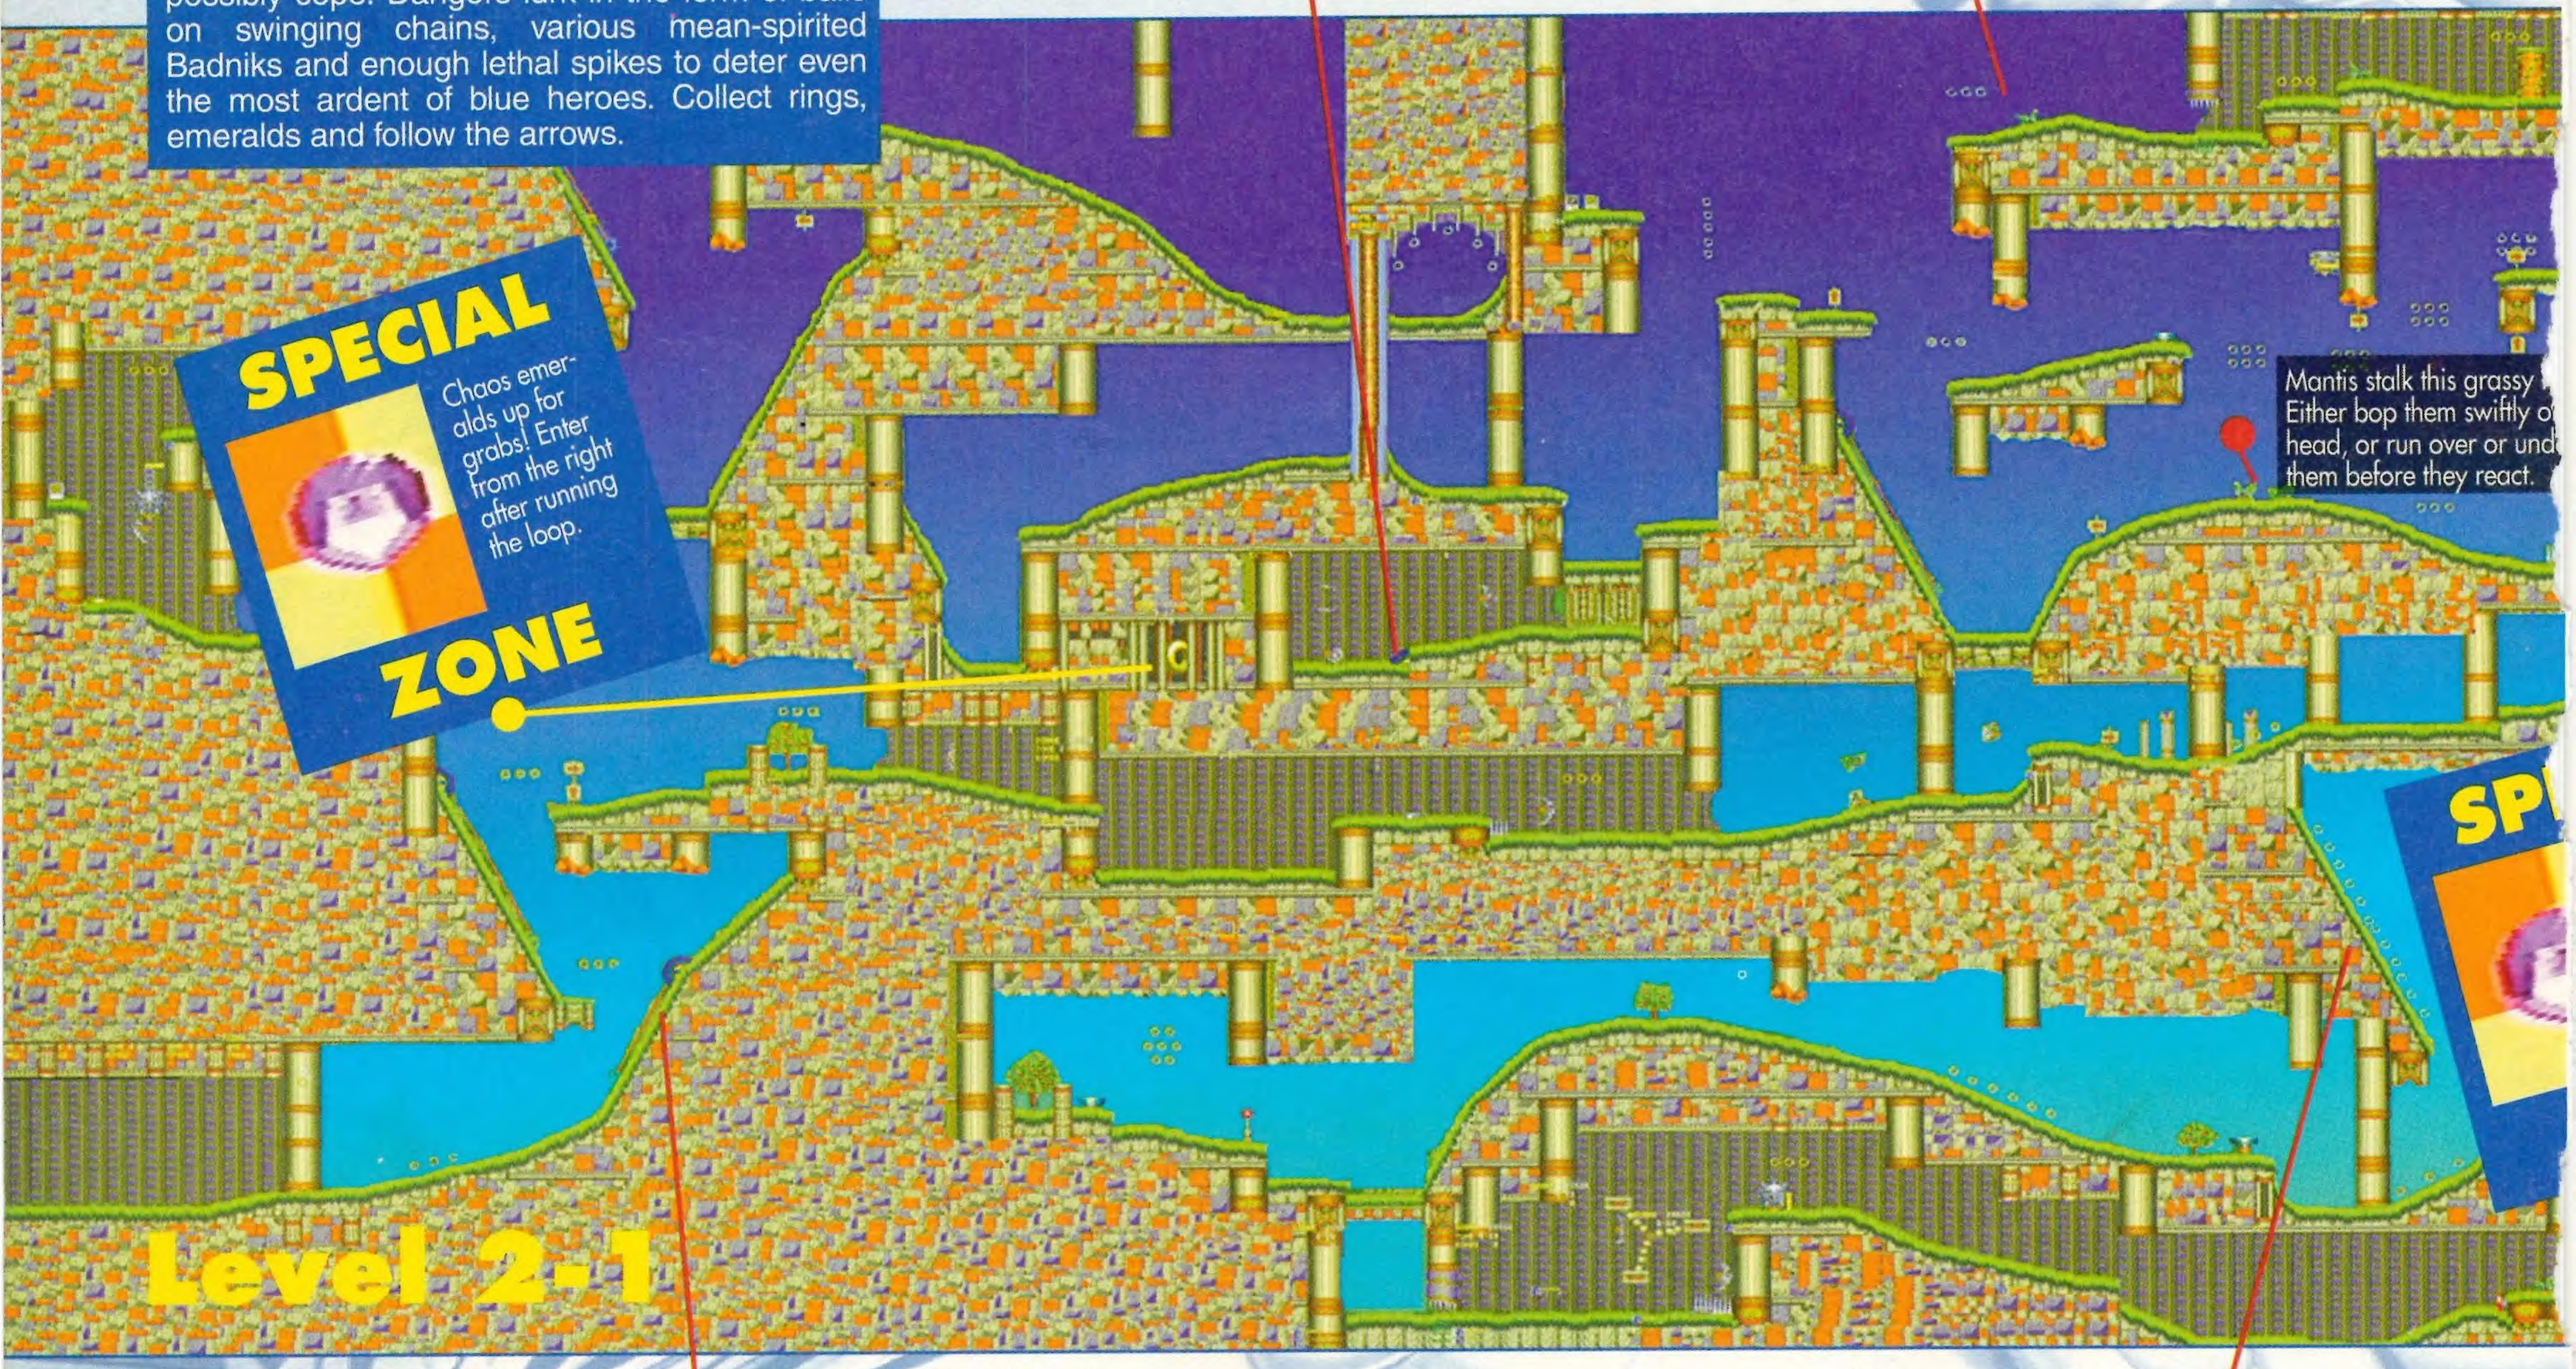

Protect Sonic and Tails from fire attack with a flame shield. Simply jump across and gobble it up!

SHIELD

SEGA XS SOLUTION

The Marble Gardens see Sonic and Tails pelting down steep inclines. Speeds are so great even the Linford Christie of the animal world couldn't possibly cope. Dangers lurk in the form of balls on swinging chains, various mean-spirited Badniks and enough lethal spikes to deter even the most ardent of blue heroes. Collect rings, emeralds and follow the arrows.

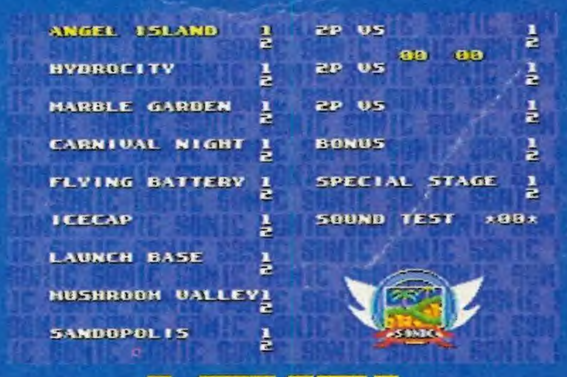

GAME GENIE

THE CODE WE'VE ALL BEEN WAITING FOR!

AA6T-AAXC

Welcome to a Pandora's box of delights! This code could prove to be the saviour of anyone still having problems completing Sonic 3, even with our superb solution. Use the code above to access four great cheats. You can select any level, design any level, become Super Sonic and even play the game in slow motion.

LEVEL SELECT

Fed up with all your friends laughing at your inability to get off the Angel Island? Well fret no more. Simply enter the code and press Start, when Sonic waves his finger on the introduction screen. Marvel at the wonderful choice of levels available to you. The game couldn't be simpler!

LEVEL DESIGN

Enter the code and press Start, when Sonic waves his finger press Start and choose the level you want to play. Once on the level press A and Start. Now press B to change Sonic into a ring. You can change the object at any time by pressing A, while C places the object.

SLOW MOTION

Follow the Level Design procedure as described. Press start to pause the game, then hold down B to play the game in slow motion.
It's especially useful on the Special Zone, allowing you to take time collecting spheres. Even Neil managed to get a Chaos Emerald!

Use the position marker to save time. Very useful if you get killed and want to start from where you left off.

By spinning on this you're able to carry on to the left and up. Making it much easier to reach the continue point at the top of the stage.

1-UP

Extra life for endurance. Get to it via a secret passage. Next to it lies a Super ring bonus.

1-UP

Another very useful position marker in case you mess things up later on. This one allows you to continue much closer to the end of the stage.

Jump on top of this statue head to stop the arrows. This also triggers access to the secret cave beneath.

FLAME

Simply walk on the platform to the right and watch it lower down. Now go grab a shield!

SHIELD

CIAL

Emeralds here we come, yet again! Get in from the left and grab those blue spheres.

ZONE

This irritating spring bounces you silly if you fall from the wheel.

SUPER SONIC

Everyone craves the ultimate accolade of being Super Sonic, but few can achieve the honour purely on merit. Worry no longer, we're about to prove the old adage that cheats never prosper wrong!

To dispense with the unnecessary irritation of actually collecting the Chaos Emeralds, simply carry out all of the following procedure.

Use the Level Design, as described, and then use the A button to change Sonic into a TV (Above). Place the Television anywhere on the screen by pressing C and then press B to return Sonic to his normal state.

The highest status of all is now within your grasp — no longer will you die if Sonic falls on some spikes, while the threat of falling off a ledge becomes mere child's play! All you have to do is jump on the TV you've just placed and, low and behold, Sonic's turned into the new, improved Super Sonic! All that's left to do now is laugh in the face of all the fools who are always telling you to play fair. Cheats definitely do prosper, well, if they have a nifty little gadget like the Game Genie they do anyway!

LEVEL 2-2

More Marble mayhem for our duo of frenetic furballs. Guide them by following the arrows to bash it out at the end of the level with Robotnik in his souped up flying machine. With a radical mixture of loops, slopes and bonus stages, Sonic and Tails have a massive task ahead in this immense level. One more thing — it's not easy either! It may be a garden but don't stop to smell the roses!

1-UP

You never know when you need an extra life, so grab them on the easier levels for later.

1-UP

A swinging metal ball spells danger and so do the spikes beneath it.

This loop sends Sonic spiralling down the pole and you better hope he lands on the left-hand side. Otherwise he's in for an unpleasant meeting with those nasty spikes.

Special Zone

Enter from the right to take a welcome run around the Special Zone, grabbing a vital emerald.

1-UP

Get your hands on a special treat here. Not just an extra life but also a Super Ring.

1-UP

A spinning disc's a handy short-cut once you get it turning right. If you get to the left shaft make sure you have your disc to escape again.

Robotnik makes a brief appearance and tries to blast Sonic. Don't take too many risks here as he quickly disappears after the initial attack. What a coward, eh!

SONIC'S SUPER MOVES

This is the coolest of Sonic's new moves, mainly because Tails gets to play an active part in the game. Use the second controller to manipulate the young fox, carrying Sonic clear of danger

AIRLIFT

INSTA-SHIELD

If you find yourself in a no-win situation quickly press the A, B or C button twice to generate an energy shield. This protection lasts long enough for Sonic to escape from the danger.

SPIN DASH

This old favourite from Sonic 2 can get you out of almost any pickle. Use it to smash through walls, scale steep hills or wipe out a Badnik. Hold down on the Joypad and press fire to activate it.

SUPER SONIC

The only way to obtain this power-up, unless you use our cheats, is to be a star player. Enter the Special Zones and collect all the Chaos Emeralds, when you have enough Sonic goes super!

Don't jump prematurely as you're bound to jump into the spikes.

The ground collapses here, leading the way to further sections of the Gardens.

This face spits poison arrows, so duck them and jump on the button above it. The ground eventually collapses allowing access to deeper levels.

Robotnik sits arrogantly in his flame-spurting Hovership. Defeat in the usual way, by bouncing all over it.

Lots of Mantis await. Jump on them or over them to progress with Sonic completely intact!

INVINCIBILITY

Nothing like being untouchable. Smash through the wall using a spin-attack to get it.

SHIELD

FIAME

Protection from fire is just what you need against Robotnik's machine at the level's end.

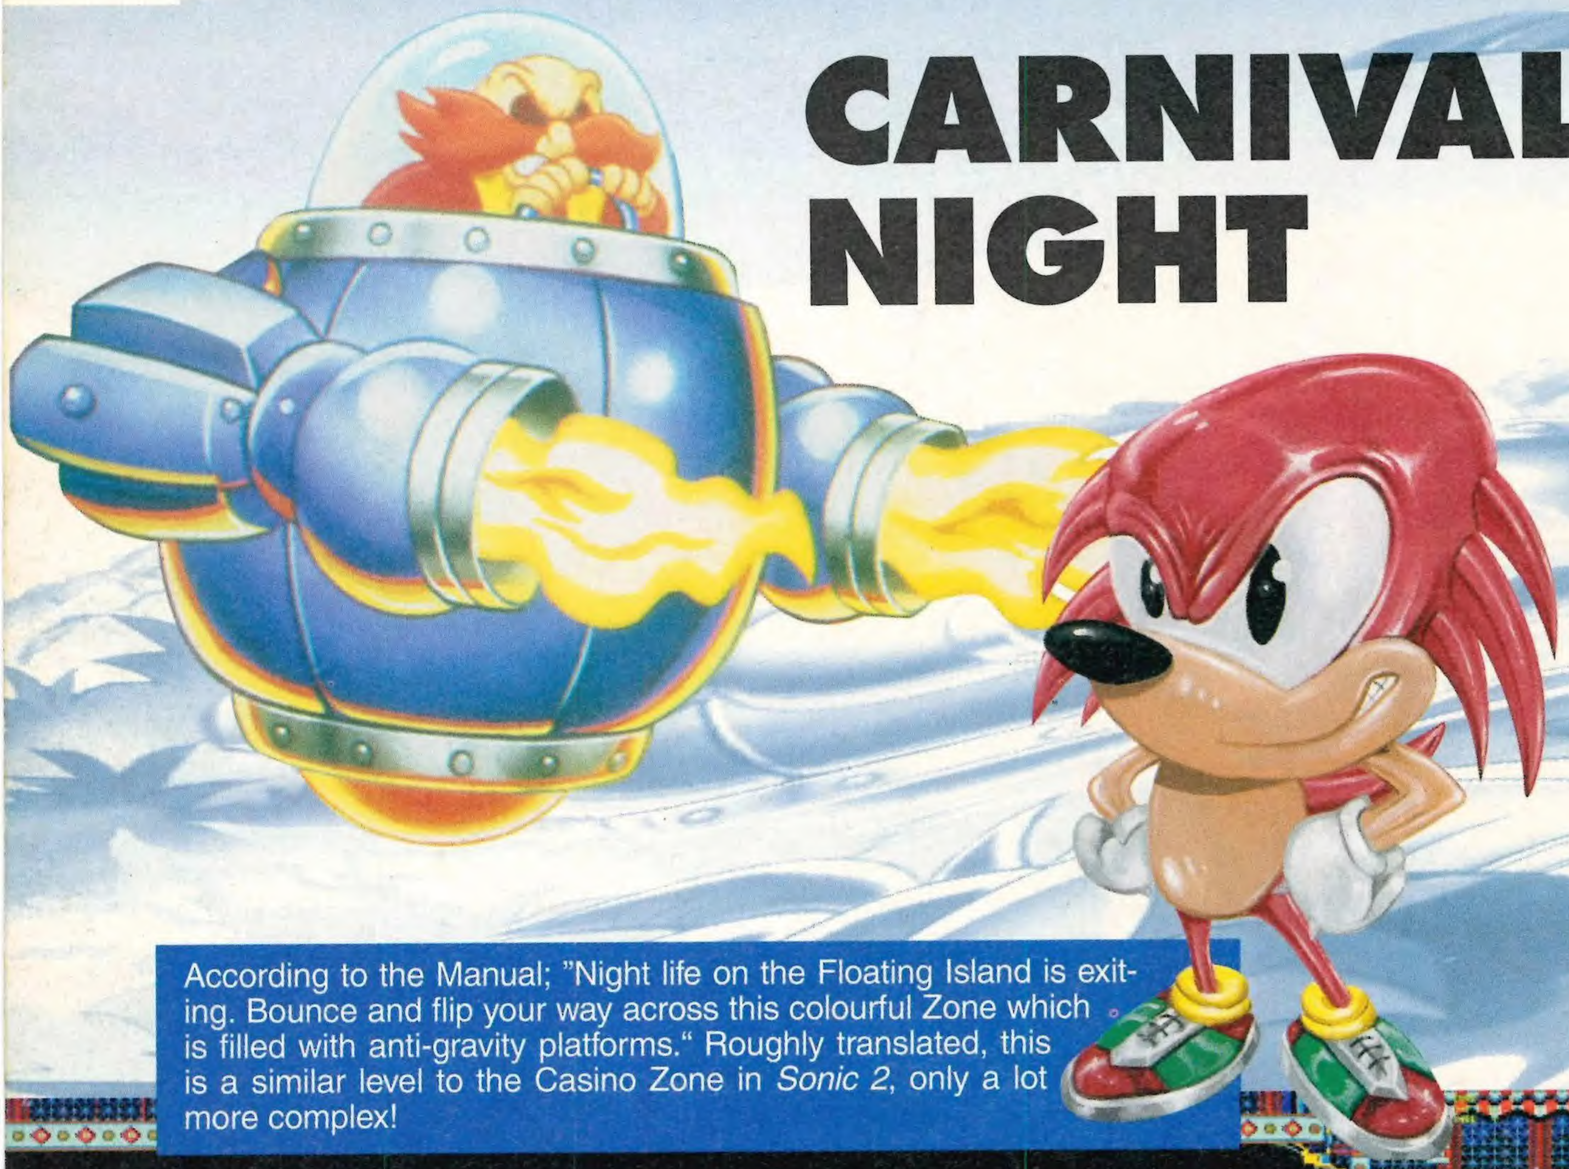

SHIELD

Air Attack

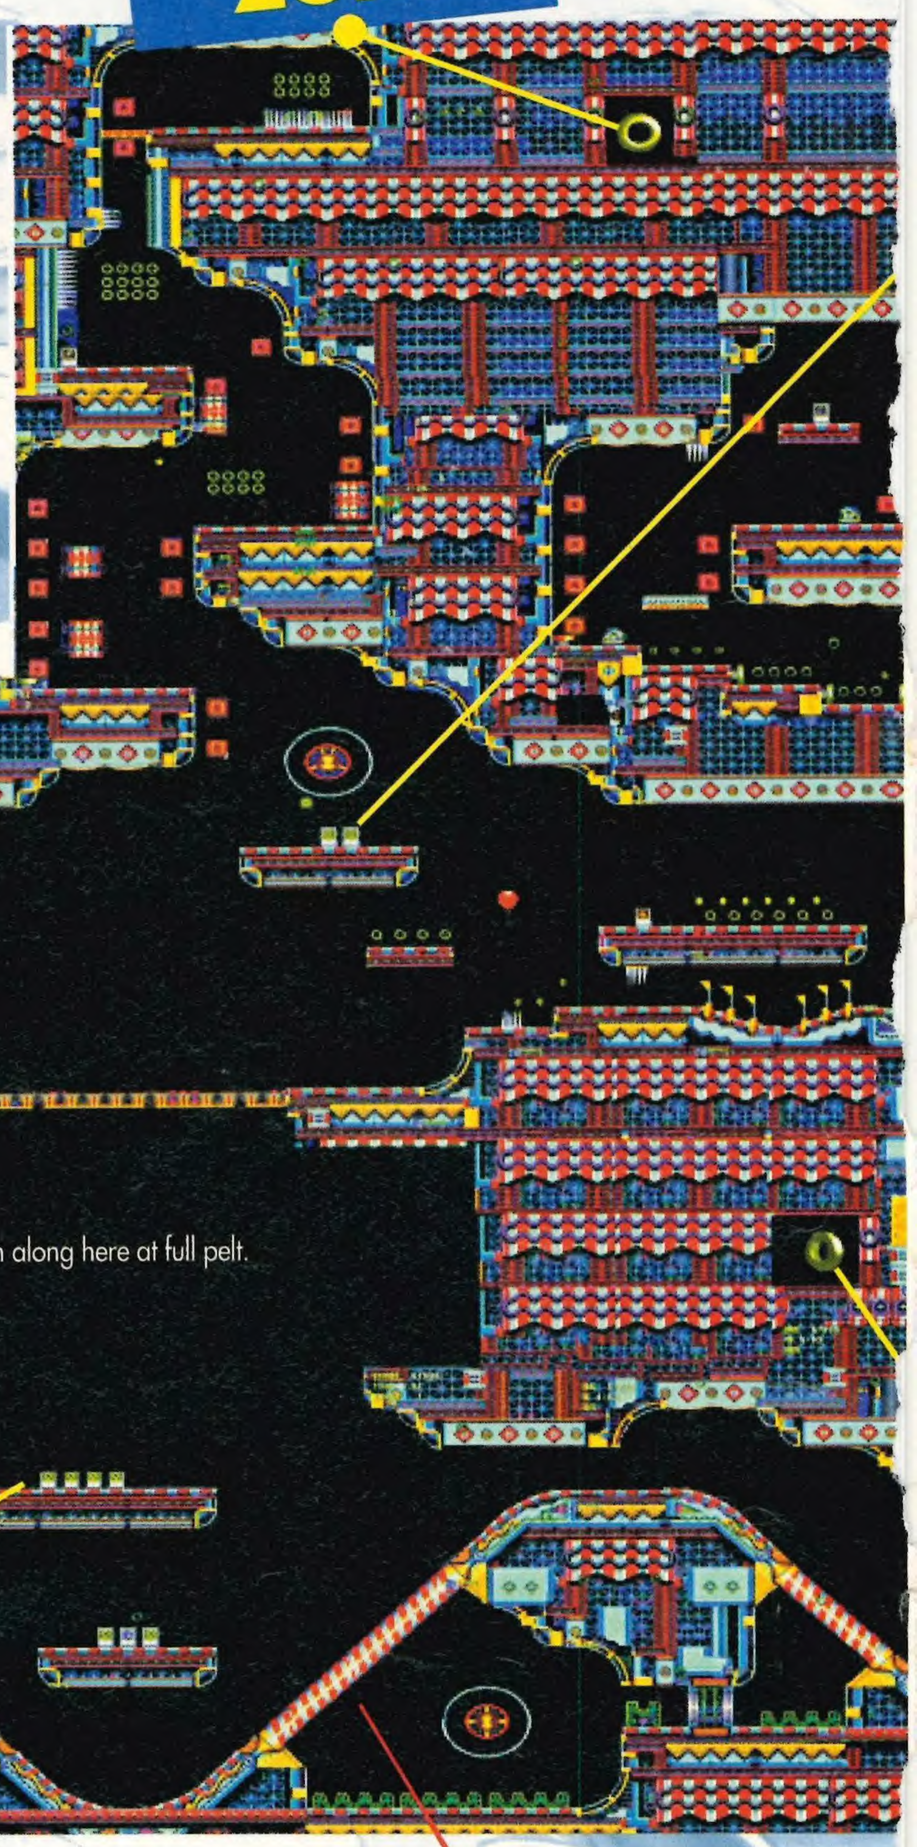

Robotnik looks really chuffed in his latest flying machine, but Sonic only has to bounce under it to blow it into hell. It's even easier with a Flame Shield, otherwise simply learn the pattern of attack from the rockets underneath. If you keep a cool head you're always going to be on top. Take your time and live to tell the tale.

CARNIVAL NIGHT

According to the Manual; "Night life on the Floating Island is exiting. Bounce and flip your way across this colourful Zone which is filled with anti-gravity platforms." Roughly translated, this is a similar level to the Casino Zone in Sonic 2, only a lot more complex!

Level 1-1

SPECIAL ZONE

Funnily enough, you have to walk through the wall to reach this Special Zone Ring...

Run along here at full pelt.

SUPER RING

More rings than you can shake a smelly sock at await you, if you manage to jump up here.

Remember to collect all the rings you see, it's always handy to have a few extra life's up your sleeve.

Shoot along these tubes to transport Sonic to another dimension! Well, it's a good impression of a rollercoaster anyway.

SUPER RING

More super than Superman. Get ready to grab those Chaos Emeralds

SUPER RING

It's important to have a hobby and collecting rings is Sonics. Jump on the platform for more!

Spin down this corkscrew death-slide and watch the screen go mad as you fall from one side to the other.

Watch out for barrels like these as they can crush you to death.

Make sure you don't get caught under these moving barrels or it's curtains for Mr Hog!

More rings can be collected here to add to your ever-growing collection collection.

SPECIAL ZONE

Walk through the left wall to reach another giant ring. Once more the Special Zone awaits..

Thunder along here and you will automatically collect loads of rings.

Jump on top of this anti-gravity ball and you automatically hang on to it. Allowing you to climb to the goodies higher in the level.

Level 1-2

Level 2-1 is, to be frank, a pesky devil to complete. There are plenty of tubes and springs to speed along to either a fast finish or an early exit! There's always the danger of a swift death at the hands of a Badnik or on some spikes, so always be on guard. It's tough going, but then again this is World Four. Follow the map, take your time and you should be fine!

Jump up into this tube and you're sucked through to a new section of the level.

SPECIAL ZONE

By walking through the wall, you reach this big, juicy and rather shiny gold ring.

Grab onto these huge tubes and make your way across, dragging yourself ever closer to the end of the stage..

LIGHTNING SHIELD

By jumping through the wall, you can grab this scrumptious Lightning Shield. Probably the best power-up going!

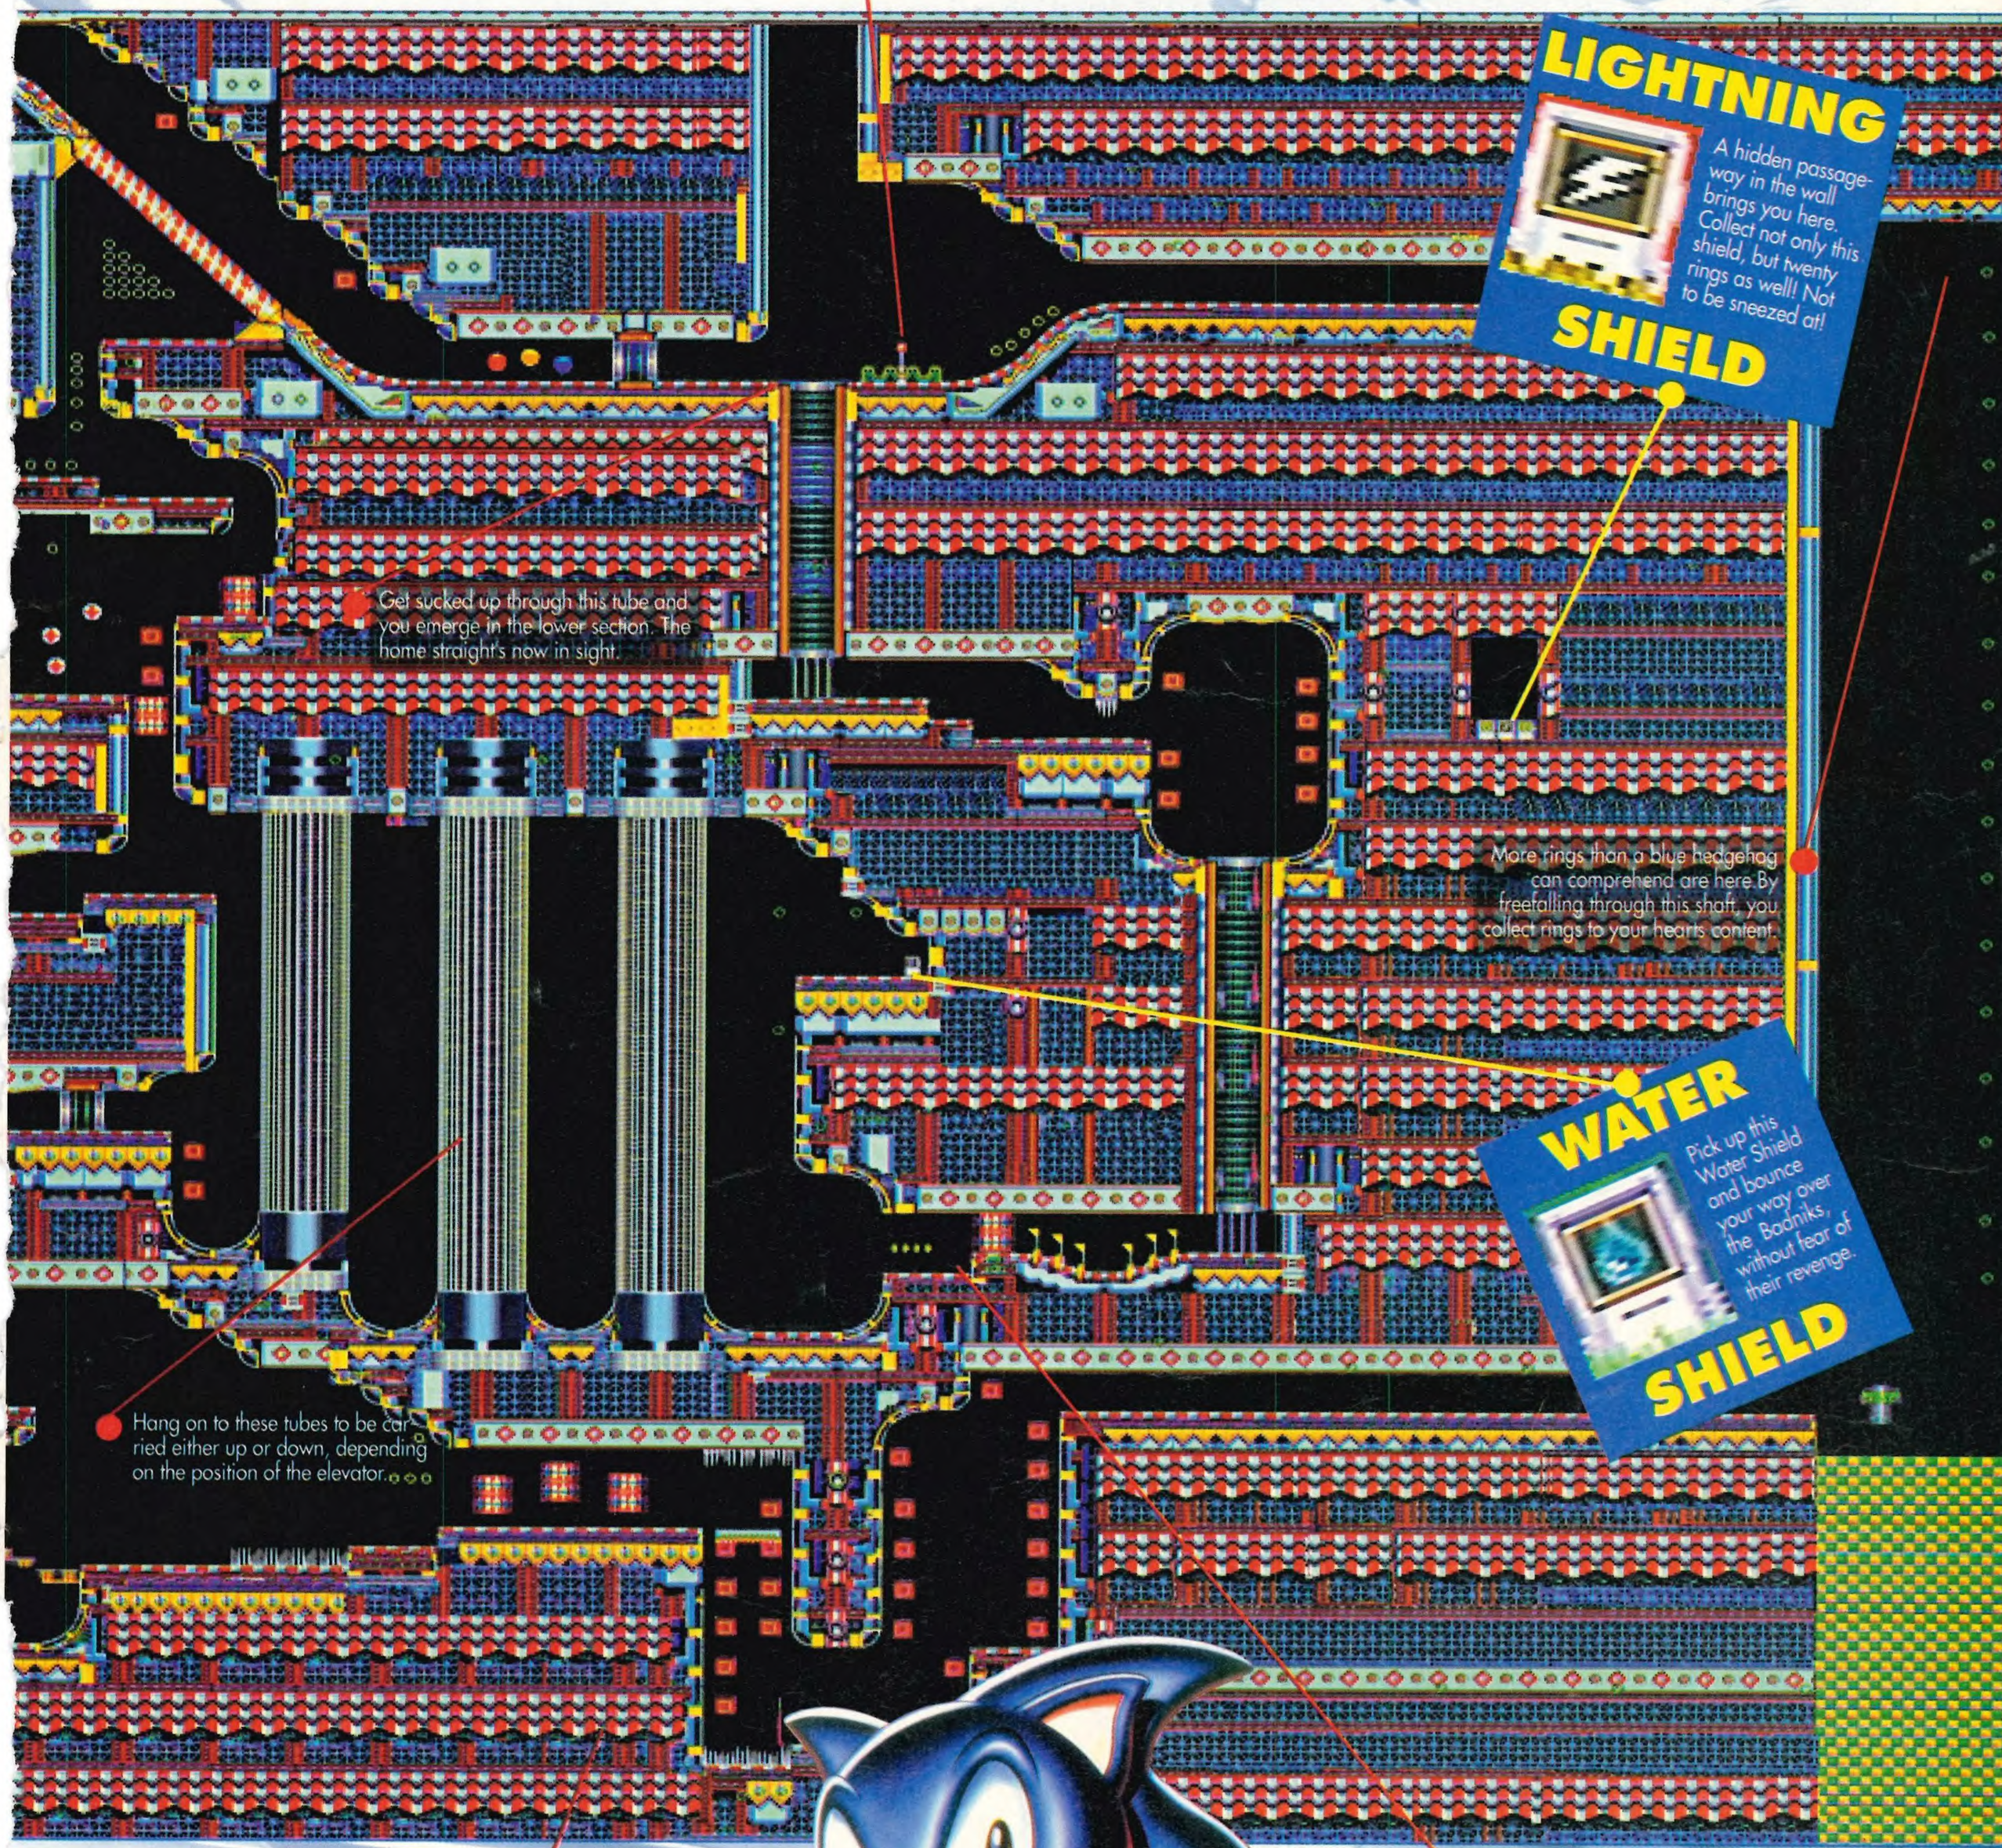

INVINCIBILITY

No one can harm you while this power-up's activated, so use it's limited time wisely. To get to it, run quickly can along the bottom, curl around and strike it. The level's plain-sailing while it lasts!

Climb up these steps and continue your epic quest, hoggy-boy.

Run past this re-start point to activate it. Saving time, and the immense frustration caused by having to return to the start of the stage.

SEGA XS SOLUTION

"So! Ha, ha, ha! Your puny video-gaming attempts have led you this far, eh? Well, you may think that you're pretty hot-stuff, but try your luck against this Mr. Hedgehog-breath!" Dr. Robotnik said as he sat back on his specially-made Robo-Sofa.He could see Sonic and Tails through his giant Robo-Monitor looking bemused at his threats.
"Alright Tails, lets teach this sucker a lesson," Sonic said "Right-ho Sonic!' agreed Tails, well, we all know, he sadly does everything Sonic says. With that they both turned around to confront the next stage of their quest...
As you've probably guessed by the map, this is a simular zone to the last one, but this time there's one difference — it's a lot bloody harder! All sorts of dangers await you, including Badniks, traps and spikes. Make one wrong move, and you're history! Watch out, pucker up and get ready because it's comin' at ya!

Level 2-1

Make it up here, to grab these four rings. Groovy, eh?

This fan-platform blows you up, causing you to miss a quite marvellous 1-up. So try to avoid it, you know it makes sense!

SUPER RING

Super Rings, Super Rings everywhere, collect them, collect them if you dare. (Try singing it!)

These fans blow Sonic up higher to reach all-important bonuses.

Whooooooh! Run down this tube and get very dizzy at the same time!

Run through the secret gap in the wall to grab these three power-ups.

SPECIAL ZONE

By this stage it's vital to enter the Special Zones. Without a full compliment of Chaos Emeralds the games only half done!

1-UP

WANTED, DEAD OR ALIVE: one escaped extra life. Presumed to be currently residing under the fan platforms just to the left. Go get 'em Sonic!

1-UP

Don't get caught on these spikes! They hurt!

When these barrels rise-up, run under them to avoid being squashed.

Use these anti-gravity balls to work your way up and across.

WATER

Collect the power-up by jumping over to this section. Not a hard task by any means.

SHIELD

This background may look different but it's still the same game. Shoot through the tube to escape at top speed!

Bounce off these bumpers to score lots and lots of points!

Jump over or dash under this barrel if you want to avoid the fate of most hedgehogs who venture onto the M25!

WATER

An important power-up for any sensible gamer thinking about entering the water!

SHIELD

Your reactions are much slower in water than on land Something to do with physics, I think? Anyway, with this in mind, avoid the Badniks lurking down here.

Run up here, collecting rings as you go.

Run through these two ditches, but, whatever you do, don't get squashed!

You may have packed some sandwiches, but this level's no picnic! The final section of the Carnival Zone's quite a tricky critter, so be on your guard. Springs, Badniks, bumpers, barrels, tunnels, platforms, water, power-ups and a big guardian at the end. This level has it all! Hurrah for Sonic 3! Hip, hip, hooray! It's quality like this that's given the game it's huge ratings in all the lesser mags! Mind you we at SEGA XS love Sonic's latest adventures too!.

Level 2-2

Power-ups ahoy! Don't delay, grab what you can, rest assured you're going to need them.

WATER

If you want to get this useful power-up, just jump up onto this platform and, hey presto, it's yours. Magic!

SHIELD

INVINCIBILITY

Walk through the wall on the left to collect this power-up. I'm sure that instruction sounds familiar, but this is a guide — we can't help it if the guys at Sega like the old secret passage routine!

INVINCIBILITY

Whiz down here and your eyes fall out of their sockets! It's also a great way to avoid the Badniks. Basically they can't catch you.

SUPER RING

You want rings? You got it! You want ten rings? You got it! You want ten Super Rings? You got it if you jump up here!

It's wet! Zoom down here, collecting rings as you go.

Smash these blocks to continue on into the depths of the level.

If you jump on these balloons, they will catapult you up into the air.

Fly up here, to collect more rings than you can fit on your fingers.

Use the tubes to quickly access other parts of the stage.

ROBO DOC

To defeat Dr Robotnik, run left and right avoiding his attacks. Jump on the top of the robot several times, once he stops his offensive, to kill him! It's that simple, honest it is!

Slide down here, keeping an eye out for any Badniks.

More rings await the skillful among you, who have managed to make it this far.

Special Zone japes are yours to saviour by walking through the wall to reach this juicy ring.

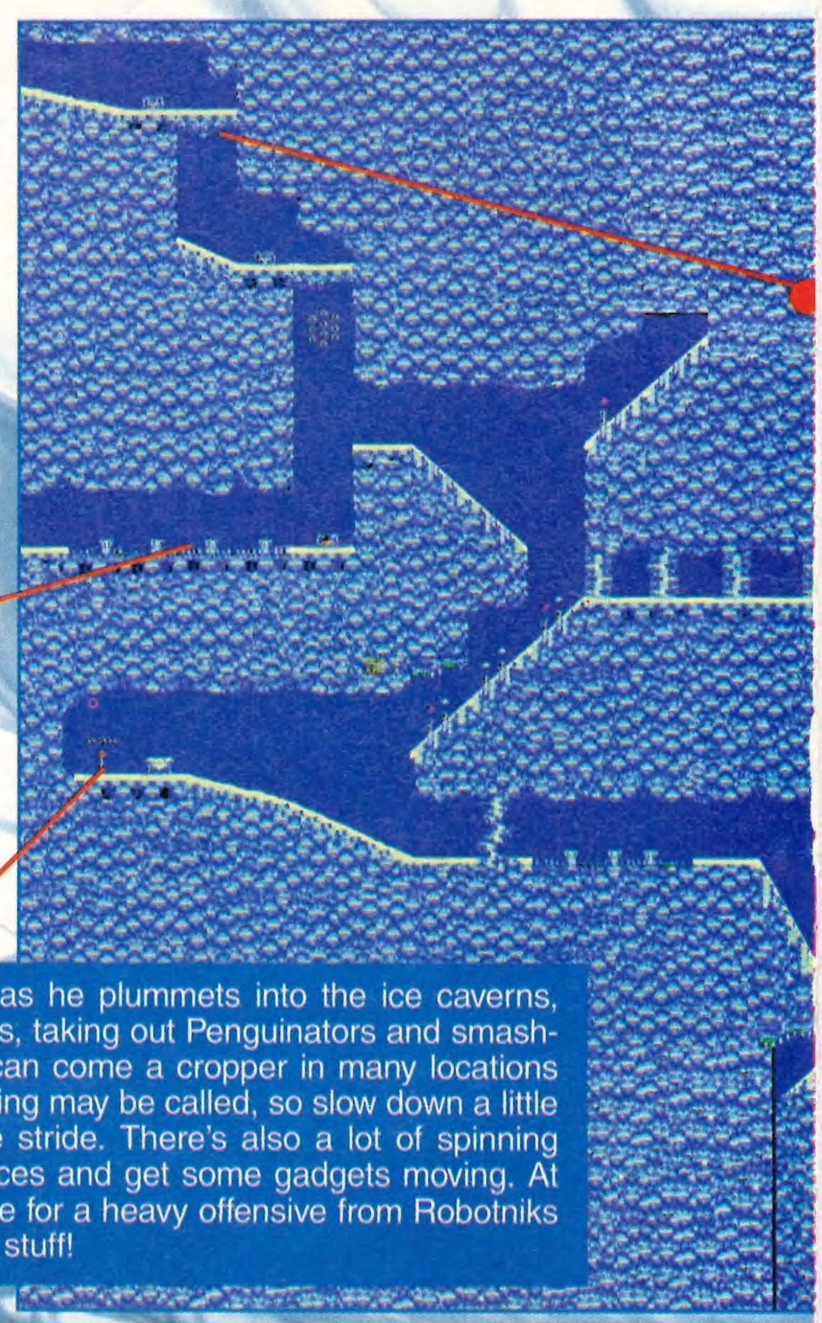

ICECAP ZONE

Level 1-1

Brr! Sonic never wears woolly jumpers, so it's no wonder he moves so fast when temperatures are this low. Prepare to be shot at, frozen, spiked, thrown and pounded against the walls in this testing level of wits and reflexes. Near the start there's a trap, causing Sonic to fall endlessly, but a bit of clever jumping soon sorts things out, so don't despair. General advice — be cautious, never forget to hit position markers and always keep your ring total up, to avoid being killed in a single attack.

ROBOTNIK'S BADNIKS

Here's some more cold and clammy Badniks in our Rogue's Gallery!. These guys never now when to leave Sonic alone, chasing him all over the Floating Island. They usually appear in predictable locations, lacking other threats and difficulties. Just as well too!

PENGUINATOR

Not your average penguin. They look innocent, but don't be fooled. Jump as they slide into you at speed.

CLAMER

These tooled up clams fire at you from fixed locations. Once their shell comes down you've no way of attacking them.

STAR POINTER

Slow moving and easily avoided. The usual mistake's rushing and jumping into them, so don't get sloppy!

BLASTOID

Blastoids shoot to kill and have little respect for animal rights, so move out of the line of fire as quick as you can.

CORKEY

This pneumatic cork-shaped drill is a tough cookie. It pumps you full of lead if you linger around it for too long.

It's a frosty day for Sonic as he plummets into the ice caverns, sliding down slippery slopes, taking out Penguinators and smashing through ice walls. He can come a cropper in many locations and some methodical thinking may be called, so slow down a little and take it all in your able stride. There's also a lot of spinning required to smash into places and get some gadgets moving. At the end of the level, prepare for a heavy offensive from Robotniks big, bad Ice Robot. Chilling stuff!

These two blocks slide up and down and, for the briefest second, Sonic can squeeze through the gap. Speed is of the essence to succeed!

DRILLER KILLER

Robotnik wants to mash Sonic and Tails in this airborne battle. The only thing keeping Sonic in the air is Tails, so control Tails with the D-pad. Attack Robotniks contraption with the usual tried and tested bounce method. Robotnik's huge metal machines are no match for Sonic in full flow. Just don't get caught in the flames, or by the drill on the front of the craft.

INVINCIBILITY

Sonic's free from harm for a short time, if you make the effort to grab this valuable power-up!

INVINCIBILITY

ICE ROBOT

The Ice Robot's a constantly revolving ring of spiky ice balls which bombard you when you least expect it.There's nothing quite as annoying as a snowball in the face! Use Sonic's attributes to the full to defeat this beast. For a start keep on the move to avoid the attacks and when the machine is unprotected, jump at it! After a few hits watch the sucker blow!

Watch the ground collapse and an avalanche of snow fall on your spiky head at this point, but this is painless so keep on the move.

If you come across a Badnik either jump on his head or take the easy option and jump over him, before running away.

Level 1-2

Extremely useful position marker, as you're about to face the Ice Robot guardian at the end of the level. Miss this and you may regret it.

If you get caught in a jet of cold steam prepare to freeze into a block of ice. This soon thaws, unfortunately it also takes Sonic's rings. The good news is steam is slow and therefore easy to shoot past.

Level 2-1

LIGHTNING SHIELD

The first power up of the level proves to be a useful one for collecting rings and extra jump power.

SPECIAL ZONE

The loop at the top leads you into this chamber. Once inside try accelerating hard to get out.

You have to jump on top of this spring twice to use it, as the ice encasing it has to be broken.

Notch up your ring total by sliding down this ice tunnel. Keep up your speed towards the end to make the carriage swing up. Then jump onto the ledge but beware, it you hang about too long it collapses.

This level is as slippery as they get. We all know Sonic's a cool character and he doesn't get much cooler than in these frigid ice-caps. The temperature may be sub-zero but the action certainly isn't. Prepare for everything from collapsing snow platforms to tricky double speed-loops. There is also icy water to swim in as if the level itself wasn't cold enough!

Battle it out with Penguinators, gun-carrying clams and a manic, possessed drill that shoots you without mercy. As for Robotnik himself, he has created a devilish new device to bombard Sonic with a flurry of deadly snow balls. Sonic's no stranger to such dangers, but this is one of the deadliest tests of his endurance yet. If you survive this things can only get better!

Unlike many other bridges in the game, these do not collapse behind you, so there is no need to panic.

This pillar is tipped with spikes. If you don't want to be flattened watch the rhythm and time your dash.

More fun in the snow. How much cold calamities can a small spiky hero take? By now you may be used to the formula for success on these chilly snow landscapes. The arctic antics won't, by any means, become bland though. The speed is so fast your left spinning in your chair, with your eyes rolling in opposite directions. The end guardian is a snow blasting machine, with Robotnik poking out of the driving seat. What a villain!

Spin out of the tunnel at speed and head for the rapidly approaching finale..

Smash the bottom block out with a Sonic spin and use the remaining tower to step onto the higher ledge.

Watch out for troublesome Badniks when you're zooming about at speed. It's easy to let a little carelessness create all sorts of unnecessary problems.

SPECIAL ZONE

Enter from the left without too much difficulty. Now storm through the Zone, collecting spheres.

Access high ledges with the lightning shield power up by double pressing jump.

Leap over these platforms, avoiding the Badniks swarming around to get ever closer to Dr Robotnik.

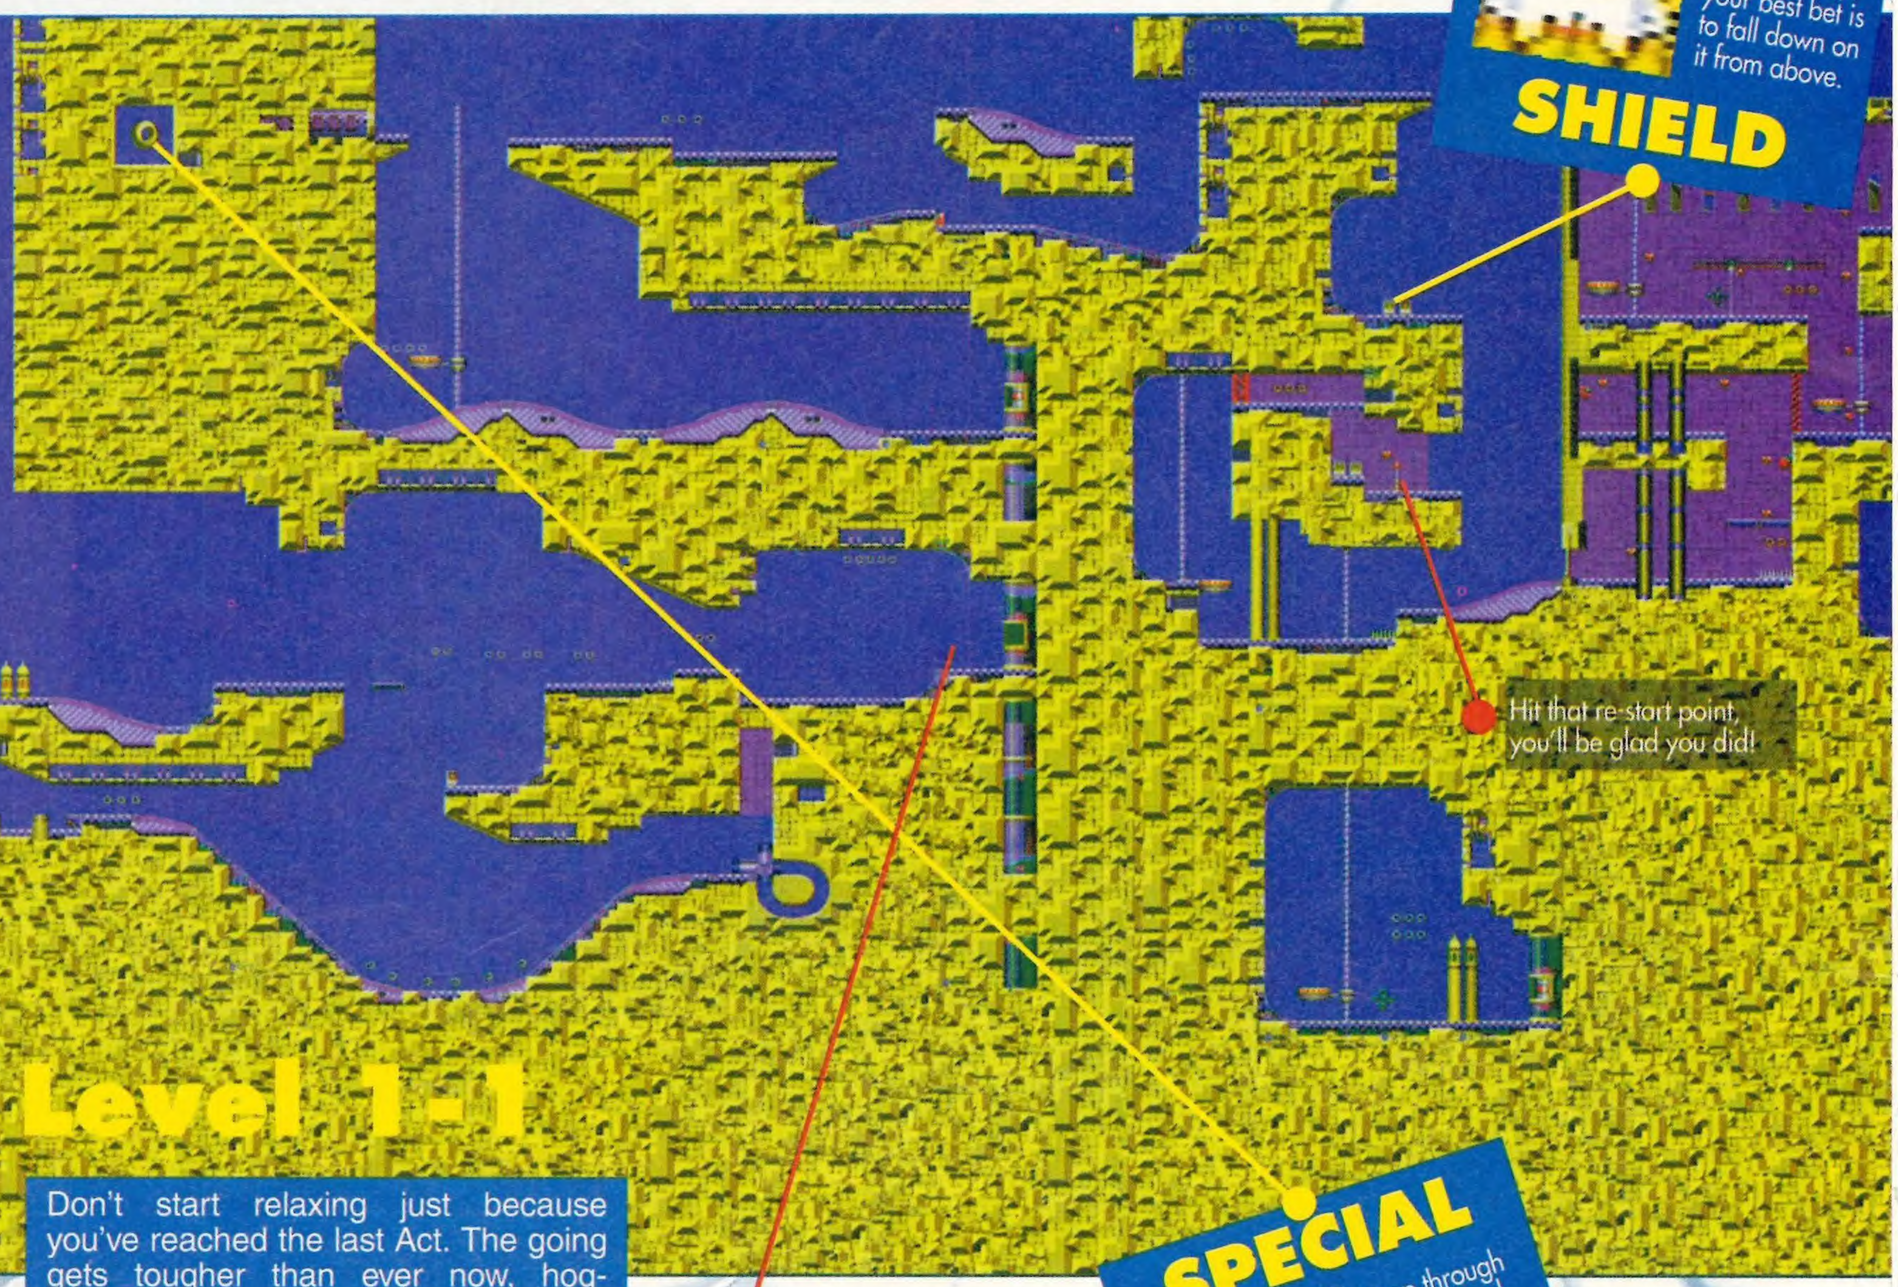

SNOW BLASTER

That evil rogue Robotnik is on the offense once again. This time in a device fitted with an hydraulic arm for blowing noxious snow gas at you in almighty clouds. Jump onto the platform which is above the snow weapon and use it to bounce all over the underside of the craft. It's tricky trying to avoid the icy jets while trying to clamber onto the platform at the same time, so calculate and time all your moves!

LAUNCH BASE

FLAME

Pretty hot stuff, eh? If you want to collect this power-up, your best bet is to fall down on it from above.

SHIELD

Hit that re-start point, you'll be glad you did!

Level 1-1

Don't start relaxing just because you've reached the last Act. The going gets tougher than ever now, hog-breath. Faster-than-fast, harder-than-hard, on the street, in your face and on the case! Sonic 3 really kicks into top gear in these massive levels.

All tactical players should be aware of another re-start position here.

SPECIAL

So, you think you're special, eh? If you do, jump through this wall and try your luck in the Zone.

SPECIAL

Leap through the wall and enter a strange and mysterious world. A must for all you serious gamers.

ROBOTNIK'S NEW BADNIKS

Badder-than-bad, that's the Badniks! There are five new meanies to contend with in this the last level, and they're detailed to the right. Some of these Badniks will shoot energy-balls at you. Remember, even if you keep your distance, their energy weapon can still harm you.

When confronted by a host of Badnik's, watch their attack patterns and act accordingly to avoid or kill them. Remember to take advantage of Tails and any power-ups you possess. The Spin-Dash-Attack is highly effective against any nasties. Sadly, even if you master the Badniks, the terrain on the last levels is lethal, so watch your back!

SNAIL BLASTER

This critter is found stuck to the sides of walls, firing off lethal energy-balls. The solutions simple — spin him to death and you won't go far wrong.

ORBINAUT

A tricky foe to defeat, the Orbinaut has four lethal spike-balls to hurt you with. He can be killed if you leap into his face. That'll teach 'im!

FLYBOT767

This bird-thing swoops down on you from above.

DEATHBOT

This is a special kind of Badnik you find towards the end of the Launch-Pad Zone. He's vulnerable in the centre, but watch out for his arms!

RIBOT

This croaky fellow swings a huge iron-ball, causing you no end of grief. Swiftly jump up and hit his body to kill him.

Grab hold of this hand-rail and swing across the gap.

As this is the final Act it's a sound idea to activate the re-start points. This re-start point is as good a place as any to get started.

Jump up and hit this switch to grab some yummy power-ups. You can almost taste them now, can't you?

Power up

So, you want ten rings, eh? Right my son, hit the switch and jump down here. They're all yours now!

1-UP

ROBOTNIK

DON'T TOUCH! Once you activate this power-up, it's curtains for you mister! Please don't ignore this warning!

ROBOTNIK

SPECIAL

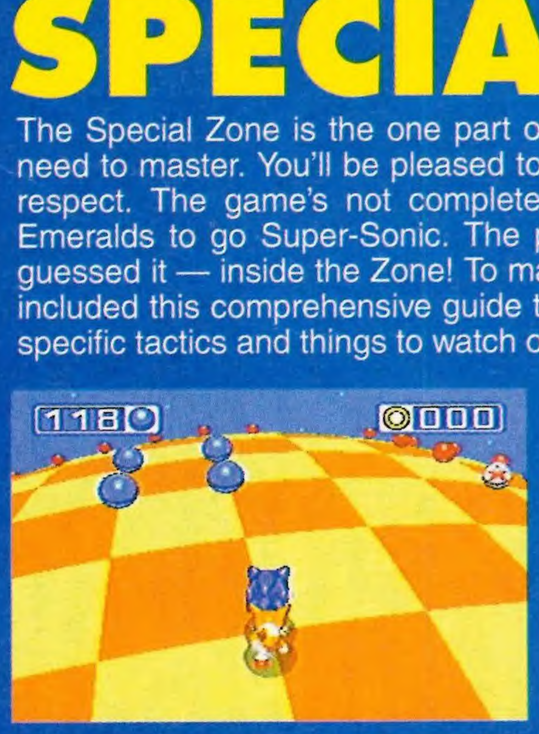

Walk through the wall to reach the super-duper Special Zone! It's all detailed below, fact-fans!

SPECIAL ZONE

The Special Zone is the one part of any Sonic game you can be sure you need to master. You'll be pleased to know that Sonic 3 is no different in this respect. The game's not complete until Sonic's collected enough Chaos Emeralds to go Super-Sonic. The place to get the Emeralds? Yep, you've guessed it — inside the Zone! To make your life just a little bit simpler, we've included this comprehensive guide to the ins and outs of the Zone, detailing specific tactics and things to watch out for. We're nice like that you see!

Hidden in every level of every Act, are a batch of giant gold rings. The hardest parts locating them, which is where all these lovely maps come in handy. Jump into the rings to reach the 3-D Special Zone. To have any chance of getting an Emerald you need to collect all the blue-coloured spheres. This isn't easy, as there are loads of red spheres to avoid.

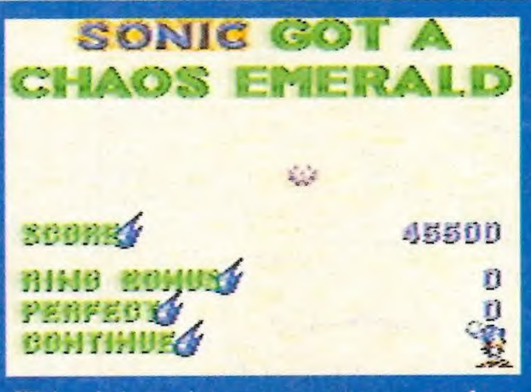

If you touch a red sphere, your time in the Special Zone is up. The best bets to run around square formations of blue spheres. This changes them into gold rings, which you can collect. The speed of the Special Zone is fast and furious, but after a few goes it shouldn't cause you any problems. But that's not all, there's also the bumper spheres to tell you about, so read on.

The white spheres are bumpers which you bounce you way off course. This can prove disastrous, to correct the fault turn around so you're going forward once again.

When you collect all the blue-coloured spheres, you automatically receive that most-wanted of items: the Chaos Emerald! Remember though, one Emerald is just not enough to satisfy an appetite as insatiable as Sonics!

This (above) represents a perfect Special Zone. if you've got a Chaos Emerald, a high-score and a Continue it's perfect! We at SEGA XS always play a perfect game, so it comes as no surprise really.

Here are some tips for completing the game and making sure all the hard work in the Special Zone isn't wasted:

1. When you get hit by a Badnik, spike or any other obstacle, quickly re-grab as many rings as possible.
2. Keep an eye out for hidden rooms in the game (our maps will help you).
3. Use your Spin attack to get out of tricky situations.
4. When you finish an act, hit the sign a few times for some unexpected power-ups .

The Launch Base is a superb level full of colour and diversity. Travel along huge revolving steel tubes and take rides in cushy futuristic lifts, which by coincidence also revolve! There's so much spinning in this level you're likely to become a little bit dizzy, but try and keep a steady head. If nothing else simply marvel at the unravelling world with all its strange wonders and weird pitfalls. Magic stuff!

Level 1-2

ROBOTNIK

Do not attempt to grab this cruel power-down. You may loose all your rings or a life.

ROBOTNIK

Fire breathing stone-heads lie scattered around some of the down shafts. Take it easy and time your runs.

Jump on the hook to let it pull you across this line.and over the gap.

Use this lift to reach higher levels.

These devices jettison Sonic across the landscape at speed. Prepare to zoom in the direction the tube next door is facing via the wild hoop ride.

SUPER

Jump on the power ups to get the extra rings. It's as easy as taking candy from a baby!

RING

Activate this handy position marker.

This tube revolves, takes Sonic with it. If you see a Badnik near the tube try not to get dragged into it's path.

Use this platform to swap lifts midway between the two.

Nearly home and dry now so get ready for the final show-down of the Act.

Agh! It's Robotnik again in one of his spherical flying machines. Bounce him into oblivion.

Pointdexters need close scrutiny to judge their movements. Use the spring next to the Pointdexter to get to the level to the top right.

A neat revolving elevator for Sonic to sit in to reach higher platforms. No need to even waste energy, just sit back and enjoy the ride.

IRON FIST!

The penultimate guardian is surprisingly easy to beat. Simply wait for the robot to emerge from one of three floating doors. As soon as the robot starts rotating and swinging it's two spiked arms run to the corner of the room. When the arms stop spinning launch the usual bounce attack, retreating once the cycle begins again. The guardian's almost beaten when one of his arms explodes; a couple more attacks and it's all over.

Watch out for Badniks as they try to thwart your every move. Don't these guys ever learn; Sonic can't be scared off!

Keep moving and don't hang about. The best way to reach the end of the stage is to ensure Sonic's not caught out by the slow-moving Badniks.

SPECIAL ZONE

Enter via tube to the right. Then enter tube to high levels. Tricky to get at, but worth it.!

A stonking great level for a tiny blue animal and his mate to negotiate. Full of tubes, lifts and all sorts of nasty looking baddies. The pace is as menacing as usual and Sonic may find himself thrown around quite a lot by the powerful trajectory cannons. The huge turning coil is here again, and a good sense of perspective is needed to time the jumps well.

Robotnik power ups may pose a problem but there are plenty of Special Zones for the pair of manic munchkins to sink their teeth into. These Zones are trickier to reach than usual but well worth the effort. There are also Underwater Zones, ranging from small pockets and pools to huge underwater caverns. Air bubbles are definitely worth finding or it's a case of two dead animals in the water tank and none of us want that do we!

Level 2-1

You need to spin to get speed up on these slippery tubes.

After finding the right place to jump onto this overhang it starts to collapse, so get your skates on!

Grab the hook on the wire or use the coiled tube below. The choice is yours, either way it's all very straightforward.

SPECIAL ZONE

Use the tube on the right to get into the room and stomp your way through bonus central.

SUPER RING

Enter from the right. There's also a handy 1-UP to grab for an extra life. Not a bad catch.

1-UP

Get in using the tube on the right after negotiating a steep climb. Nothing could be easier.

1-UP

Watch out for the bad guys who shoot you for a pastime if you're not extra careful.

The ball and chain poses a threat to our brave pair, especially when surrounded by Badniks. Try and take them all out before passing the ball and chain.

Grab the hook to be pulled across the crevice to safety and swing off at the end.

SPECIAL ZONE

Fight your way into this Special Zone room and have a field day with the bonuses.

BONUS ROOM

Collect 50 or more rings in a single act and jump into an activated star-post. On entering this bonus stage, you find a massive gumball machine, each gumball being a useful power up or 1-UP. Turn the crank on the machine to release a gumball. Then it's party time!

This is the final level. Unbelievable as it may seem, we've finally reached that sacred milestone. Who would have thought, 40 pages ago, such things were possible? Raise a glass and shout "Three Cheers" for the SEGA XS crew. We did it — a massive solution, fraught with perils, and that was just Mark's caption boxes.

Anyway, this is the ultimate level. Fall at this hurdle and you'll never forgive yourself. Nights will be broken by horrific nightmares about what might have been, if only you jumped that last yawning chasm with a bit more care.

Level 2-2

Run through these portals and keep on running left.

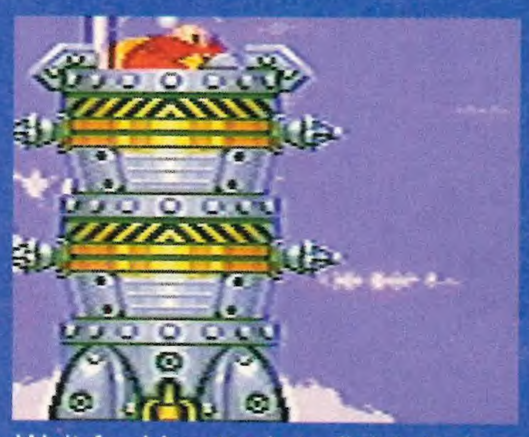

Spin-Drive through this wall and burst out the other side at speed, obliterating any Badnik in your path.

Jump into these Super-Spin-Saucer-Tubs whenever you see them. They're scattered all around the level and transport you ever closer to the final showdown with mean old Robotnik.

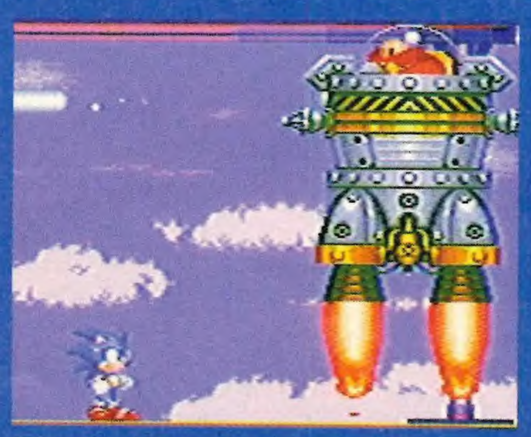

THE FINAL SHOWDOWN!

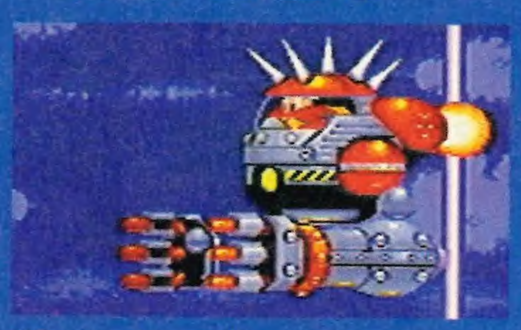

Jump up at Robotnik on the top-right and keep spinning into him to kill this robot. However, Robotnik's only warming up, this is the first of many showdowns.

Wait for his attack to finish before leaping in for the kill.

The craft has lost a section, keep going, he's nearly defeated.

The final guardian packs a powerful punch. Jump up at his face to bring him down a peg or two! Watch out for his massive claws and everything will be alright.

Power-up Sonic with these handy TV sets that we didn't put in a Power-up box! The reason being they're only Super Rings, which aren't really vital at this late stage.

Once on these tubes, you zoom through the level at breakneck speed.

Let yourself get hit by the bumpers and then just go with the flow!

Hit these switches to activate sliding walls and platforms in the level.

Collect ten rings here.

Be sure to activate the re-start point as you motor by!

They think it's all over...

"You join me in the commentary box with Terry, as the game's final seconds tick away!"
"That's right Bob! Sonic has defeated the evil Dr Robotnik on his home turf. What a guy!"
"But hang on Terry, it looks as if we haven't seen the last of this evil, old Egg-head!"

"Oh! And why is that, Bob?"
"Well, to complete the game correctly, Sonic has to collect all the Chaos Emeralds! At the moment this appears beyond his grasp."

"Hang on it looks like you spoke too early, Bob! The lad's now gone all yellow and super!"
"I do believe you're right, Terry! What a guy, eh? What a guy!"
"That's right, Bob! The game's over and the crowd appear to be satisfied with the result. What a thrilling finish! Final Score: Sonic 5 000 000, Robotnik 0!"

It is now!

ROMANIA

Your quest begins in Romania. A country famous for revolutions and Communist dictators — now overthrown. Although things don't seem to have improved since their removal. Careful, bit of politics creeping in!
This is also a country renowned for being the place where Dracula's castle's situated and this game certainly proves that. Zombies, bats, wolfs, vampires and more ghoulies than you can shake a stick at await you! Enter at your peril...

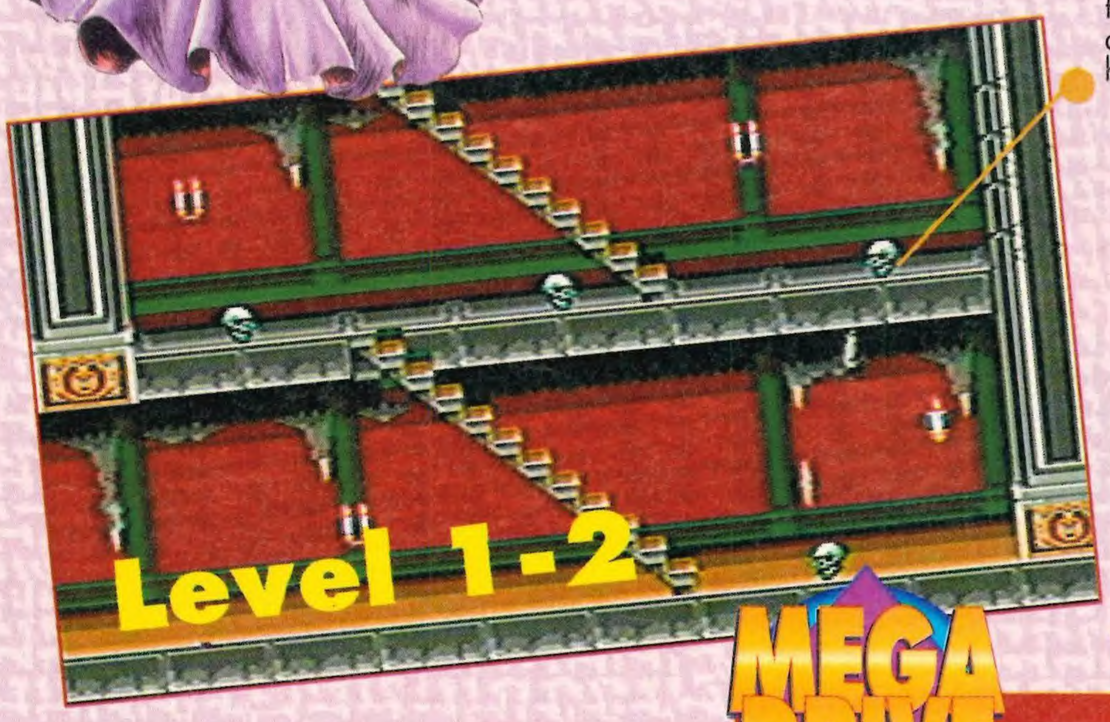

Whip these torches and pick up a juicy bonus. This can range from extra points to special weapons. Get whipping!

These Zombies are an ugly bunch, who are probably victims of playing Sonic 3 too much. Looking at the state of this rabble, reminds me of the SEGA XS crew after a hard nights sweat and toil!

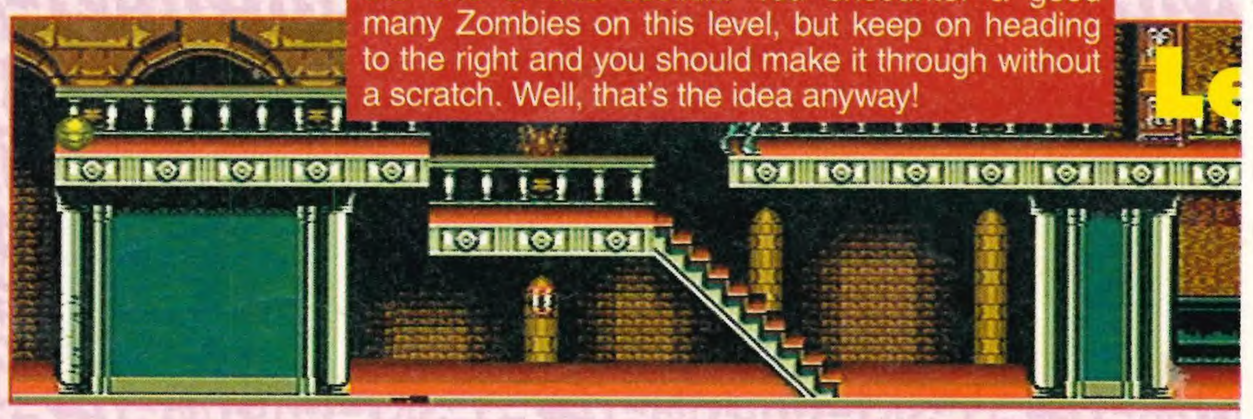

These rickety stairs may not look safe, but they're the best bet if you want to avoid the Zombies.

Skeletons emerge from the floor here. Kill all the baddies and collect all the bonuses hidden behind the candles.

You emerge here from the dangers of the piranha-man tank. Expect to meet a mid-stage guardian at the end of this section. You encounter a good many Zombies on this level, but keep on heading to the right and you should make it through without a scratch. Well, that's the idea anyway!

MEGA DRIVE

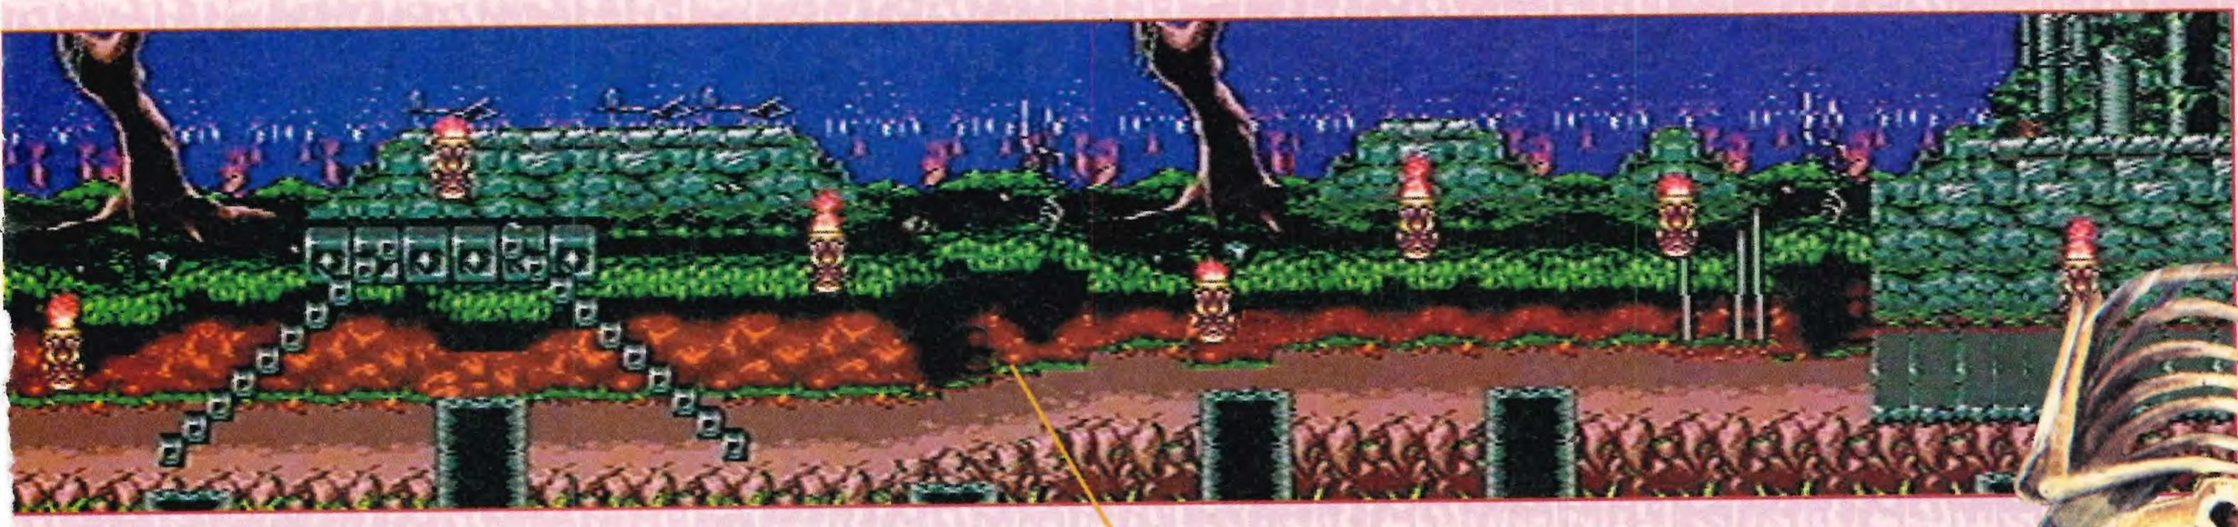

VERY SPOOKY PLATFORM ADVENTURE ● KONAMI

CASTLEVANIA THE NEW GENERATION

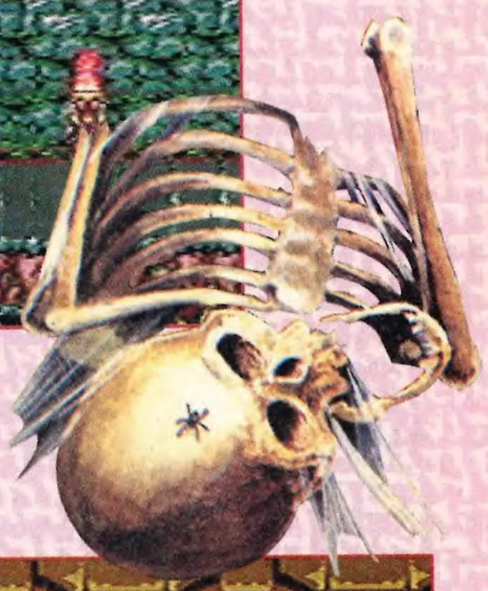

A smash hit (mate!) on the Nintendo systems, Konami's release of this little beauty on the Mega Drive isn't before time!

As we all know, the Mega Drive is far superior to the over-rated Super NES anyday, and this game proves it. Without any namby-pamby mode 7 to help it out, this game manages to dot a bit of rotation here and there (especially on level three). The game also gives us some crazy effects. You'll only see what these are if you play the game though, so I recommend that you all go out and buy it.

Hang on, no I don't! I get enough 'phone calls from people stuck on games without Castlevania adding to it all (Just joking!) Anyway, on with the solution...

Trudge along, whipping these torches as you go to collect loads of goodies. Easy-peasy!

Walk across this landing, and, on the other side break the far-wall for a bonus.

This candle often gives you a tasty weapon to bash those naughty ghoulies with. It's a good idea to save weapons for the guardian's.

Level 1-2

This section goes underground to the home of the Dracula families pet piranha-men. These are feisty young fellows and require a couple of hits to kill.

Take care while jumping across these platforms as you die if you fall into the underground river. Remember to collect the power-ups hidden in the candles...

More candle-bustin' to be done here. Jump up next to the candle and press the fire button to destroy it. Then walk into the power-up to collect it. Simple, eh!

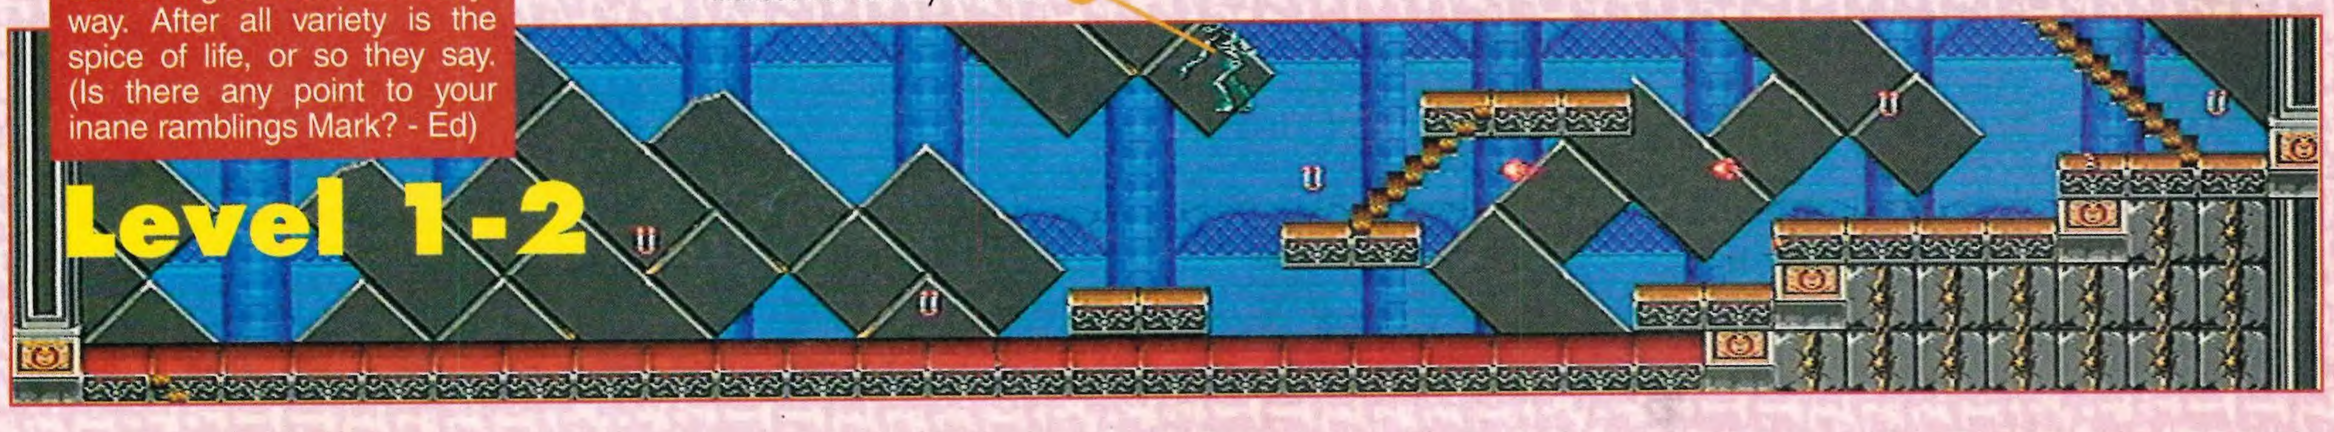

HELL-HOUND

Stand to the far-left of this hell-hound and destroy him with a special weapon. If you're weaponless, time your whips to coincide with his howls and then jump to safety.

The action's definitely hotting up now, but still no sign of any bloody Vampires! Will we see any on the next stage? Lets hope so, it gives me something to write about anyway. After all variety is the spice of life, or so they say. (Is there any point to your inane ramblings Mark? - Ed)

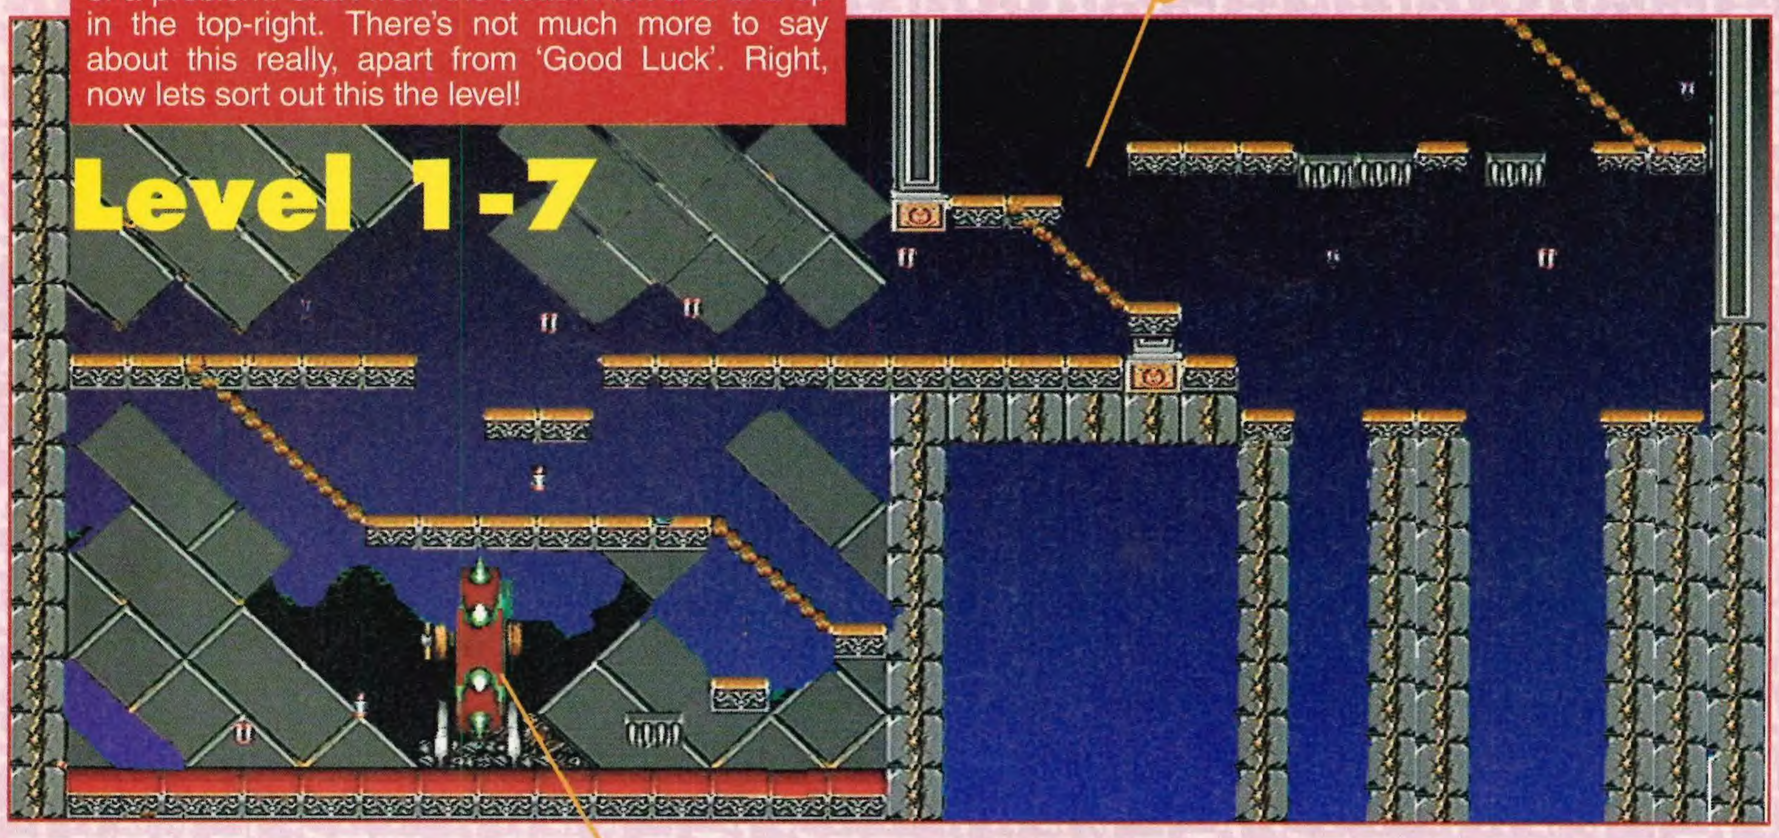

These skeletons make a variety of high-flying jumps as you approach, making it more difficult to kill them. It's a good idea to learn their manoeuvres before you attack.

Level 1-7

Encounter many a demon from hell in this stage as well as a few rather nasty jumps to make. This isn't too hard to complete and shouldn't pose too much of a problem. Start from the bottom-left and end up in the top-right. There's not much more to say about this really, apart from 'Good Luck'. Right, now lets sort out this the level!

A rather naughty skeleton swings a fierce looking morning star here. Use the whip when he pauses.

This big spike-wheel won't hurt you, it's part of the background. The rotating spike-platform, on the other hand, is a pain in the neck!

Level 1-8

MORE skeletons than you can kill. MORE candles than you can collect. MORE platforms than you can walk on. This level has it all, including a rather devious pendulum that needs to be jumped over and a ruthless morning star wielding skeleton. Apart from that, it's a piece of cake.

Level 1-9

This level moves outside the castle and you have to ascend a huge skeleton before you can complete it. As the captions explain, the skeleton has a few tricks up it's sleeve for the unwary, so it's vital to be extra vigilant.

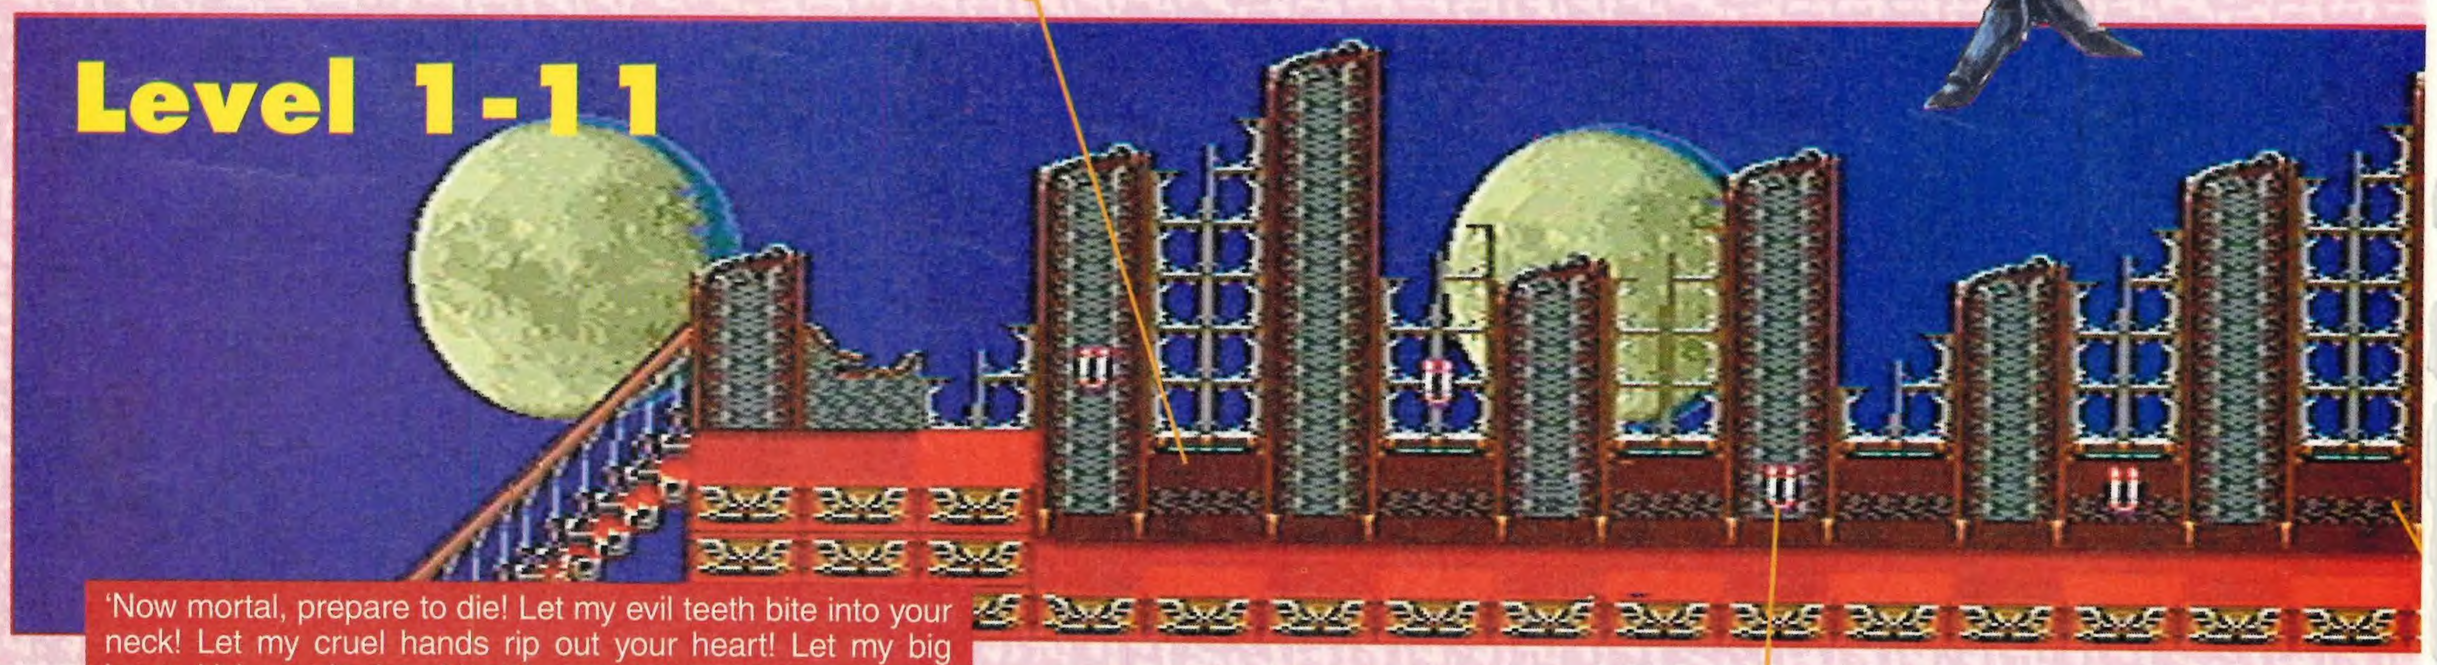

Whatever you do, don't pause on this backbone. The bone segments give way when they're touched, so keep running!

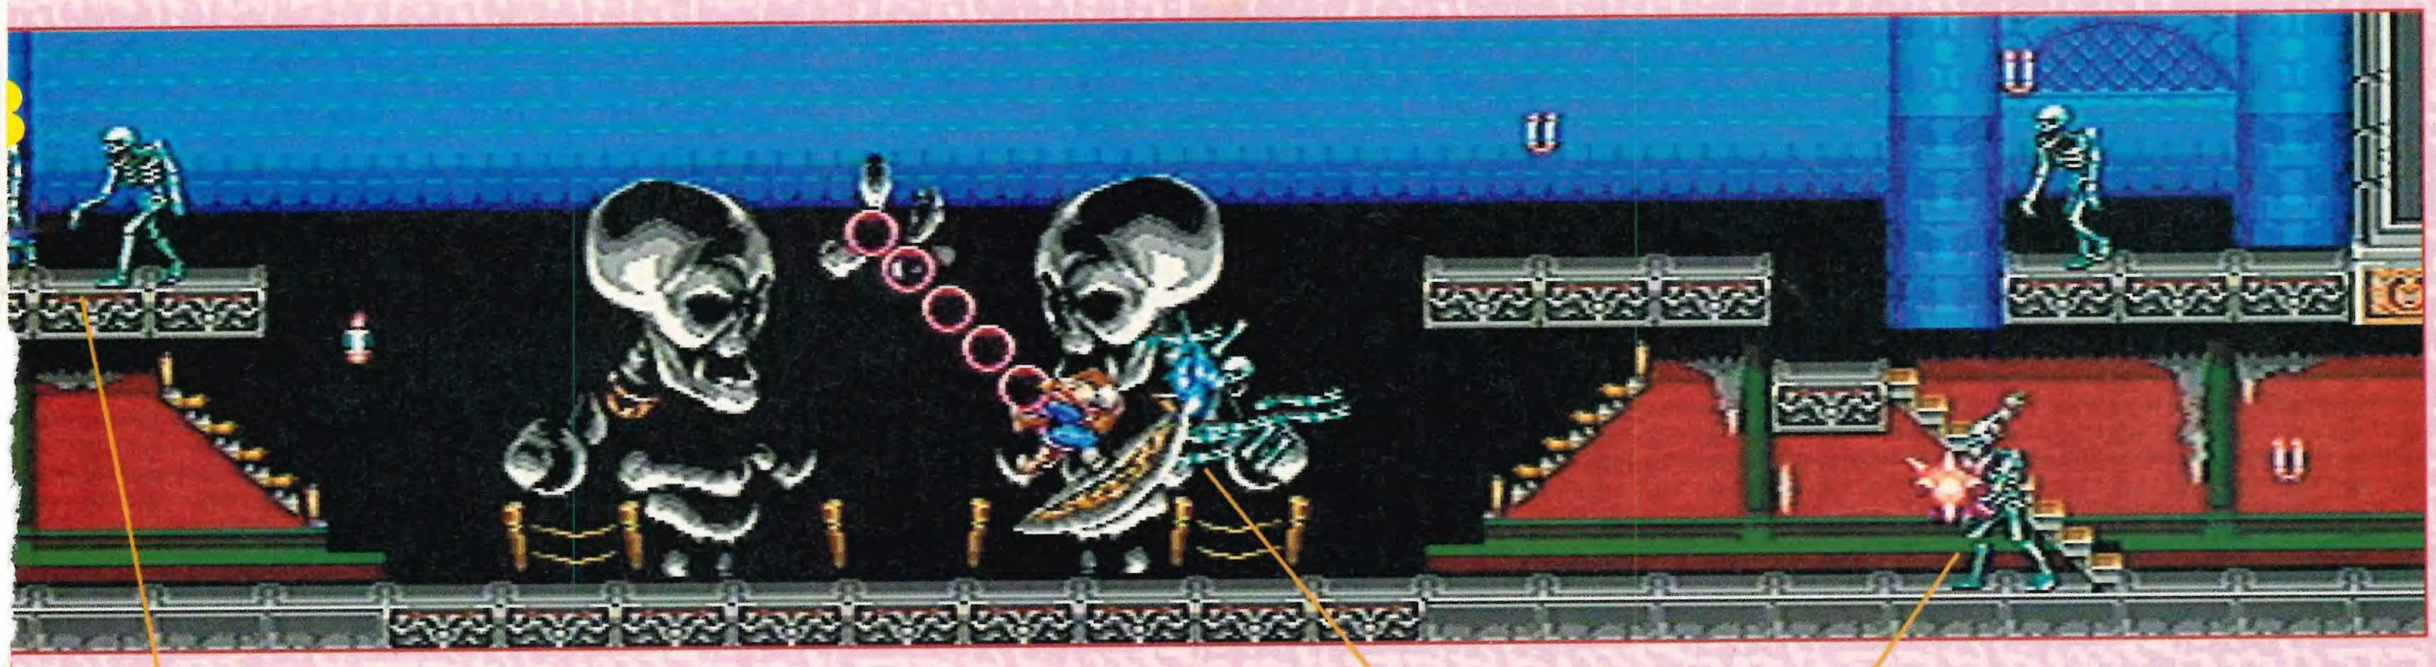

Move swiftly through this section. There's plenty of beasties out to get you, but the quicker you are the more energy's left to face the guardian.

Level 1-11

'Now mortal, prepare to die! Let my evil teeth bite into your neck! Let my cruel hands rip out your heart! Let my big boots kick you in the shins! Let my huge, er, tongue rasp you to death! Let my...' Yes, yes, I think we get the message. This, if you haven't guessed, is the guardian and he isn't too happy to see you, I can tell ya!

If you haven't got a special weapon try the candles here. Remember a guardian's not so cocky when you're lobbing an axe at him!

Watch out for the skeleton gang on this platform, these guys are at their most deadly when hunting in packs. Try running underneath the platform to avoid them.

As this pendulum swings towards you, jump over it. This is all about timing, but, if done right, you can kill the dumb skeleton chasing you.

The skeleton guarding the end of this section swings a huge mace that gets closer to you as it gathers momentum. Wait until the swing is at it's lowest point and give him a few whacks.

Level 1-10

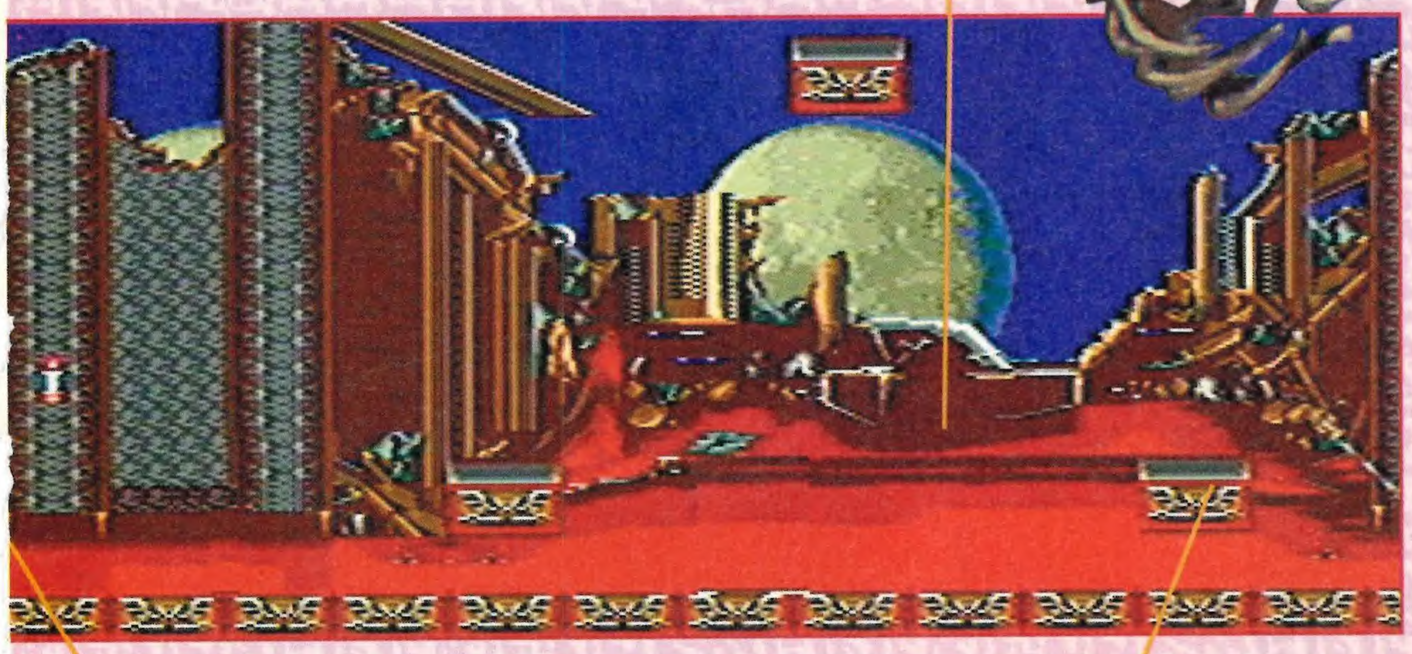

This is the entrance to Dracula's evil inner sanctum. It's full of lovely candles to whip and power-up with. This is a short stage and shouldn't pose any problems. The biggest trouble is the snake but, once defeated, he stays defeated, leaving you free to continue your epic quest.

This slippery customer takes a few hits before he bites the bullet, or, in this case, whip! Once he's out of the way jump onto the platform to the right and then ascend the stairs.

It is here that you meet the Death Knight (check out our Guardian guide to see what he looks like), very Monty Pythonesqe he is too. He reminds us of the character in The Quest For The Holy Grail. What do you think — answers on a postcard please.

Always remember there's no shame in avoiding a confrontation. It's possible to jump any of the undead if they cause too many problems.

When the Death Knight appears it's possible to avoid his blows by cowering behind these platforms. Only the foolhardy launch mindless attacks!

DEATH KNIGHT

The Death Knight's easily killed; if you know how! Stand in front of him, firing away, and when he jumps over you, turn around and continue firing. Alternatively, stay at a distance and use your special weapon on him. He can't hurt you from a distance, but beware of his long jumping ability! As you whip away, parts of him will fall off. When he dies all that's left is a torso, his arms and legs are long gone!

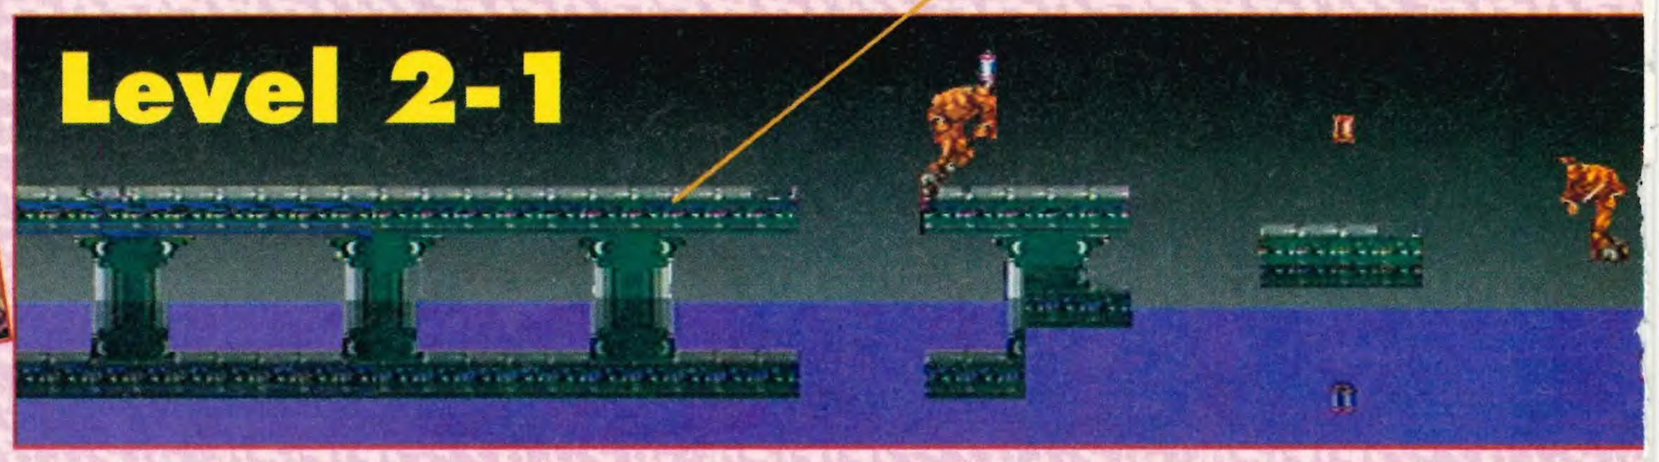

GREECE

Level 2-1

This is the first stage to include the minotaur. These beasts are half bull, half man, which explains why they're fairly slow, but keep coming back for more.Use the whip from a distance to sort them out.

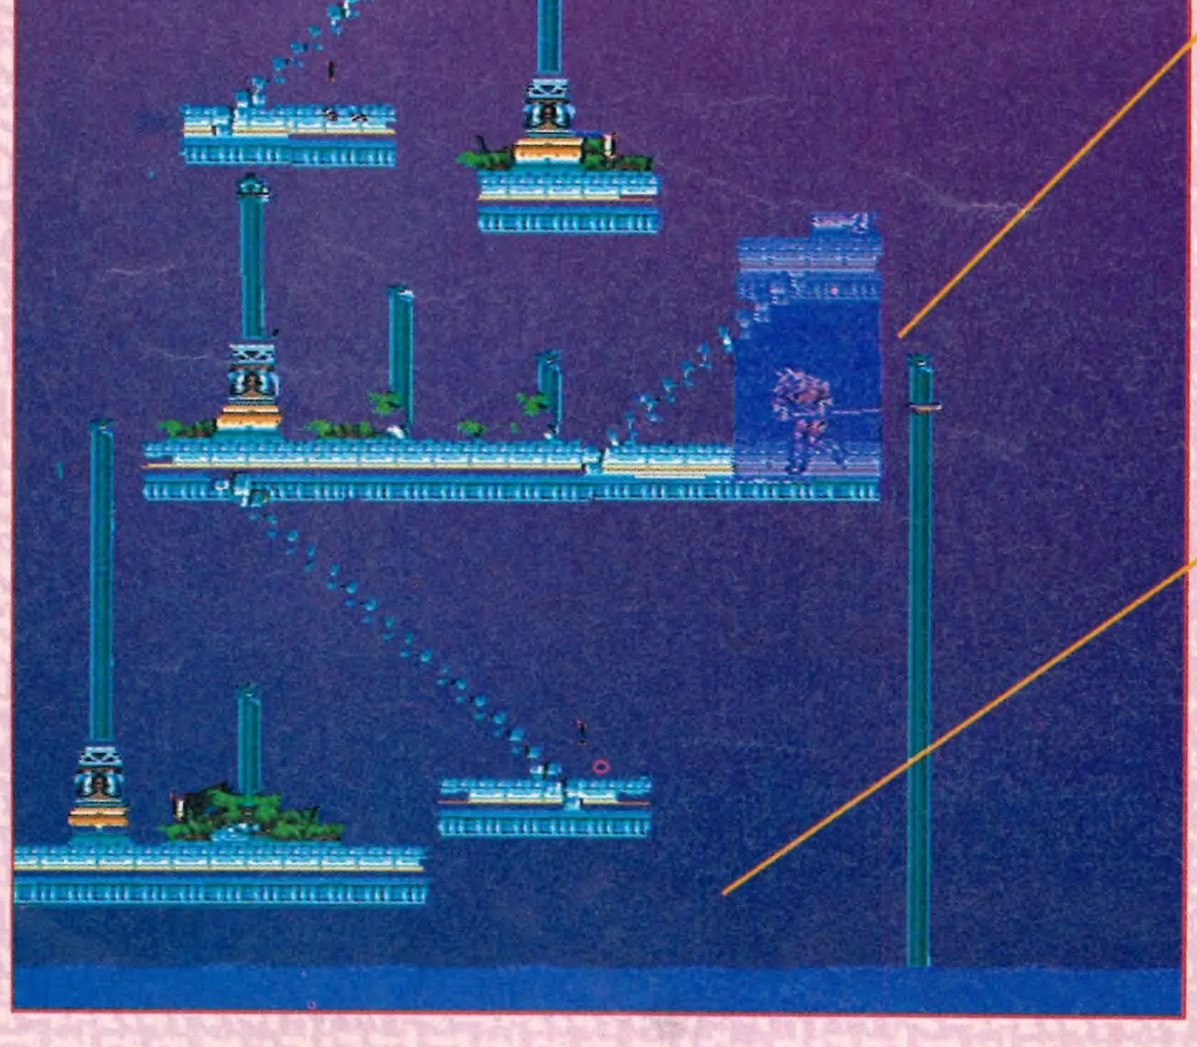

Dracula's pet Piranha-Men make another appearance here. Whip them to death before they have time to unfurl their enormous tongues and give you a good lashing!

The Minotaur guarding this platform's a real handful. He starts hitting you before you've even climbed the stairs. Wait for him to swing before leaping up and launching an attack. Don't forget, you have to be quick. The water's always getting closer!

Level 2-2

Climb up through the city in a race against a continually rising flood. There's many dangers here, but your main problem is killing the rather rude Minotaurs attempting to halt your brave progress. Remember, one fall means disaster if the water catches up with you! Gulp!

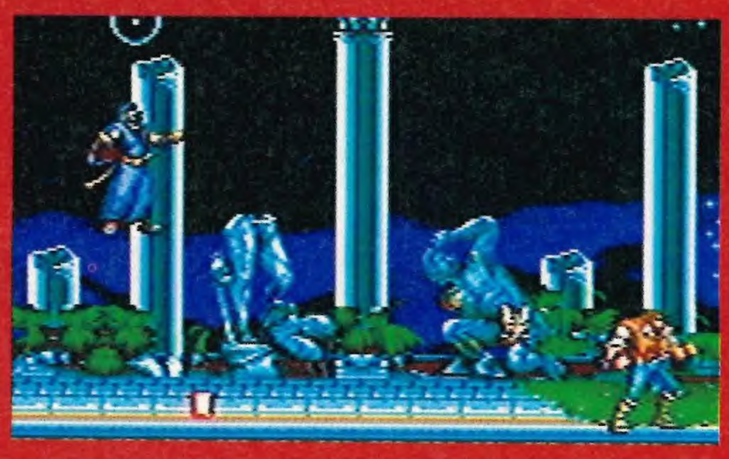

This minotaur can be a tad tricky to kill, so try running past him. It saves precious time.

Always keep ahead of the rising water. It's very dark and probably smells horrible, so try not to fall in it!

Level 2-3

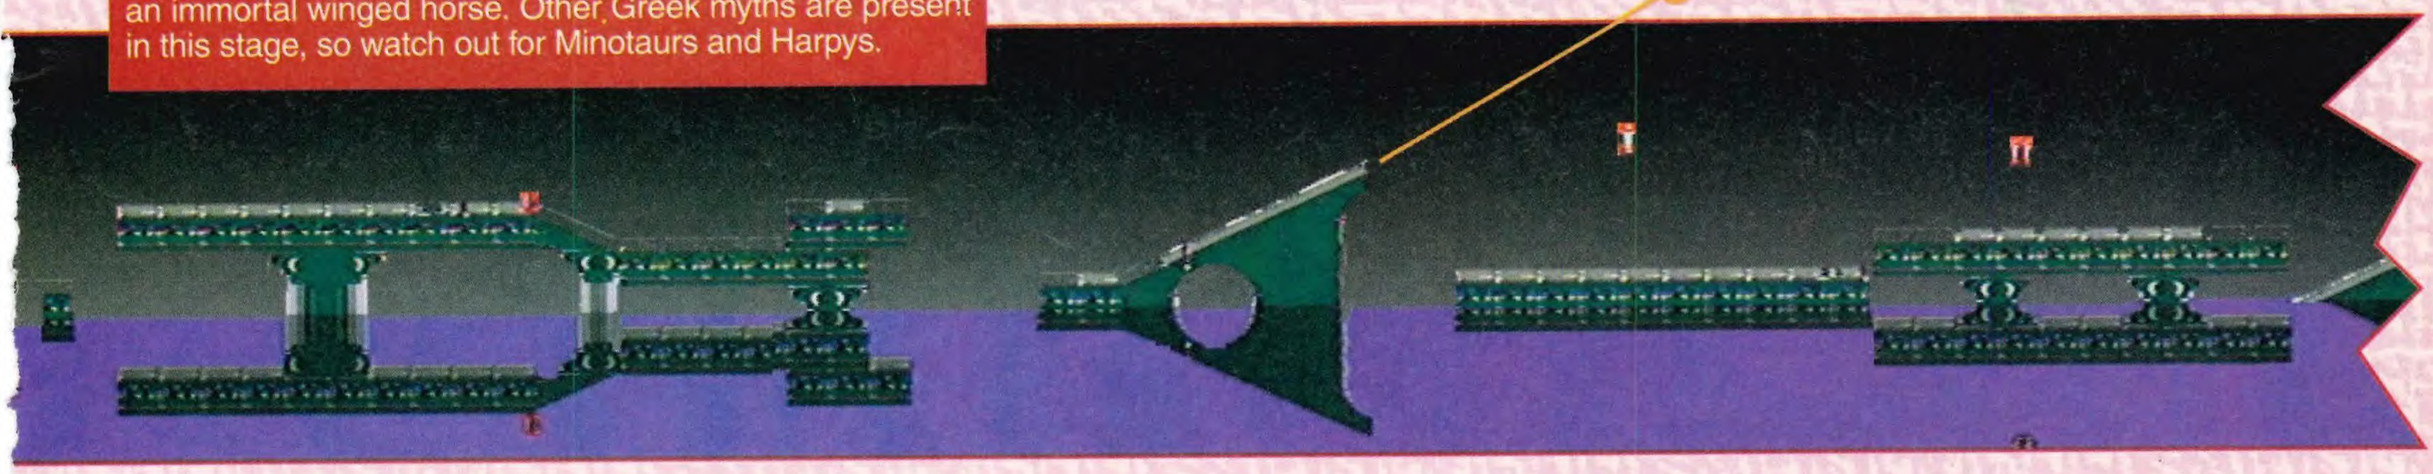

To kill this annoying person, leap up and diagonally hit him. Once this is done, he vanishes and appears again on the other side of the screen. Turn around and hit him again. This cycle keeps going until one of you falls. The rising water makes matter worse.

The second stage brings you into the ancient and mystical land of Greece: the home of legends of Greek myth such as Oedipus (Ask Mark about his complex!) and Pegasus, an immortal winged horse. Other Greek myths are present in this stage, so watch out for Minotaurs and Harpys.

Although it looks like you can walk off the edge of this platform, don't! Despite the short distance it needs a jump to reach the next platform.

Level 2-4

Get ready to kill some crows. They fly into the air and swoop down onto you, so whip them beakless.

There's nothing to cause too much grief in this section. The only bother's a couple of birds to the far right and a crazed sorcerer who I describe in a separate box. Aren't I kind to you? No don't answer that!

KNIGHT, KNIGHT!

Although only one's evident here, there are in fact two knights to deal with. Being a poor, humble staffwriter, I was pretty intimidated by these two bozo's. How do you kill them? Well, it's quite simple really. Stand right next to the first one and simply whip away (as shown in the top picture). As for the second one, use a special weapon on him, while standing at a distance. Ten hits later and he's a goner... It takes time, but it works.

Cunningly press diagonally down to descend these stairs.

After killing the two knights, walk to the right and descend the stairs. Where are you going? The answer, my friend, isn't blowing in the wind, but rather over the next page...

Level 2-5

Level 2-6

Jump onto a floating platform. Watch out for the floating Medusas heads. Duck under them, or jump them, if your whippings not up to scratch.

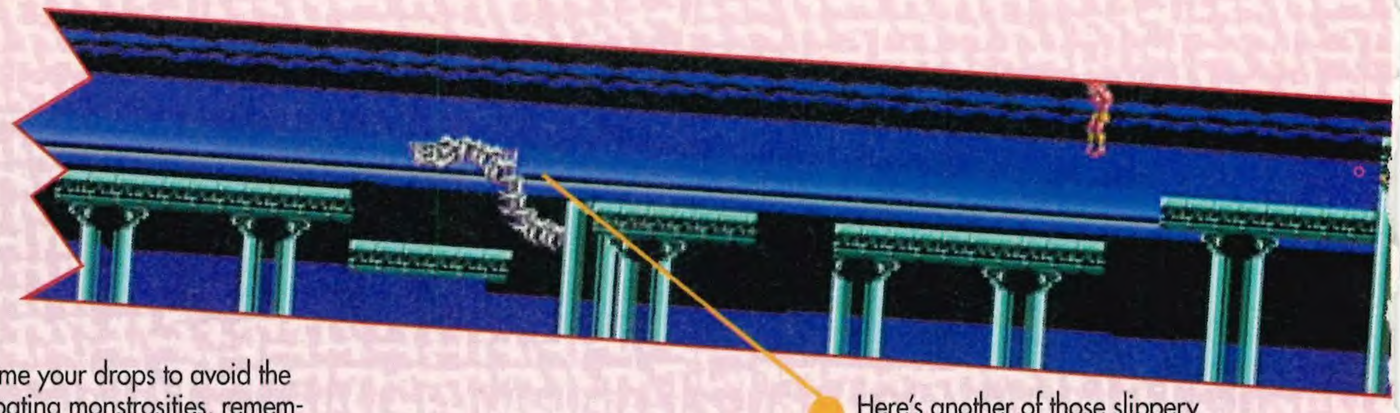

Time your drops to avoid the floating monstrosities, remember what they say, one look from Medusa and you turn to stone.

Once again, the water plays a major factor in this level. This time you have to keep up with the scroll or risk being crushed at the top of the screen. Go too fast on the other hand and fall to your death. Use the floating platforms to aid your journey and you just might be home for tea!

Level 2-7

This area features a rather nice falling statue head and most impressive it is too! Gobsmacking! Other than that it's all a matter of keeping a cool head and taking everything slowly and carefully.

Here's another of those slippery customers! Whip his head a few times to kill him.

Get a power-up here to help as the level gets more frenetic.

Level 2-8

Whip these candles and collect the power-ups. If you dare! Ha, Ha, Ha!

These two minotaurs charge full pelt at you, so get in first and whip them to death.

There's plenty of opportunities to power-up in this level as you can tell by the amount of candles scattered around. There's still no sign of Dracula, but keep an eye out for him as he might pop up at anytime! As well as all the candles scattered around, you also have, rather unluckily, some pesky minotaurs to deal with. There's always a downside!

GOLEM

To give this beast a good spanking, stand in front of him, jump up and whip his body. When you've done this whip his chest and lastly his head. Keep an eye on his energy bar to see how you're doing and watch out for his vicious fists of fury.
Also watch out for the falling rocks, avoid these by walking left or right. This is a bit of a depressing guardian really, because when he's near death he scratches his head in obvious pain. Anyone of a sensitive disposition will find this most distressing. The poor devil almost seems human.

ITALY

Ahhh - Italia! World-famous for it's pizzas, Ferrari's and smelly canals. Start this level outside the world famous Leaning Tower and battle through legions of evil creatures. It shouldn't be too hard!

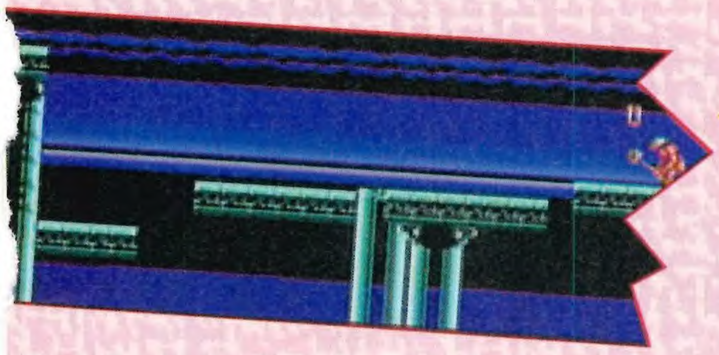

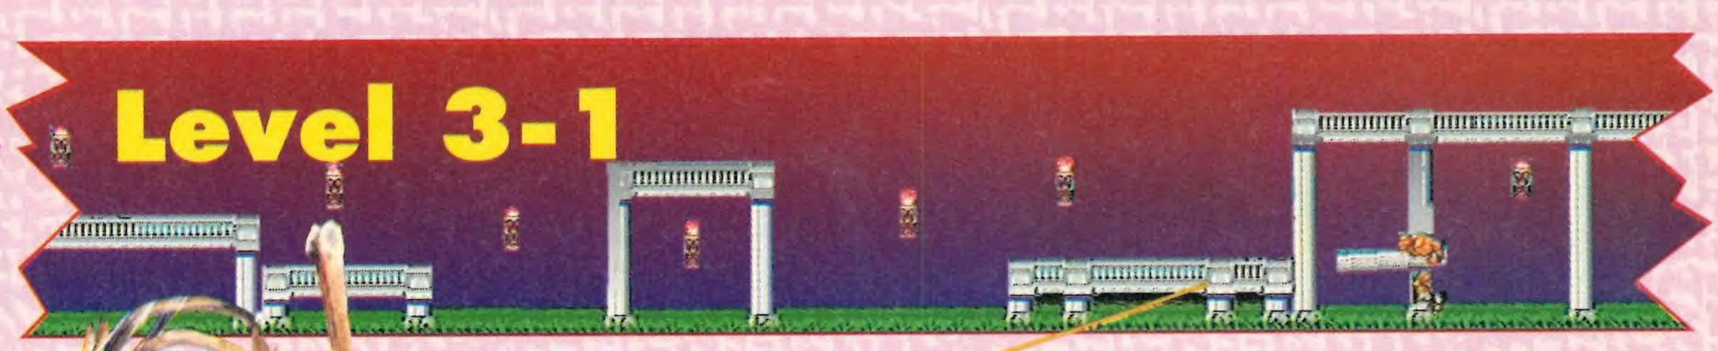

Whip Cleopatras (well, it is isn't it?) neck and her head will fall off! You can then walk over her stump and continue.

Watch out for the harpy's that swoop down on you. The best bets to keep running.

Level 3-1

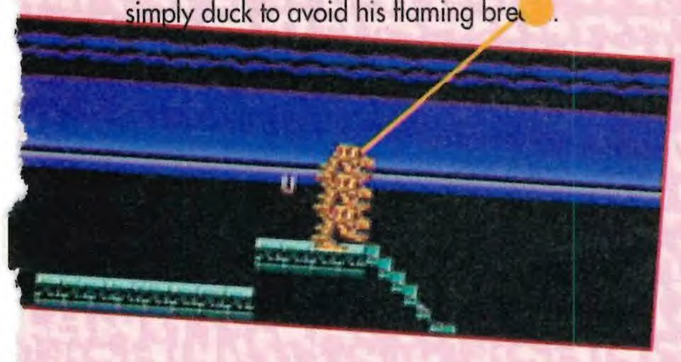

This minotaur will attempt to play a bit of baseball with your head. Keep your distance and give him a good whipping.

Take a bash at this candle, a power-up's handy as this stage progresses.

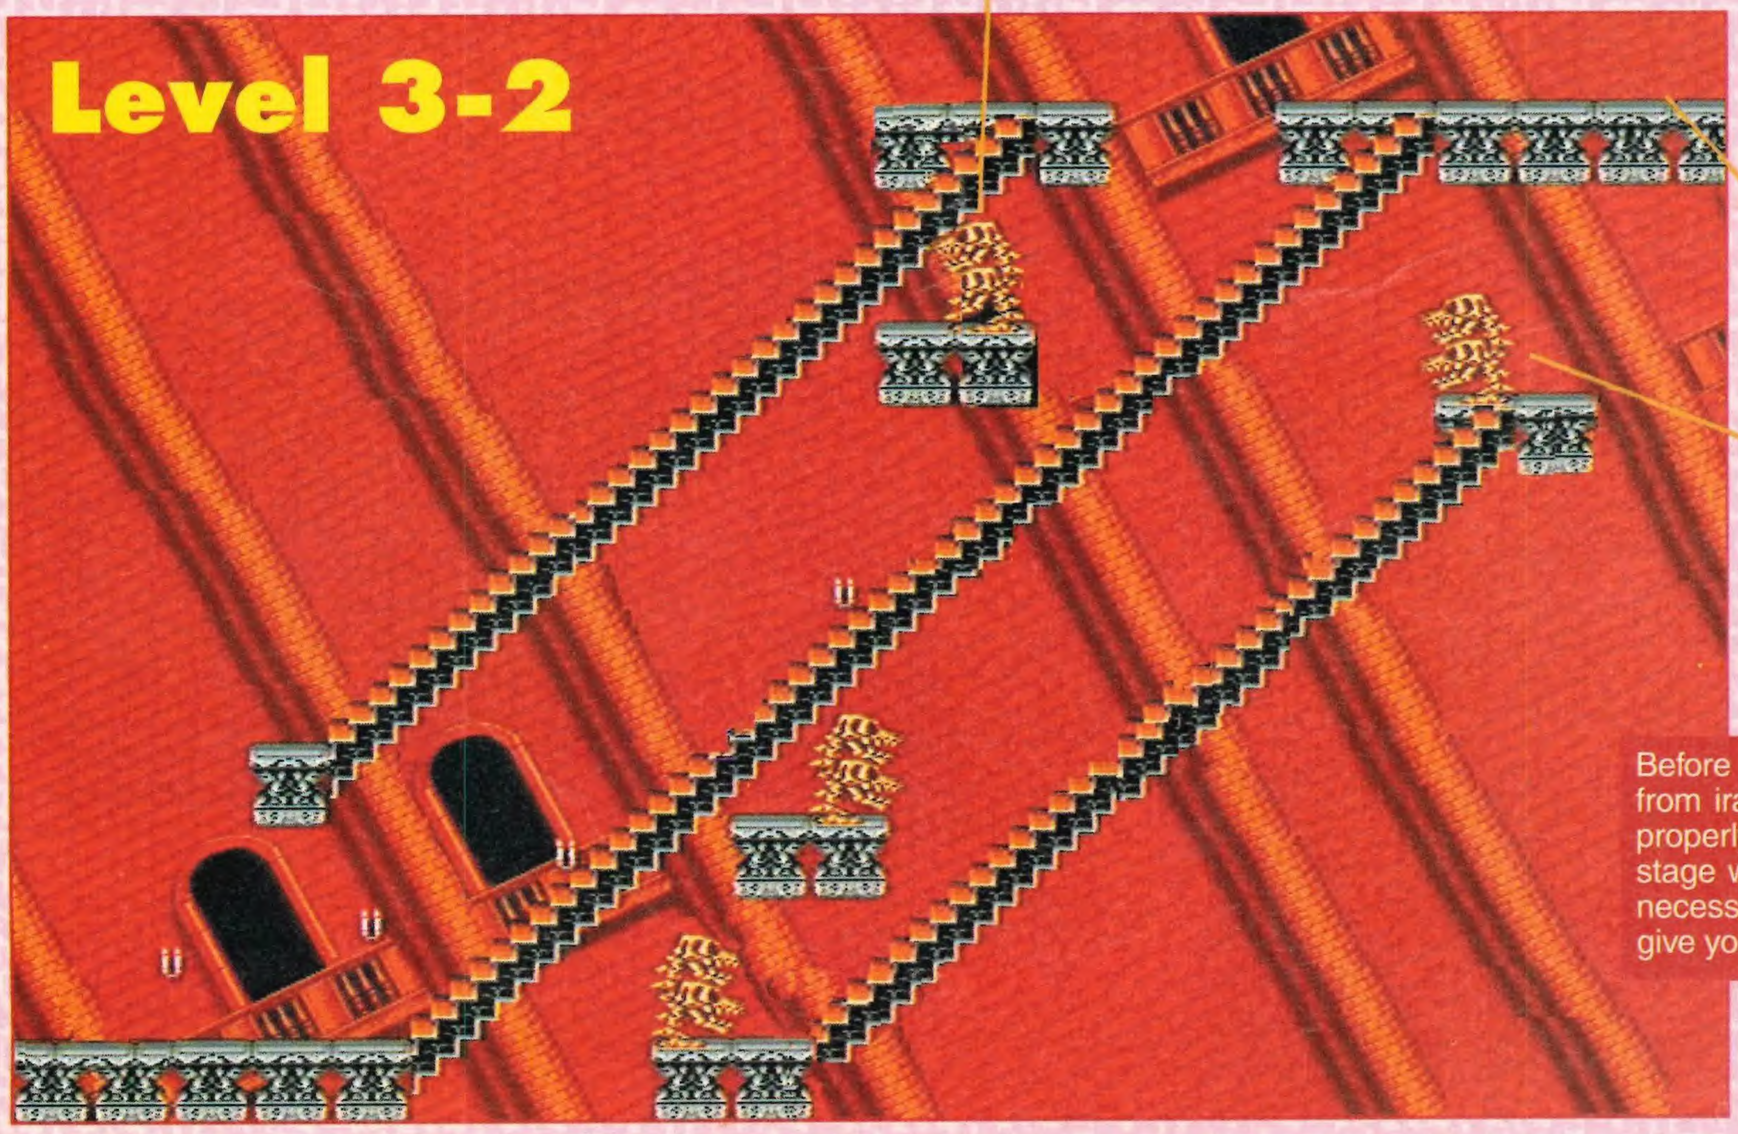

These Demonic-Dog-Heads stand between you and the end of the stage. If you have a special weapon stand on the lower platform and keep firing. When the beast fires simply duck to avoid his flaming bre[illegible].

Watch out for the energy balls these skeli-dogs spew.

Level 3-2

Walk across here to finish the stage.

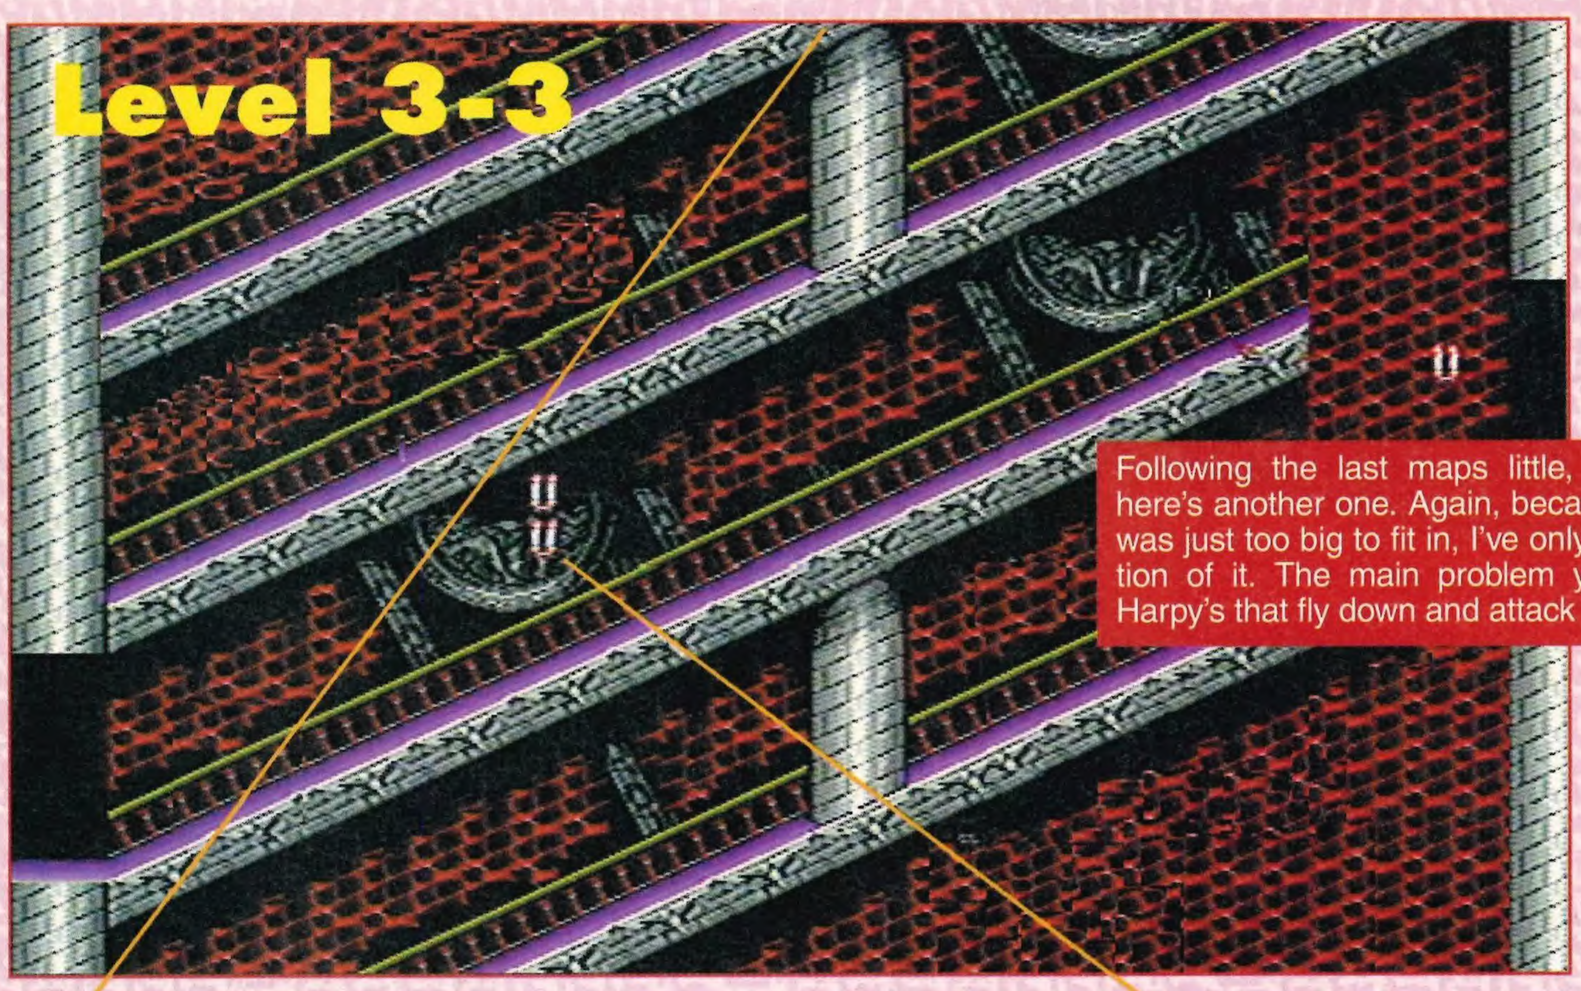

Kill these Dogs-heads before you walk past them.

Before I receive thousands of letters from irate readers that I didn't map this properly, I already know! The actual stage was so huge and similar it wasn't necessary to cover it all. This segment give you an idea of what's what.

Following the last maps little, ahem, sniping, here's another one. Again, because the full map was just too big to fit in, I've only included a portion of it. The main problem you have is the Harpy's that fly down and attack you.

Handy-hint no. 137: jump up a few platforms until you see a ledge leading to the right. Walk through to skip a stage!

A few more candles can be plundered here...

I'm very concerned about this stage. What are Egyptian mummies doing in the leaning tower of Pizza? Did they emigrate or something? Very strange... Anyway, this level has you using your whip to swing across sheer drops.

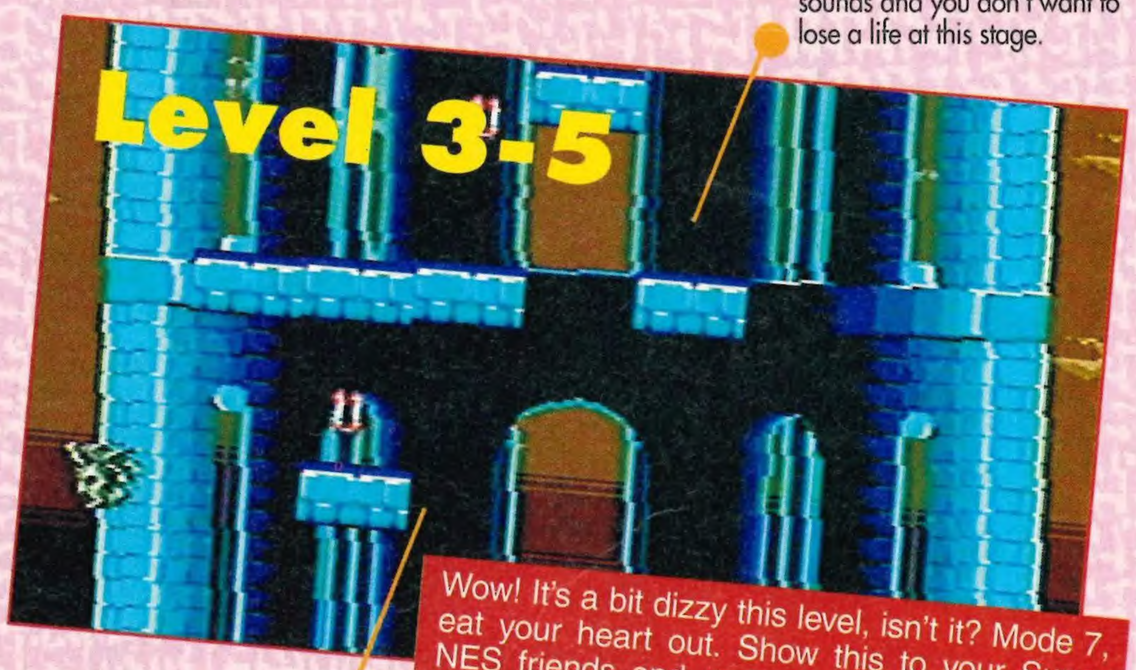

You need to use your whip to swing across gaps like this.

Remember to take things easy and stay on the platforms. This isn't as simple as it sounds and you don't want to lose a life at this stage.

OUR HEROES!

Collect the candle power-ups and kill the medusa heads. Sorted.

Wow! It's a bit dizzy this level, isn't it? Mode 7, eat your heart out. Show this to your Super NES friends and make them jealous as you start on an epic climb to the top of the tower. Watch out for the Medusa heads as you go, and make sure you don't get caught out by the section's scroll!

Level 3-6

When you get here, ascend the stairs to exit this grand old stage.

A bat swoops along here, so be prepared! Think first, shoot later! Always be prepared.

Those mummies are back again, and this time they're badder than ever! This level is similar to the one before, take out the Mummies as they come at you, but avoid any unnecessary confrontations.

When jumping up these platforms, try to stay in the middle as much as possible.

Avoid the diving Harpys here. If they hit you it's curtains!

Level 3-7

For some reason, you're outside the tower and have to get back in again by jumping on these platforms. Are you up to it? Have you got what it takes? Do you feel lucky, punk? On your way up, remember to watch out for the pesky Harpies that try and knock you off your platform. A few swings of your whip should send them packing though, leaving you free to go, go, go!

ACCOLADE ● PLATFORM PUZZLE

Greetings one and all and welcome to Ancient Greece in the latest stormer from Mindscape. The task at hand's to bravely battle against all the odds, through four awesome levels, each containing three challenging worlds.

The prize is a chance to join the gods themselves in immortality, eating Ambrosia and sipping nectar in the lap of luxury. Only the quickest and strongest warriors can succeed in the footsteps of Zeus and Hercules to claim their glittering accolade. But don't despair mortals, you can prevent Gods becoming a Greek tragedy with this fully mapped solution from the living legends here at SEGA XS!

THE CITY

This world's basically designed to give you a little time to get used to the controls and puzzle-solving techniques. There's plenty to look out for though, like the swooping flying beasties. Throughout the game, these pesky bird-brains test your itchy trigger finger. To complete this world you need to find the treasure key and collect the world key from the treasure room.

Level 1 Object

This ceramic pot is the item to look out for in World Two. Taking it to the stores gains the world key, and the rest should be plain sailing.

Throw this switch and enter the treasure room. Collect all the goodies and add the world key to your inventory.

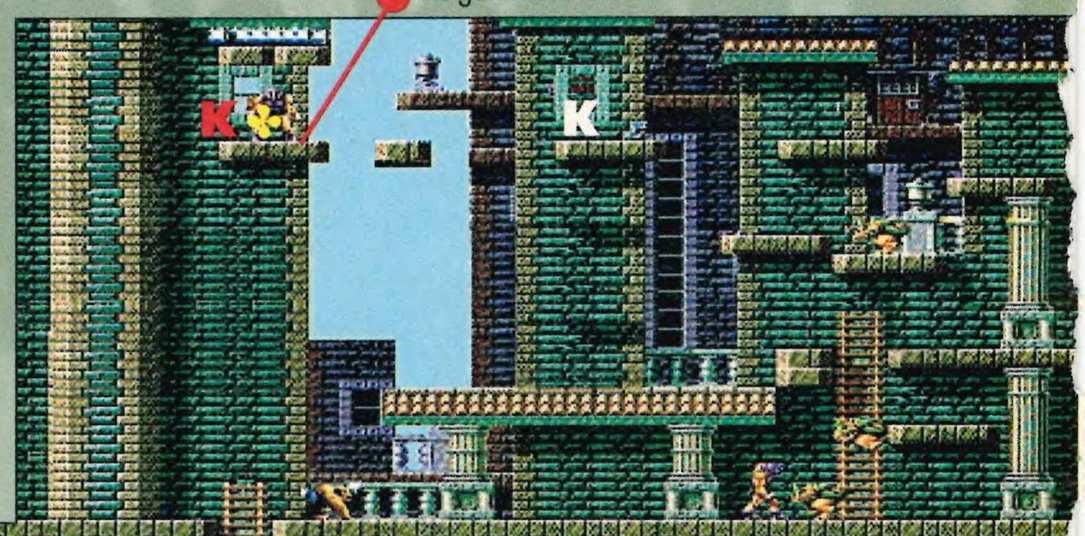

Throw this switch before collecting the treasure key. On returning the switch to the up position, a section of floor opens up below enabling you to enter the bonus room.

At this point prepare to be attacked by lots of fliers, so stay alert and keep shooting.

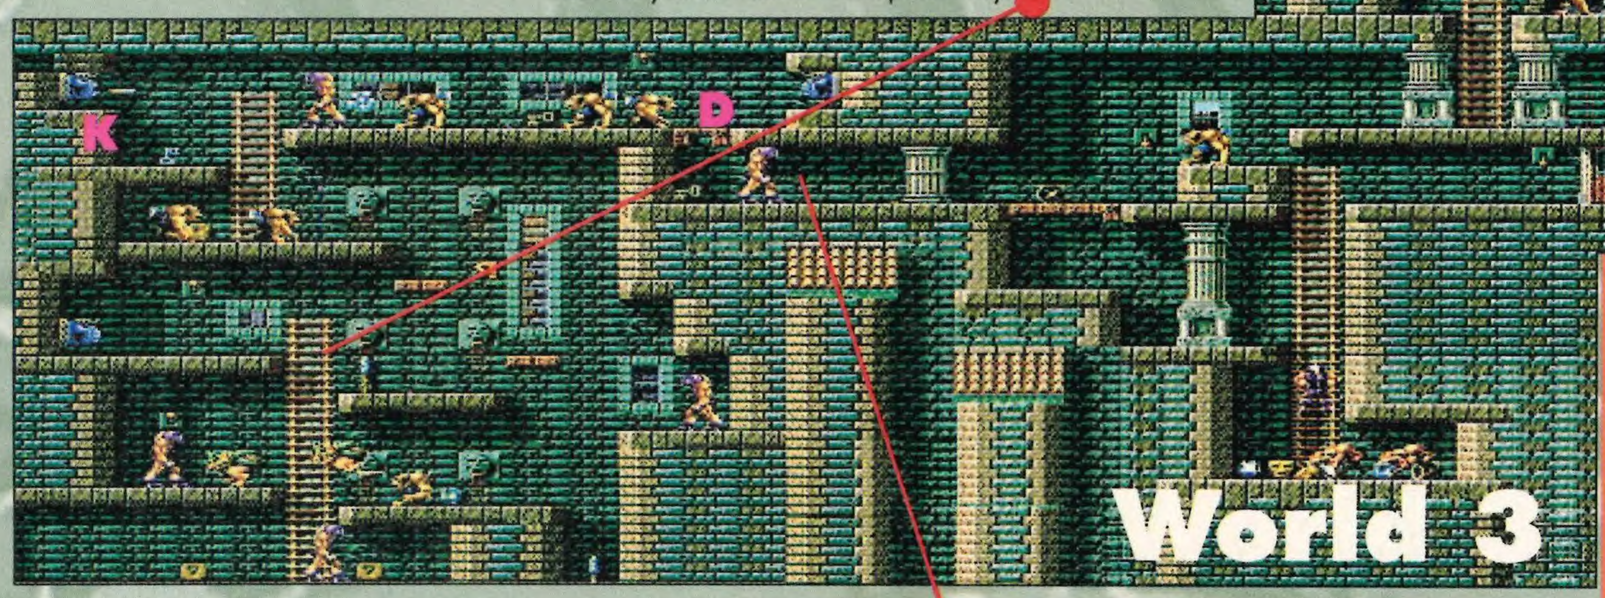

Arm yourself with this dagger and let 'em taste your steel.

Turn to face the lever and press the B button, this disables the spikes so you can pass. Before going on, return the lever to the up position in order to gain entry to the bonus room.

The teleport room brings you to this point. Here you find the trap door key you need to go down to the guardian's lair.

After walking around this part of the level, killing baddies and experimenting with levers, a teleport stone appears. This takes you up two floors so you can collect the trap door key.

Throw the switch and go down through the trap door. Kill the thieves and the treasure key falls from one of them.

There are many ways to complete this world but common to all solutions is the need to collect the teleport key, the treasure key and the world key. Within the world there's a lightning bolt weapon which makes it much easier to defeat the level guardian. If you kill the guardian without collecting the lightning bolt, you receive a treasure chest bonus.

To get through this level you need to perform the task of collecting a ceramic pot and taking it to the stores. At several points along the way you're under a barrage of fire from endless numbers of beasties. Stay alert and keep firing, but remember, if left alone, thieves can help. Better to kill a thief when he's got something you can pick up and use. You know it makes sense!

Add the pot to your inventory and head for the stores to deposit it.

Teleport Room

Move the lever to the right of the ladder back and forth, this releases the teleport stone. Walk into it and be transported to the teleport room. Collect the extra pot and add bonus points to your score. The stone in the teleport room takes you back to the main world.

World 2

Go this way first in order to collect the trap door key.

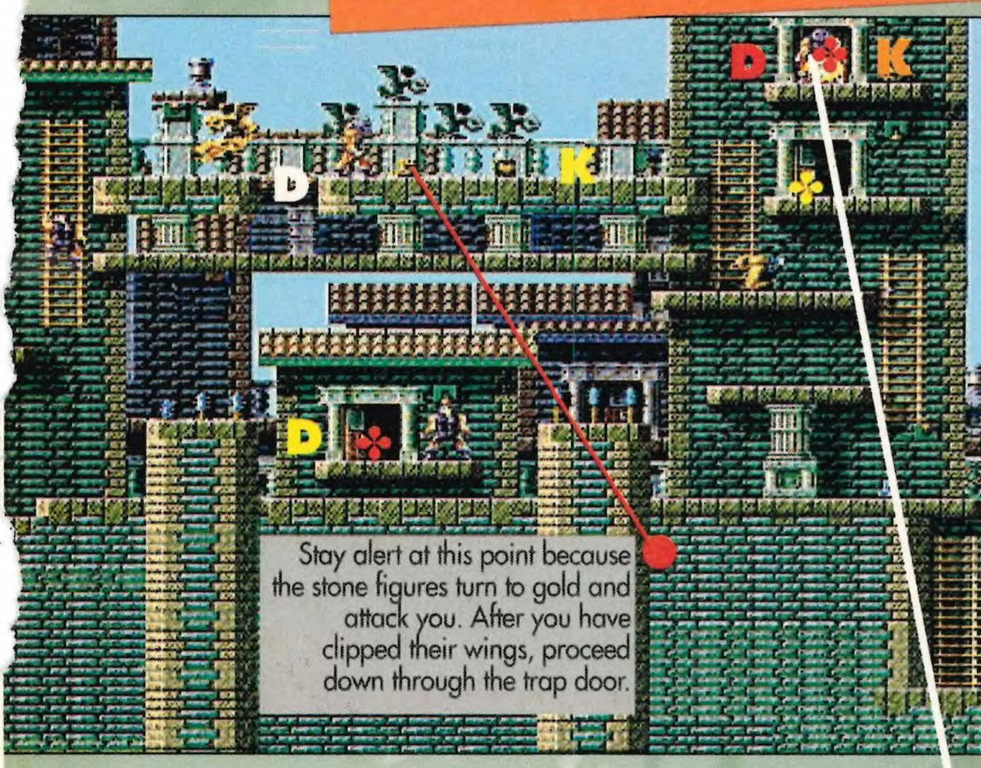

Shoot the two creatures and gather the invincibility from one of them. Now walk through the spikes in front of you without energy loss.

The Stores

Go to the right of the stores and, as if by magic, the World Key drops down. Pick it up and the pot you collected earlier returns to it's home. Exit the room and head for the end door, flick the switch and World Two's completed.

Jump down while pressing left, aim to land on the floor outside the treasure room. Go inside and collect the store's key.

Throw this switch to exit the world. As you walk through a flashing gem calls out the shopkeeper. He has an array of power-ups and weapons for you to purchase and use at a later date.

Stay alert at this point because the stone figures turn to gold and attack you. After you have clipped their wings, proceed down through the trap door.

After sorting out the guardian, climb the ladder and pay a visit to the shop. Buy power potions and lots of power-ups. Go through the door to exit level one.

Guardian

The Centurion guardian is big and tough, although he's the easiest guardian to defeat. Note where his fireballs bounce the highest and stand there. Move backwards and forwards as he does firing all the time. Don't get too close because one swipe of his huge sword and you're mincemeat.

Treasure Room

There are some nice power-ups to be had in the treasure room, as well as extra weapons for the epic final battle with the level guardian. On exiting the room collect the world key and head for the trap door three floors below — Be vigilant!

THE TEMPLE
WORLD 2 CODE NASHWAN

The world key is located in the gem room on a high platform. Bring the three gems to the room, this lowers the platform so you can reach it. Energy is very important in this world so stock yourself up in the shop beforehand and take any opportunity in the game to capture power-ups. In order to save energy, climb down even the shortest of ladders instead of jumping.

The teleport room brings you out here. Collect the treasure and add the trap door key to your inventory. Make sure you've plenty of energy before you attempt the jump down, if you haven't, expect to lose a life.

Gem and Bonus Rooms

Dotted around the main map are three gems that must be brought to the gem room, one at a time, in order to gain the World Key. Two of the gems are found in the lower part of the map, being carried around by thief beasties. The other's found at the top of the first ladder. In the gem room there's a teleport stone held up by a trap door. Switching the lever up and down a couple of times brings the stone down, taking you to the bonus room.

Turn to face the wall at this point and press the B button as if you were switching a lever. This will activate a hidden switch which will open the first trap door in the world, enabling you to get to the teleport room and also collect the treasure key.

All along this section are baddies and spikes. Keep shooting and looking behind you for destroyers coming in.

Treasure Room

In the treasure room there is an abundance of goodies to bump up your score, although there are some flier and destroyer beasties trying to throw a spanner in the works. Work your way around in a clockwise direction and exit at the bottom.

After you've collected the world key from the gem room, make your way back down to this point and enter the world door. This takes you to the next level.

In this section there are two question mark icons which give clues about what to do in this world. You can also find one of the chalices here.

In order to get down to the bottom of this pit you must engage this lever which closes a trap door below. When you jump onto the trap door, engage the lever just above and another trap door closes below. Repeat this process until you reach the bottom of the pit.

Outside the door to the ship room there's another chalice.

The third chalice is situated here.

Ship Room

The world key can be picked up here, as well as the treasure room key. The teleport room brings you back here, thus avoiding a difficult climb.

There's a hidden puzzle in this level to get to the treasure room. There are three chalices lying around the world that must be taken to the ship room. When you deposit them, you're rewarded with the treasure key. You can ignore this puzzle and head straight for the ship room to collect the world key and head directly for the finish.

Treasure Room

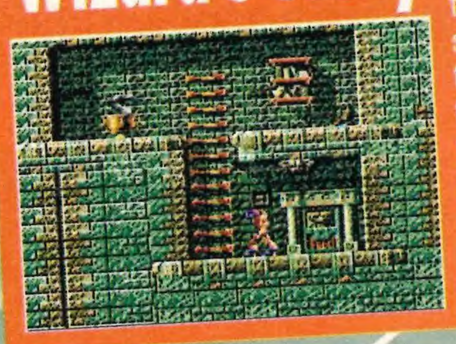

After collecting the chalices and taking them to the ship room, you can enter the treasure room where you find plenty of point-boosting treasure.

Entrance

This is the intersection between World Two and World Three. Here you visit the shop before you continue through the door to level three.

Wizard's Study

This is where to return the globe you find in the apothecary. It should fit nicely into the globe stand at the top of the room. When you return the globe, a piece of mosaic appears, so take it to the mosaic room at the end of the corridor.

The Crypt

When you bring the skull to the crypt, you find a jar of herbs. Pick them up and take them to the Apothecary. Don't forget to pick up the piece of mosaic as a reward for returning the skull.

World three is split into two sections, the mosaic puzzle and the candle puzzle. The mosaic puzzle is so called because you've to locate four pieces of mosaic and return them to their original state, which is part of a bigger mosaic of a lobster. One of the pieces is in the mosaic room, so pick it up and walk over to the mosaic on the wall. Pull the first lever and return it, this should move a block to the right. Pull the second lever and replace it to move the block up so you can get to the corridor. Lever one also reveals a rising block to enable you to get the door key.

The Armoury

In the armoury you find the skull, although you have to kill a dirty thief to get it. Take the skull to the crypt to gain another piece of mosaic.

The Apothecary

You find the globe in the Apothecary, through the door to the left of the room. That door closes behind you so in order to get back out, you must climb the ladder, kill the thief and shoot down the blue gunners mounted on the wall. At the top of the ladder is a lever to open up the door again.

The candle puzzle is part two of world three. The task is to find the candle and take it to the study at the end of the world.

World 3

Jump onto the moving block to collect the candle.

The trap door key should enable you to pull this lever and close the trap door to the left. Jump on that and repeat until you reach solid platforms.

Another moving block is the obstacle here. Leap on board and walk with it before jumping to the safety of the platform at the other side.

Walk all the way along the corridor, killing monsters until a trap door key is revealed. Come all the way back and throw the switch. A rising block comes up so you can get up to collect another trap door key.

Placing the candle here lights up the study and produces the World Key. Take the key and head for the Dragon's pad. Engage him in battle and show him who's the boss.

Guardian

To tame the dragon, move forward when he moves up and when he drifts down, you retreat. Avoid his fiery breath and keep on shooting and ducking if need be.

Level 2 Objects

The skull is found in the armoury in the mosaic puzzle.

The globe is situated in the apothecary.

The herbs can be found in the crypt.

A piece of mosaic is the reward for relocating the above items.

The globe stand is located at the top of the wizard's study, ready to be filled by the globe.

Three similar looking chalices to this can be collected in around the world.

The dragon's gem can be found at the end of the candle puzzle in the chapel.

THE LABYRINTH
WORLD 3 CODE COYOTE

Mace Room

As the name suggests there are some maces to add to your inventory here. Walk into the teleport stone and on to the next room.

Bowl Room

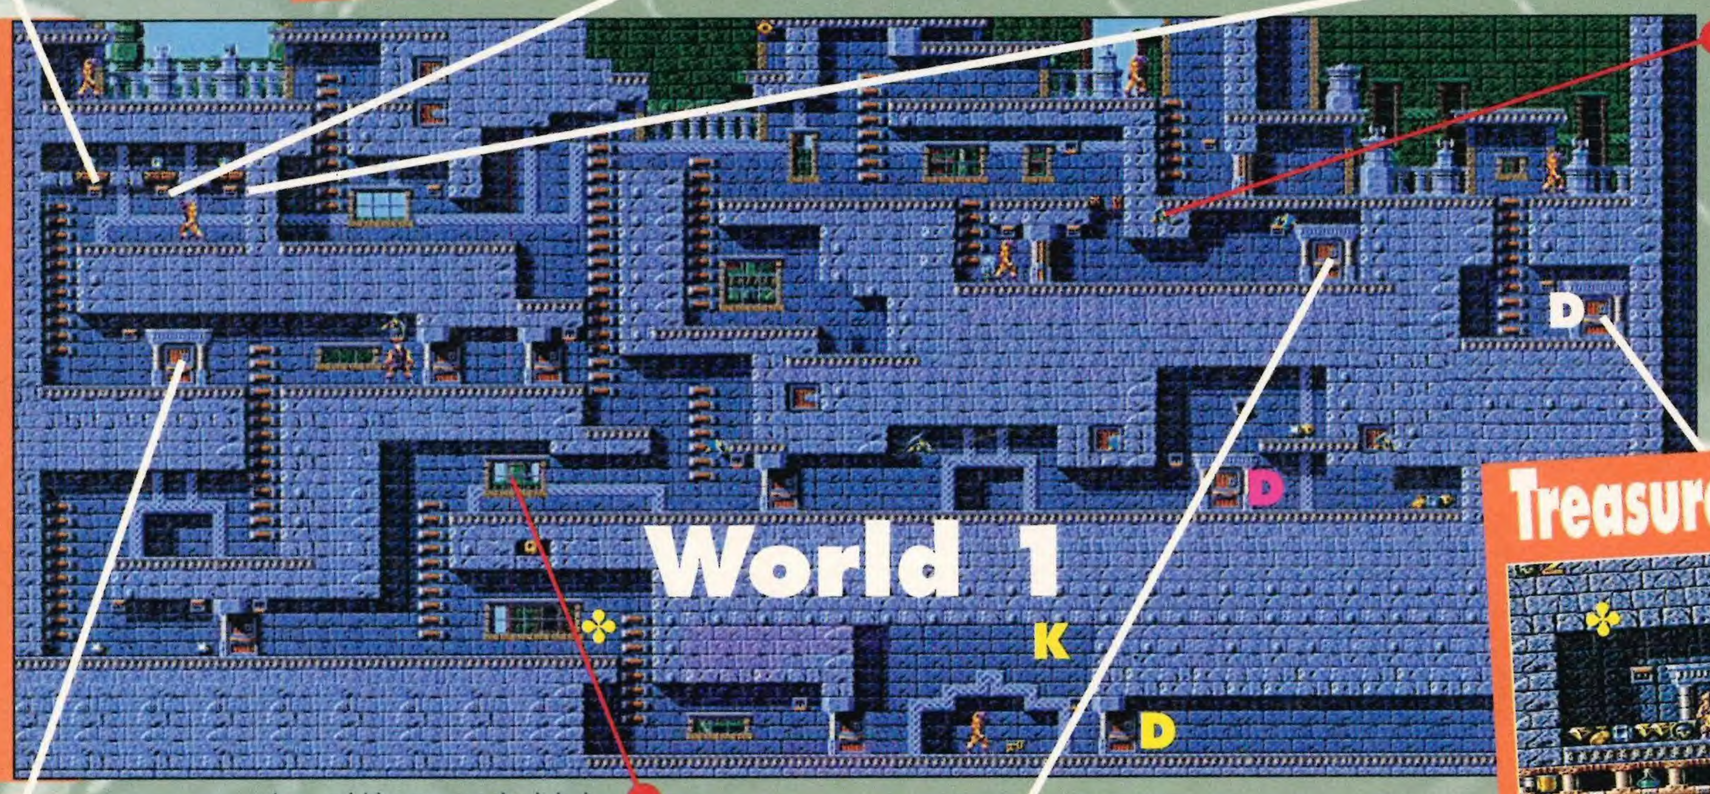

On arriving in this room you find the gold bowl. Take it with you before exiting via another teleport stone.

Bat Room

In the bat room you will be attacked by lots of the flying mice creatures. Start shooting them while they are on the ceiling and then make a quick get-away.

Again, there are many ways to complete the level, including a sneaky short cut. Go just beyond lever one and return to the start. Collect a trap door key. Go to below the second block, and the trap key should move it. This allows you to go to the lever outside the treasure room and collect the maces, treasure key and the wide arc. Now go to the final room and receive a tasty power-up.

Around about here there is an alien attract potion. Take it down to near the bee room and release it. This should keep a few creatures out of your way while you make your way to the treasure room.

The world key is on a high ledge just waiting to be shot down so you can exit the world.

Treasure Room

Inside the treasure room with the many goodies there is a teleport stone. This will take you down to the ladder just before the end door.

Bee Room

In the bee room lies the treasure key and a power-up. So snap them both up before moving on.

Mace Room 2

The second mace room contains more weapons and the teleport key. Take them and make your way down to the bee room to collect the treasure room key.

Level 3 Objects

The alien attract potion can be used to bring thieves to within shooting distance or distract their attentions from you.

Ceramic pot. The important pots have this blue strip around them.

The flask. One of the tasks in World Three is to take it to the final door.

The water gem. Together with the ice gem and the fire gem it is a tool to solve puzzles.

The fire gem. In level two they have to be taken from the ship room in level three to the light room.

The ice gem. Sometimes this is the hardest gem to acquire in level three needing a combination of levers to release it.

Beasties

There are basically three different types of beasties. The way they look changes throughout the game, but their basic characteristics and habits remain the same. The different types of alien beasties are outlined briefly below.

The Destroyer. These beasts are quite intelligent. Their purpose is to pursue throughout the level and destroy you.

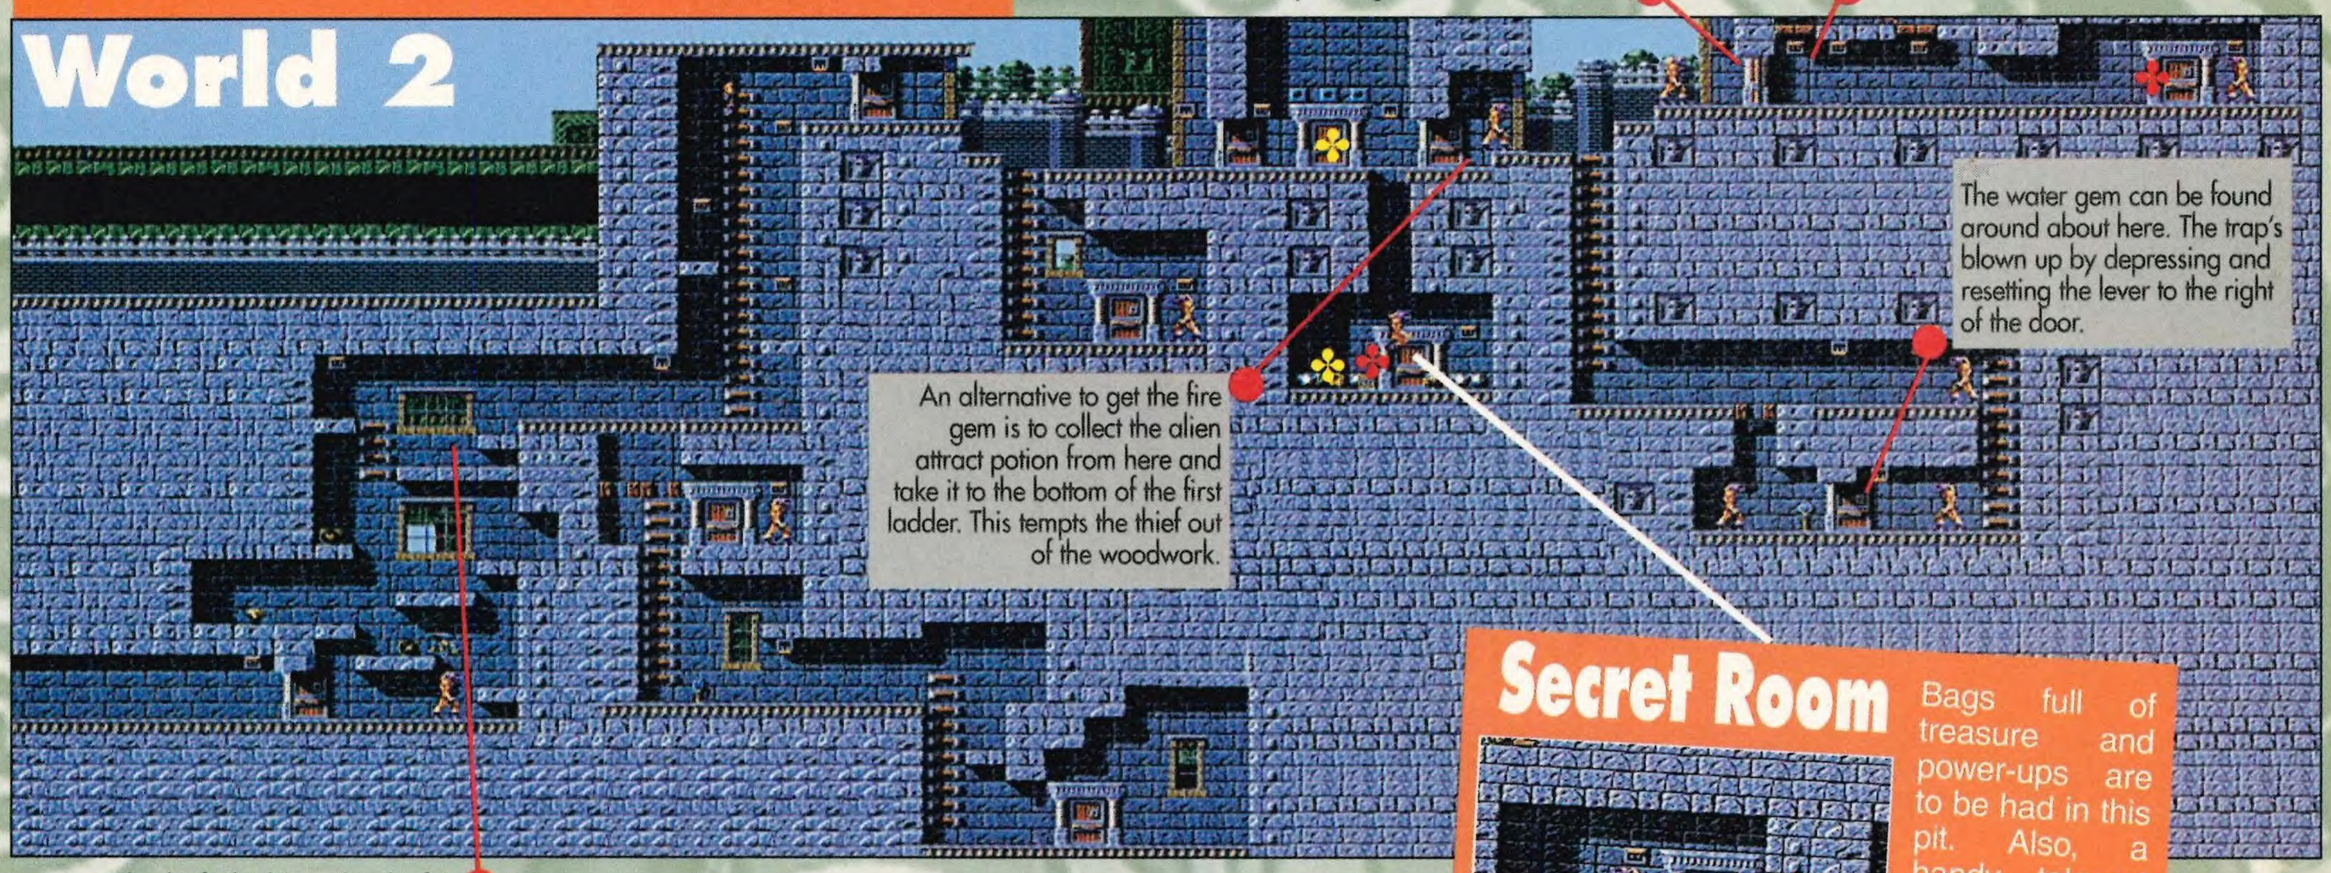

The Flier. Like the Destroyers, these winged creatures try to get you at all costs. They also avoid your shots and at times prove to be quite elusive.

The Thief. These baddies try to steal things from you as well as prevent you obtaining vital pieces of treasure. They can help you though by getting difficult items for you.

The puzzle in World Two is to acquire the fire, ice and water gems to illuminate the lights in the central room. The fire gem is stolen by the thief at the top of the second ladder. Don't worry, you can beat him up later and extract the gem!

Secret Room

Bags full of treasure and power-ups are to be had in this pit. Also, a handy teleport stone to take you up to the right room.

Secret Room

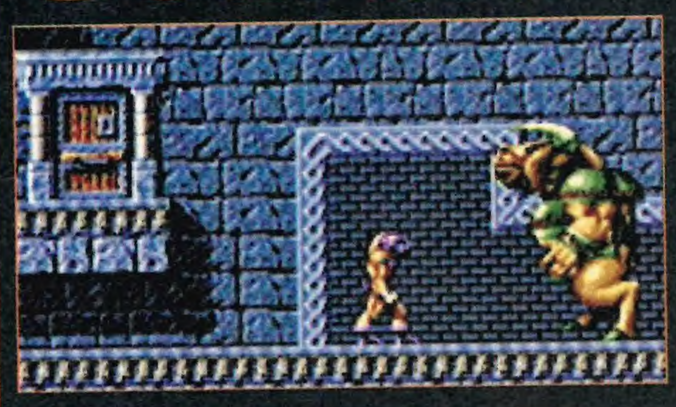

If you read the on-screen scrolling messages, they not only guide you through to the guardian, but also take you to this treasure filled secret room. A warning though — don't activate any levers unless you're told to do so.

The first part of this puzzle is to find and collect two vessels and take them to the end door. After locating the World Key, the next big test is to face the end-of-level guardian. Take advantage of any extra power-ups and weapons in order to defeat the nasty Minotaur.

World 3

Guardian

The Minotaur is along similar lines to the Centurion in level one. The added difficulty being this awesome foe can jump on your head. To combat this, when he jumps, run behind him and continue the slaughter. When he jumps back, return to your original position until you have completely carved him up.

Power-ups

The following power-ups can be obtained from the shop or through the game. The advantage of the latter is that it doesn't cost you any money. Greece at this time was quite economically stable so some expenditure won't hurt the purse strings too much!

Bread. It isn't exactly Kingsmill, but it does return lost energy.

Chicken. This tasty snack restores flagging energy and adds 650 points to your score.

Extra life. This is always a welcome sight, so grab it with both hands.

Gold mask. This doesn't turn up that often but when it does, it's worth 800 points.

Large health. Double the strength of the small health.

Small health. This restores lost energy, so take them when you can.

Apple. My old gran used to say, an apple a day keeps the doctor away, and it's true!

Teleport ✣

All levels have a certain amount of teleport stones and teleport rooms. To make it easy to see where each takes you, we've marked the above sign on to the maps. Signs of the same colour illustrate the journey taken. Most of the teleports just go one way.

World One contains some false walls and platforms to shoot away so you can pass or so you can bring something down to a level at which you can reach it.

The door here leads out of the world, if you have grabbed the World Key from the trap room.

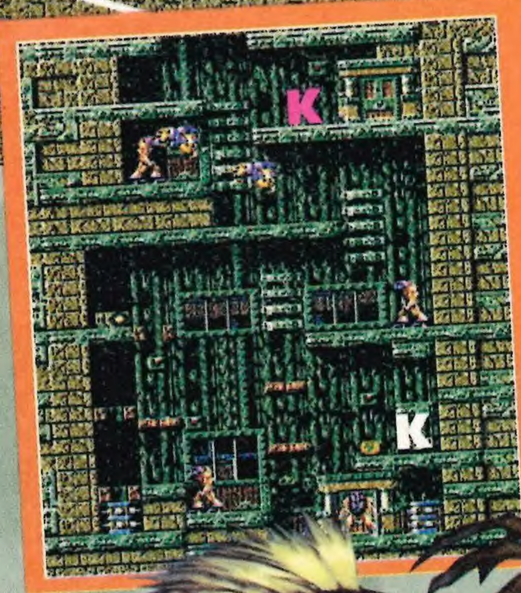

At this point, a screen message advises you not to jump down the opening. Don't worry, it's a lie. As you jump down, a block appears, preventing you from falling on the spikes.

The key to the trap room is hidden here, behind a false door. To open it, go down the ladder, destroy the blocks and engage the two levers. One of the levers moves the false block and the other reveals a starburst which helps rid you of the beasties coming in behind you.

A moving block should appear at this point inviting you to climb aboard so that you can continue up to the end of the world.

Trap Room

On entering the trap room quickly leap to the left and pull the lever. This stops a moving block above from knocking the World Key into the traps. If you fail use the trap door key to get the bomb and destroy all the traps.

Weapons

The following weapons can be obtained in the game for free and in the shop at a cost. The value of each weapon or the cost in the shop are contained in the short descriptions beneath.

The axe will cost you 10,000 in the shop and is quite effective in the early levels.

Familiar. Value 30,000, this gives you a feathered friend to dive in and kill beasties for you.

The mace costs 75,000, four or five maces at the same time are extremely handy.

Lightning bolt. Costs 30,000. This lovely weapon can go through anything.

The knife costs 25,000, and is the most basic of weapons. It tides you over until something better comes along.

The Hunter. Costs 15,000. This hunts down the baddies on a radius of about half a screen.

Magic axe. Costs 15,000. They bounce around and home in on the beasties.

Magic wings have a score value of 50,000 and it affects the familiar (above).

Power potion adds 60,000 to your score and increases your weapon power.

Shield. Value 20,000, reduces damage for a short spell.

The spear. Costs 17,500. One of the better weapons available, it can go through two or three aliens at once.

Starburst. Value 10,000. Homes in on beasties and kills them, but only for a short time.

Throwing star. Costs 50,000. Has only a short range capacity.

The direct weapon arc is good in situations that require precise aiming.

The standard weapon arc gives good service in the early levels.

The intense weapon arc takes your weapons and spreads their fire.

Level 4 Objects

This is the alien attract potion, used in the right way it can trap thieves with objects.

Find this gold bowl in world two and take it to the alchemist's room.

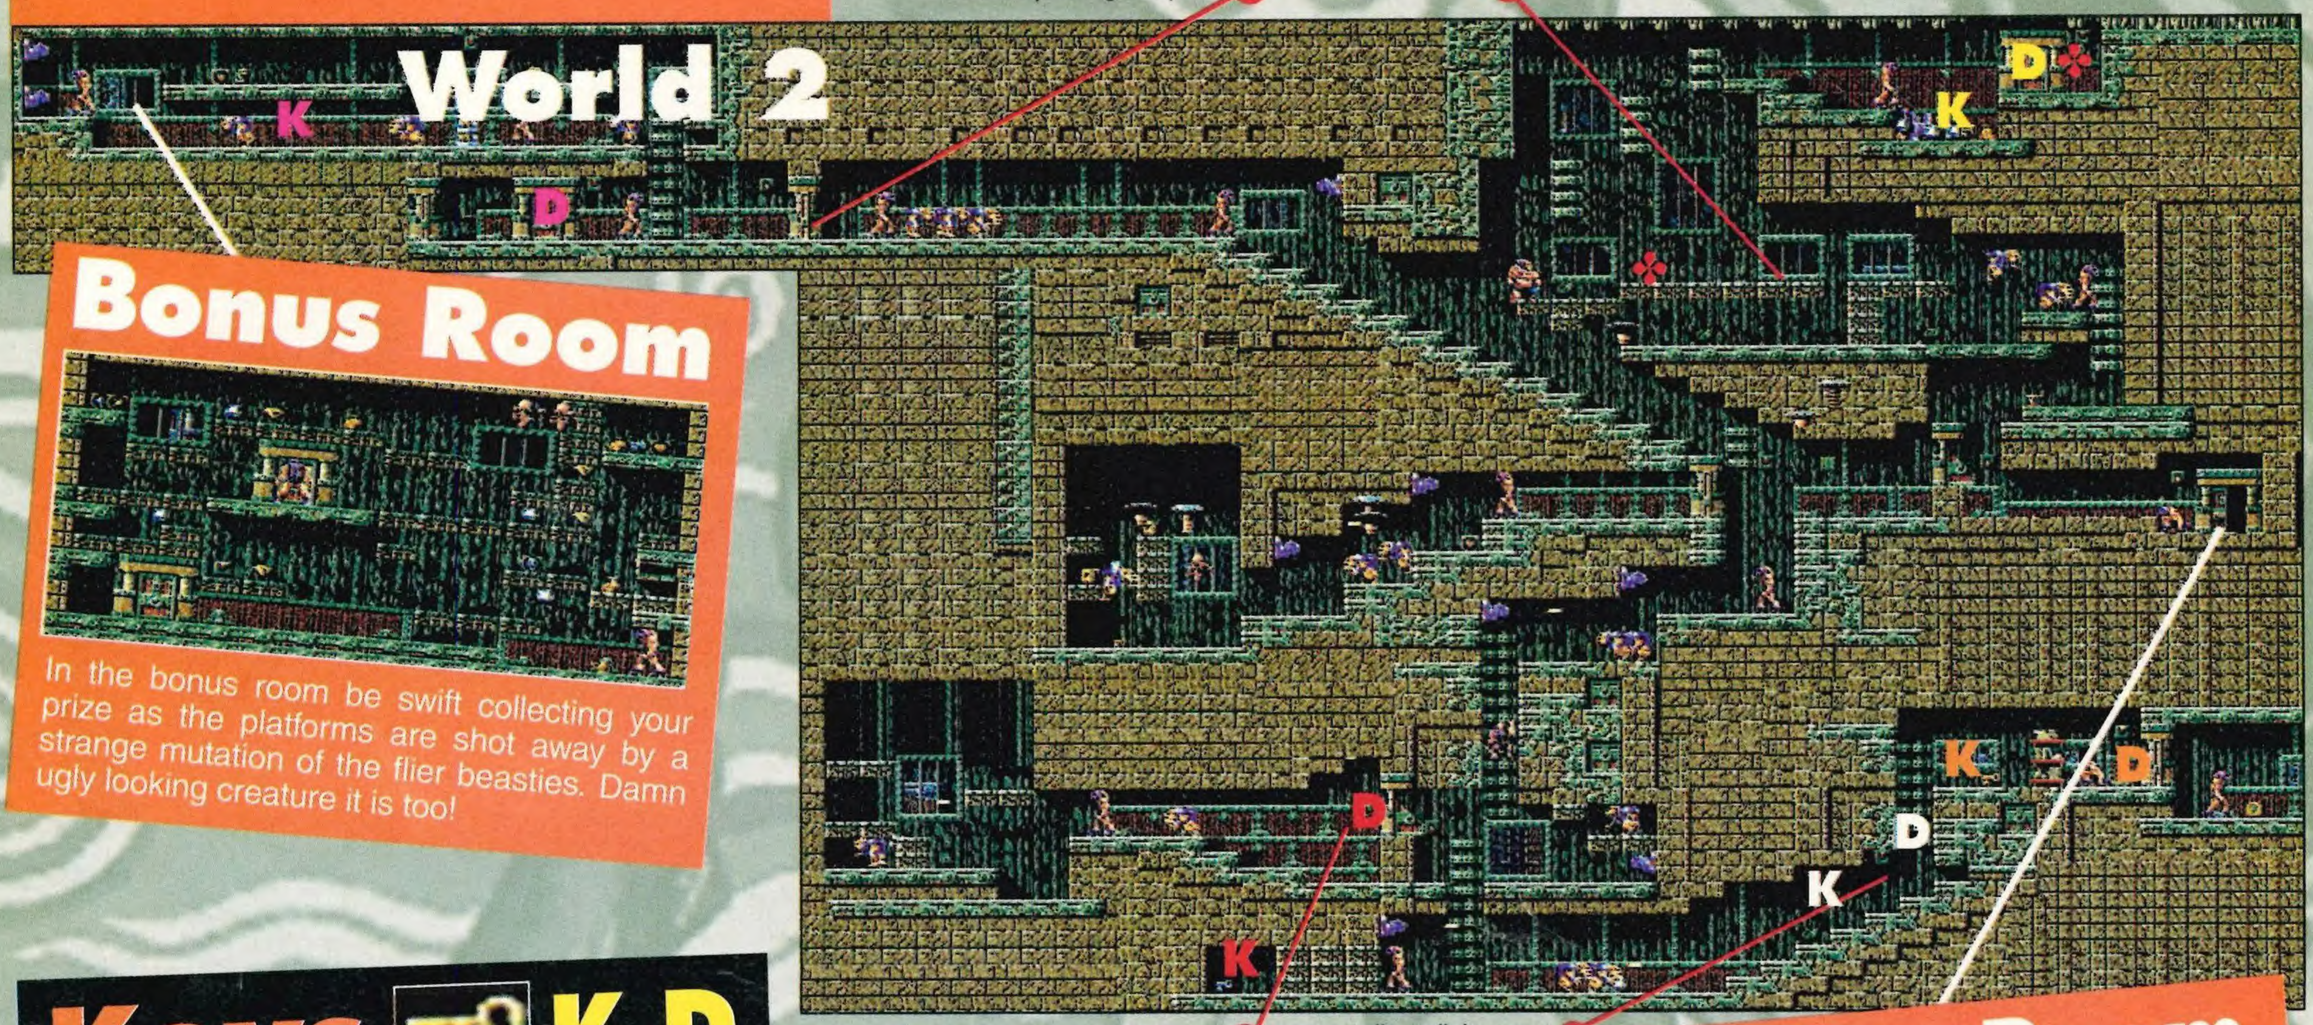

Collect the lamp and pull the fourth lever in world two and receive a free familiar.

Together with the lamp and the gold bowl, this pestle and mortar need to be taken to the alchemist's room.

The puzzle in this world is to find the alchemist's tools and take them to his room. The tools consist of a lamp, a gold bowl and a pestal and mortar. They are around the map, as are several keys to collect.

This door closes behind you, so, if you want to visit the bonus room, you'd better do it before passing this point.

These blocks are shot away by baddies, releasing destroyers hell bent on claiming your scalp. So pass quickly along and down the ladder at the other side to collect the gold bowl.

Bonus Room

In the bonus room be swift collecting your prize as the platforms are shot away by a strange mutation of the flier beasties. Damn ugly looking creature it is too!

Keys K D

To make life a little easier we have made the following key system. On the maps you may have noticed different coloured Ks and Ds. These stand for key and door, A coloured key opens the corresponding coloured door.

Shoot these blocks away and grab the key. Go back up the ladder and through to the left. The room at the end contains the lamp.

Collect all the items and rush to put them in the alchemist's room. The key to the door falls down as you get close to the door.

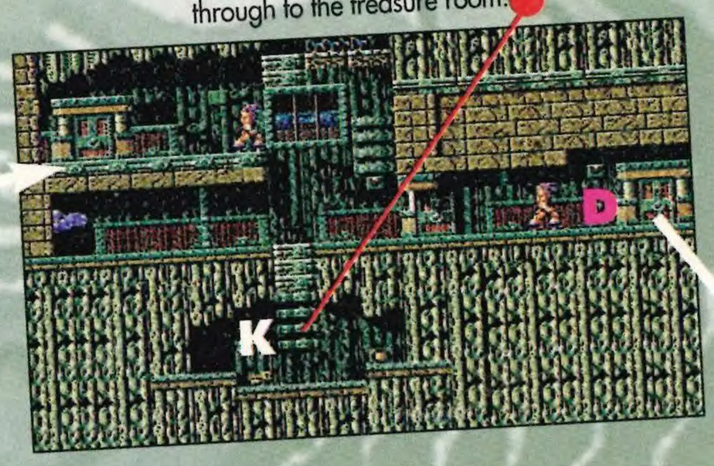

Potion Room

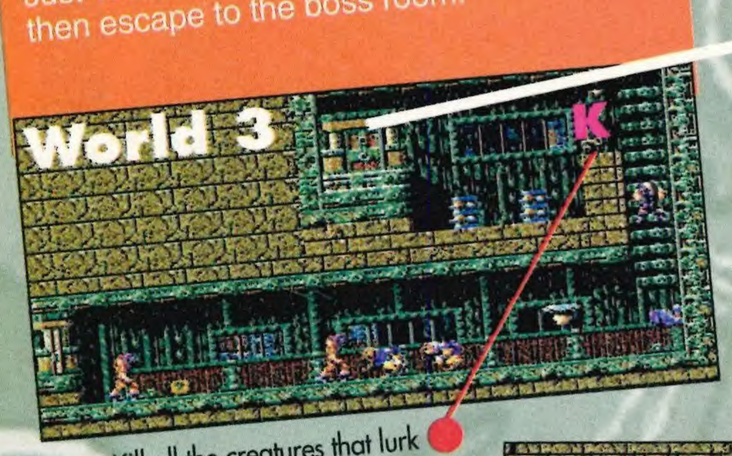

The pestal and mortar are up for grabs in this room. Go to the top lever and blow up the spikes. Then collect the alien attract potion, take it to the bottom lever and release it. This brings out the robotic thief carrying the pestal and mortar. Shoot him when he is in a good place for you to pick your prize and swiftly exit.

The final world is quite simple to complete. Just locate and collect the World Key and then escape to the boss room.

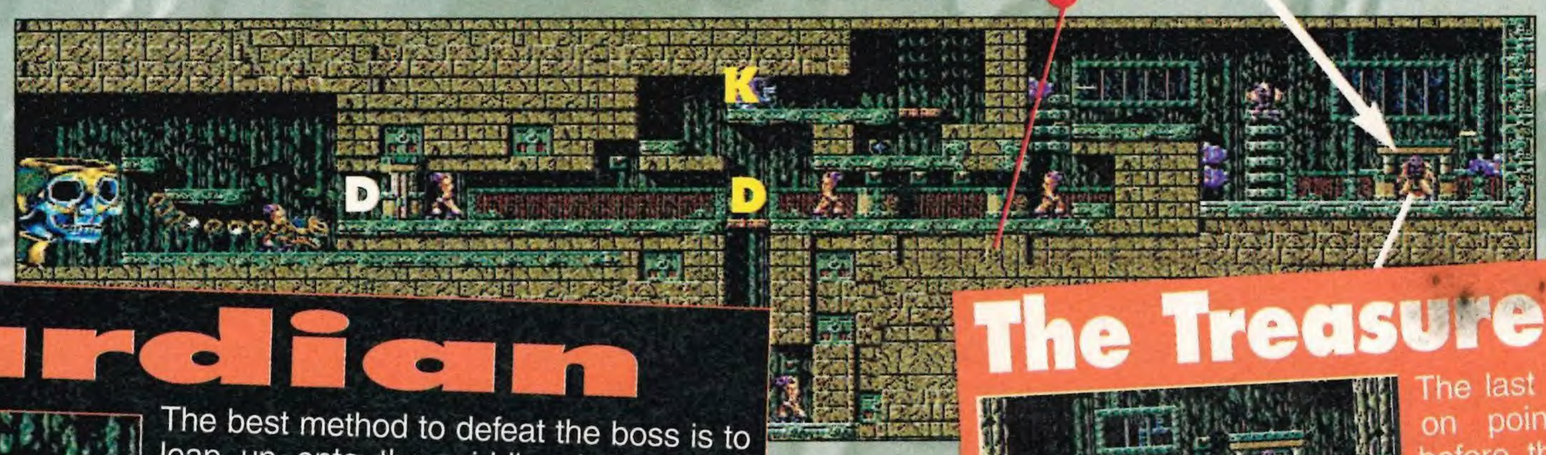

Here lies the World Key, you can only get once you have gone through to the treasure room.

Kill all the creatures that lurk around the bottom of the ladder, then up you go to the top. Stop at the top and wait for the thief to bring the door key to you. As he does shoot him and steal his cargo.

The key to the trap door can be brought down from its heights by throwing the three skitches until the thief comes down with it.

Guardian

The best method to defeat the boss is to leap up onto the middle platform and start shooting when the yellow Chinese Dragon bursts out of the guardian's head. The dragon goes underneath you and right around you. If you follow,him all the way with your fire, he should die; if not, you're dead!

The Treasure Room

The last chance to load up on points and weapons before the final battle with the big boss man. When you come out of the treasure room, go back to get the world key and then head for the big showdown with the huge end guardian.

DINOBASHER

MASTER SYSTEM GAME GEAR

PLATFORM ADVEN[illegible] CODEMASTERS

Dinobasher is the latest Codemaster's game for the Master System and Game Gear. This is a platform game that's jam-packed with loads of fiendish levels and hungry dinosaurs.

The star of the show is Bignose, a zany prehistoric caveman, determined to get his family the perfect bird for their Thanksgiving roast. The only problem's the pesky bird won't sit still long enough for Bignose to give him a bash with his mighty club!

As this complete SEGA XS guide shows, poor Bignose has a long way to go to catch his dinner.

PARADISE ISLAND

Bignose the Caveman is on a quest to find the ultimate dino dinner in the form of a large prehistoric bird. To reach it he must traverse four islands and battle past monster after monster.
The first level's riddled with pits requiring some Jurassic jumping, watch out for the Stegosaurous at the end.

Level 1-1

Collect these bones and trade them in at a later stage for special powers,spells and even extra life.

Still sticking with the same landscape, there's buried bones under the dry earth, dark open pits and two different types of small but troublesome dinosaurs. Bignose has to wield his mighty club and do some major bashing! Don't forget to collect bones and ammo on the way or Bignose may end up extinct!

Level 1-2

Collecting these stones increases your firepower by one everytime, although the limit is three. If you have three your a match for anything that dares snarl at you.

Don't be too eager to jump this ledge as you run into a four legged plodding killer. However, it takes two hits to knock Bignose over. One hit means you lose your ammo.

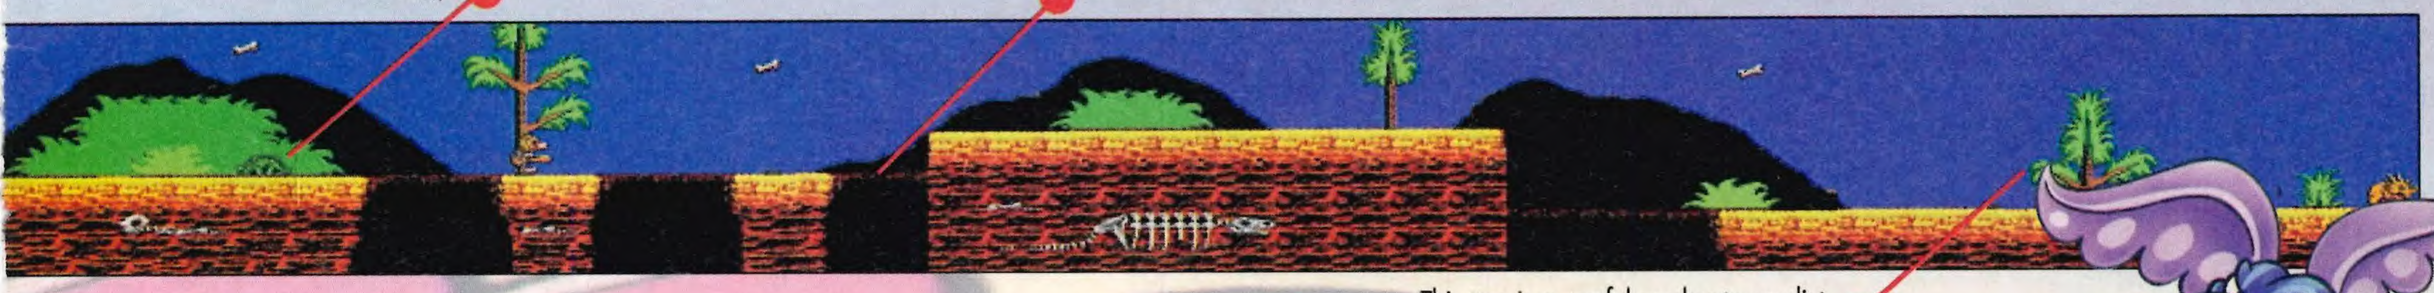

Bignose leaves the dry desert outskirts to arrive in the forest. He must square up to charging blue rhinos, mutant man-eating plants and face a dippy blue end dino, who coughs fireballs at unwary cavemen.

Level 1-3

Level 1-3 (Underground)

This green horny-backed fellow bumps you off your bare feet, unless you take evasive action or beat him up.

Let Bignose fall into one of these holes and it's curtains. Watch his club turn into a harp as he drifts off to dino-heaven.

This tree is a useful marker to predict the stampeding end guardian. Four blows finish him off. Jump over him as he charges and then shoot quickly.

This nasty beastie turns suddenly, so watch out otherwise Bignose could be for the chop!

Double dino trouble! Stand your ground and throw a stone or bash. It is unwise to jump unless you're absolutely sure you've timed it right.

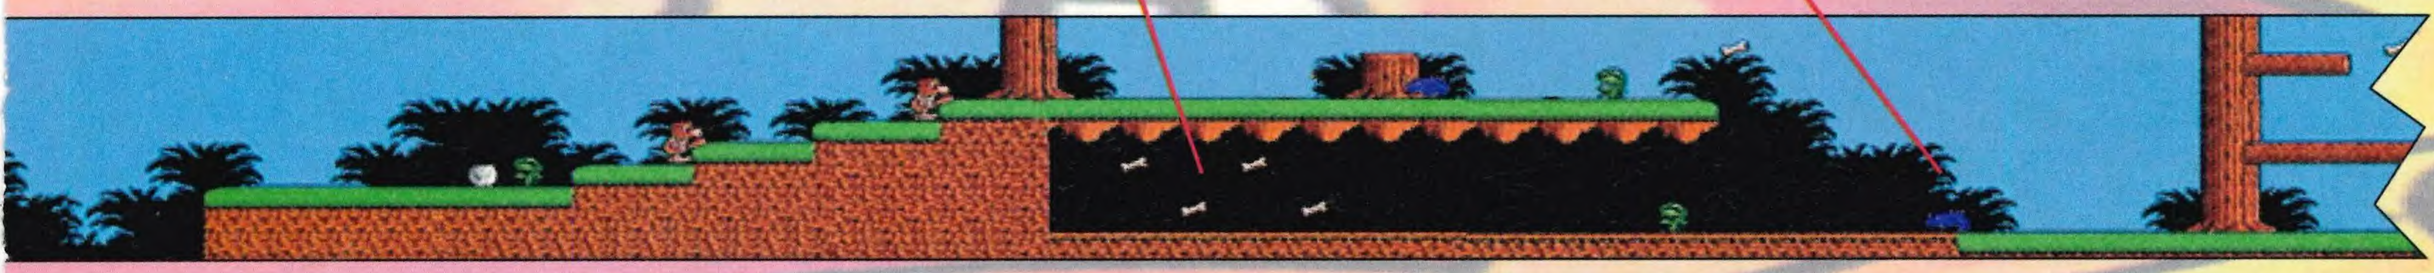

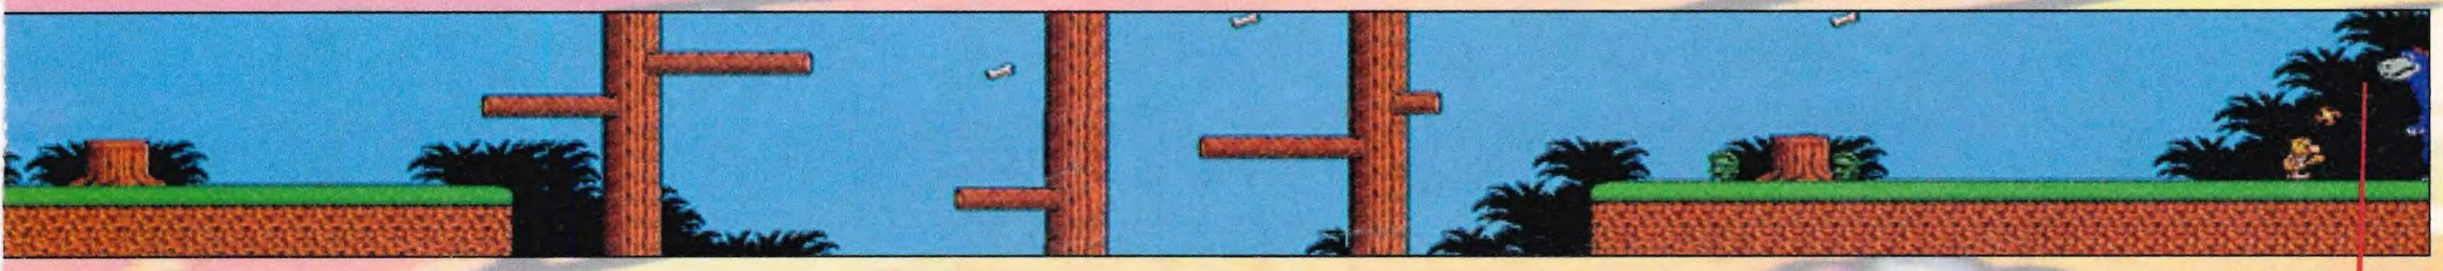

This small stegosaurus is all that's between you and Level three. Jump as it charges and turn and fire. If you have no ammo it pauses every other charge, so you can bash it. It takes four blows to kill.

By jumping down the first hole at the start you take a short-cut underground and end up at this point to collect bones.

You get an unwanted knock from this rhino if you're careless, so be ready to fire or hit. He's very fast and dangerous.

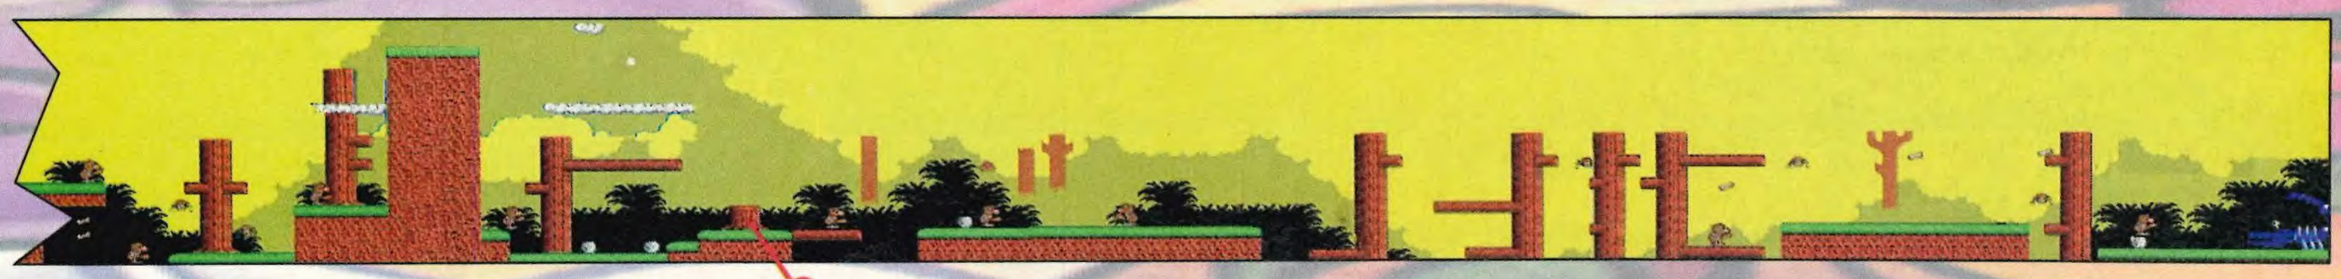

It's useful to have a Quake or Light spell to quickly finish this grinning creature off. If not, be quick with the attack as the longer it takes the thicker and faster his fireballs come!

Jungle japes ahead in dino country! Among the usual perils and pitfalls are spiders, moving platforms and some frantic tree hopping. Prepare to reach for the clouds half way across after you climb a small hill.

Hit the boulder a few times and collect a useful bonus in the form of more points and ammo.

Level 1-4

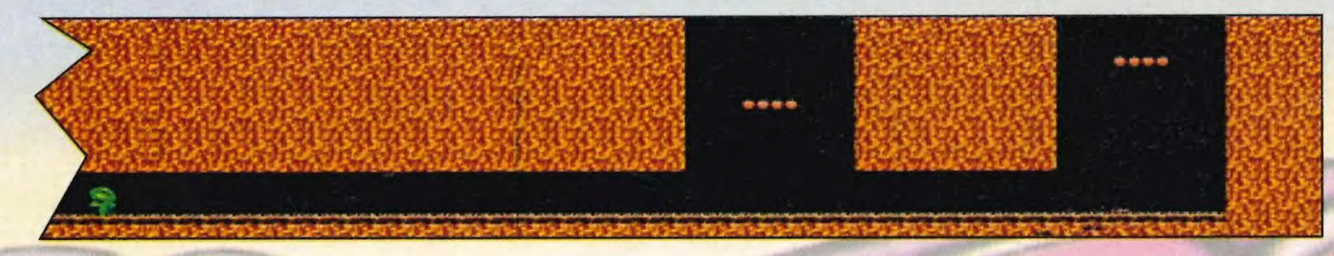

Step on the tree stump before you attempt to cross the gap as by doing this , a platform appears to make life much easier.

Level 1-4 (Underground)

This underground section belongs to the previous level. Just keep firing and you will come out unscathed.

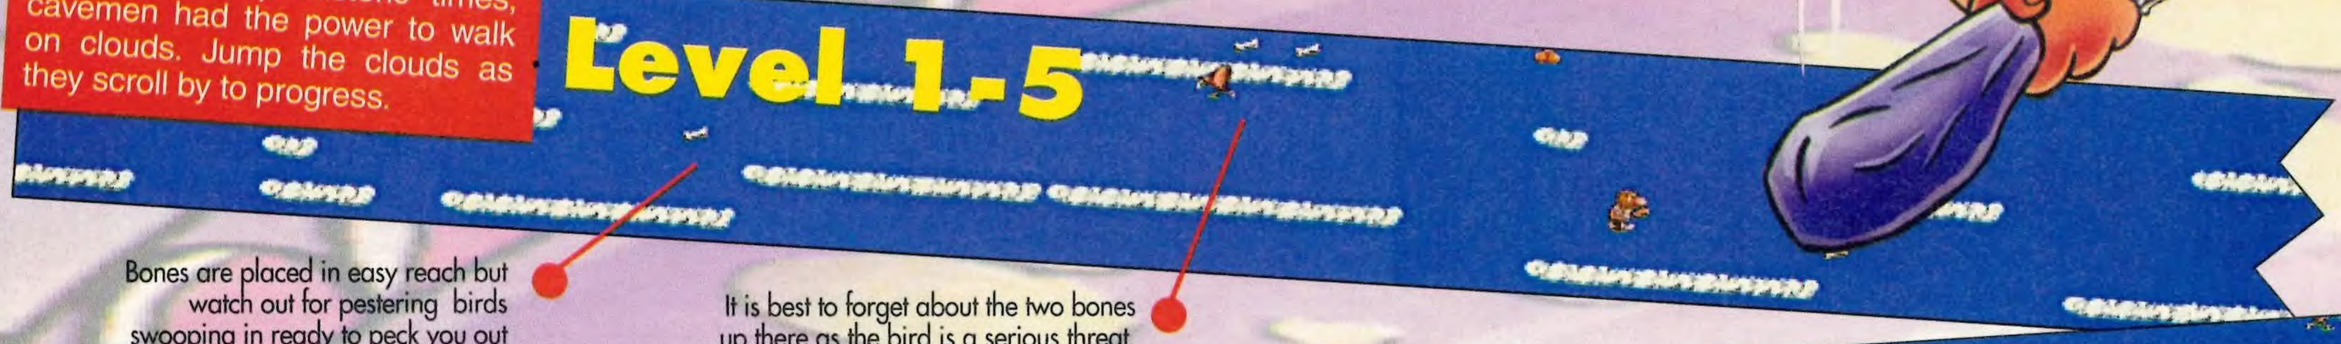

Various lift shafts allow access to other parts of the level but it is best to avoid as much danger as possible and travel the length of the underground passage.

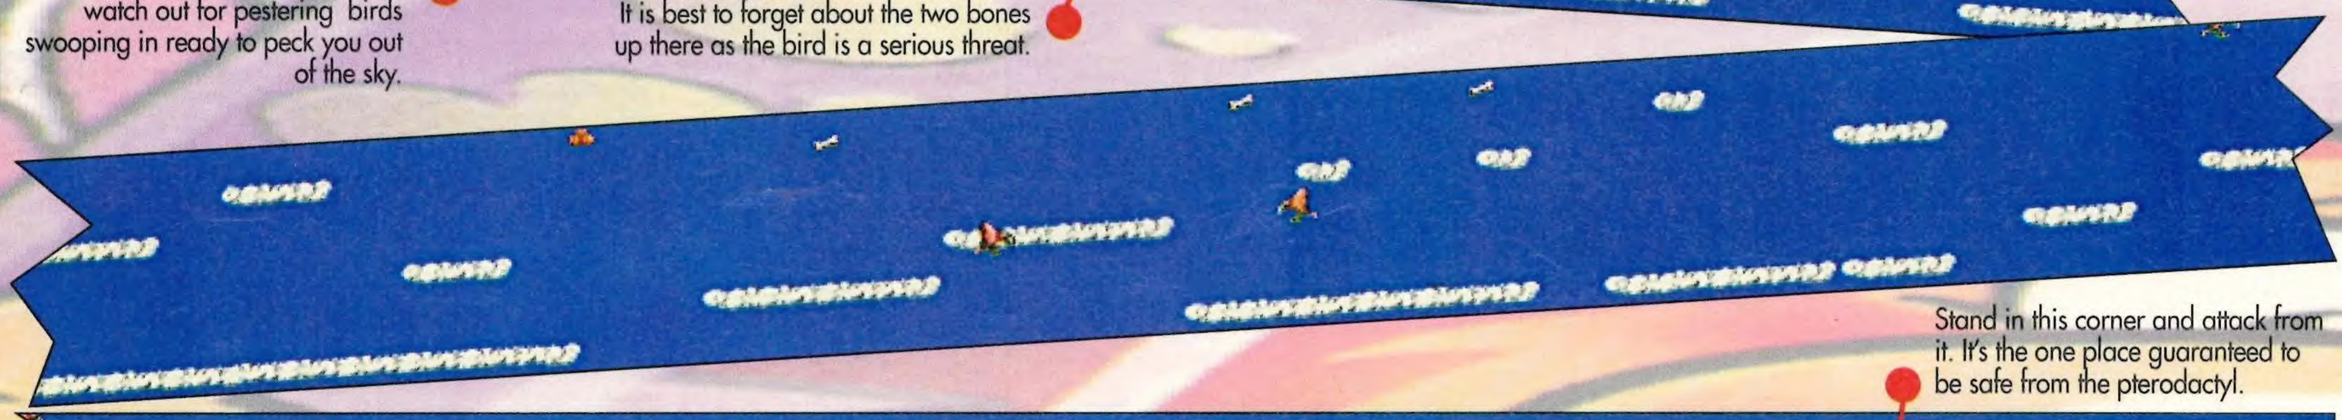

Apparently, in prehistoric times, cavemen had the power to walk on clouds. Jump the clouds as they scroll by to progress.

Level 1-5

Bones are placed in easy reach but watch out for pestering birds swooping in ready to peck you out of the sky.

It is best to forget about the two bones up there as the bird is a serious threat.

Stand in this corner and attack from it. It's the one place guaranteed to be safe from the pterodactyl.

Swamps, infested with piranha, giant turtles, and mosquito bigger than our hero's huge nose, are the venue for some more pre-historic stomping. Timing jumps well is essential.

MONSTER ISLAND

Level 2-1

Down here is another underground route which cuts out a lot of bother.

Make sure you're on this branch when attempting the jump and keep your finger on the jump button for extra height.

Watch out for those flying bugs here. Easier to bash than run.

To grab a bone jump up on this tree branch, unhassled by any flying nuisance.

Don't jump, bash or as much as look at this dive-bombing insect and it will miss you completely.

Jump down here to reach terra-firma safely.

Level 2-1 (in the clouds)

Level 2-1 (Guardian)

Dem bones, dem bones, dem dry bones! If you want them watch out for slow but deadly turtles on the rampage.

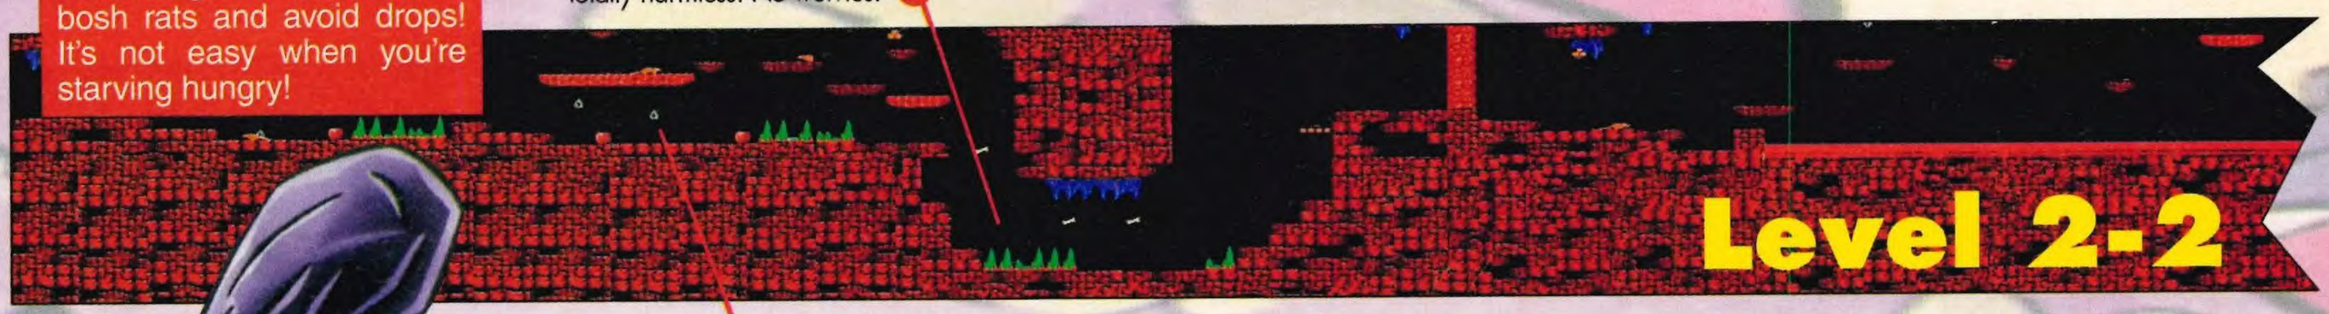

Jump the fly by running at it and jumping, rather than running away first. Take care of the skeletal dino. with stones, club, spells or anything you wish, just do it fast. It takes four hits.

Level 2-1 (Underground)

Deep in the bowels of the earth, Bignose prepares to bosh rats and avoid drops! It's not easy when you're starving hungry!

These lethal looking spikes are not to be worried about, and are totally harmless! No worries!

Level 2-2

Drops of water may not seem much, but to our cave dweller the touch of water is all too much and can lose you a life.

Set against an angry red sky, our Neanderthal pal must dodge nashing fish and jump on turtles to avoid becoming a fossil!

Use the turtle as a stepping stone when he's on the surface and watch out for the fish. Timing's vital.

This is the Worm from hell! Use the second right platform most of the time. It's safest.

Level 2-3

Watch the fish before you jump or you become tasty caveman flavoured fish food.

Use this turtle as a stepping stone, but watch he doesn't submerge.

Stand here and bash if out of stones.Hit him when he tries to bite you. Also, avoid the oversized knat.

Caves are a scary place at the best of times, but rats, man sized bugs and lethal drops of lava make for big time spookiness!

Level 2-4

This rat is hard to spot as it's hidden most of the time.

It's night, it's dark, and the beasts are out in force, from writhing snakes to nasty birds.This level's similar to the earlier forest level.

Level 2-5

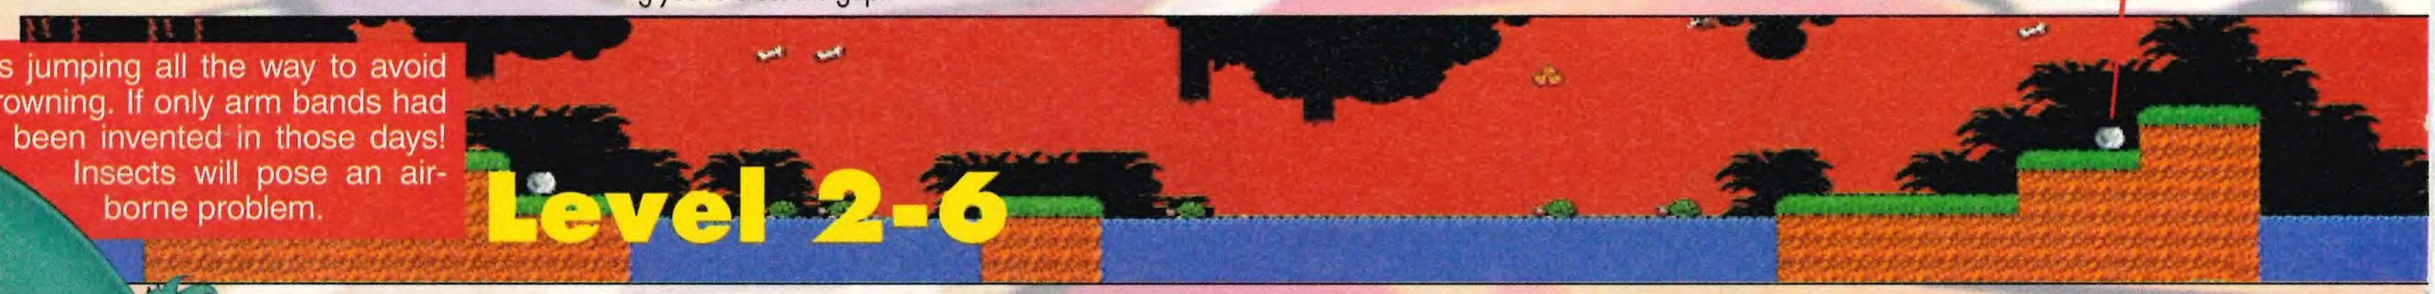

Cobras slither toward you, bash or jump before they make contact.

By jumping on the tree stump this platform will appear, allowing you to cross the gap..

Hitting this stone sets off an earthquake, but it hinders more than helps, as it makes jumping difficult and doesn't kill the beasties.

It's jumping all the way to avoid drowning. If only arm bands had been invented in those days! Insects will pose an airborne problem.

Level 2-6

Prepare to do a bit of inter-island flying over terrible, active volcanoes. Use Bignose's club as the earliest rota blade ever!Careful of birds!

Level 2-7

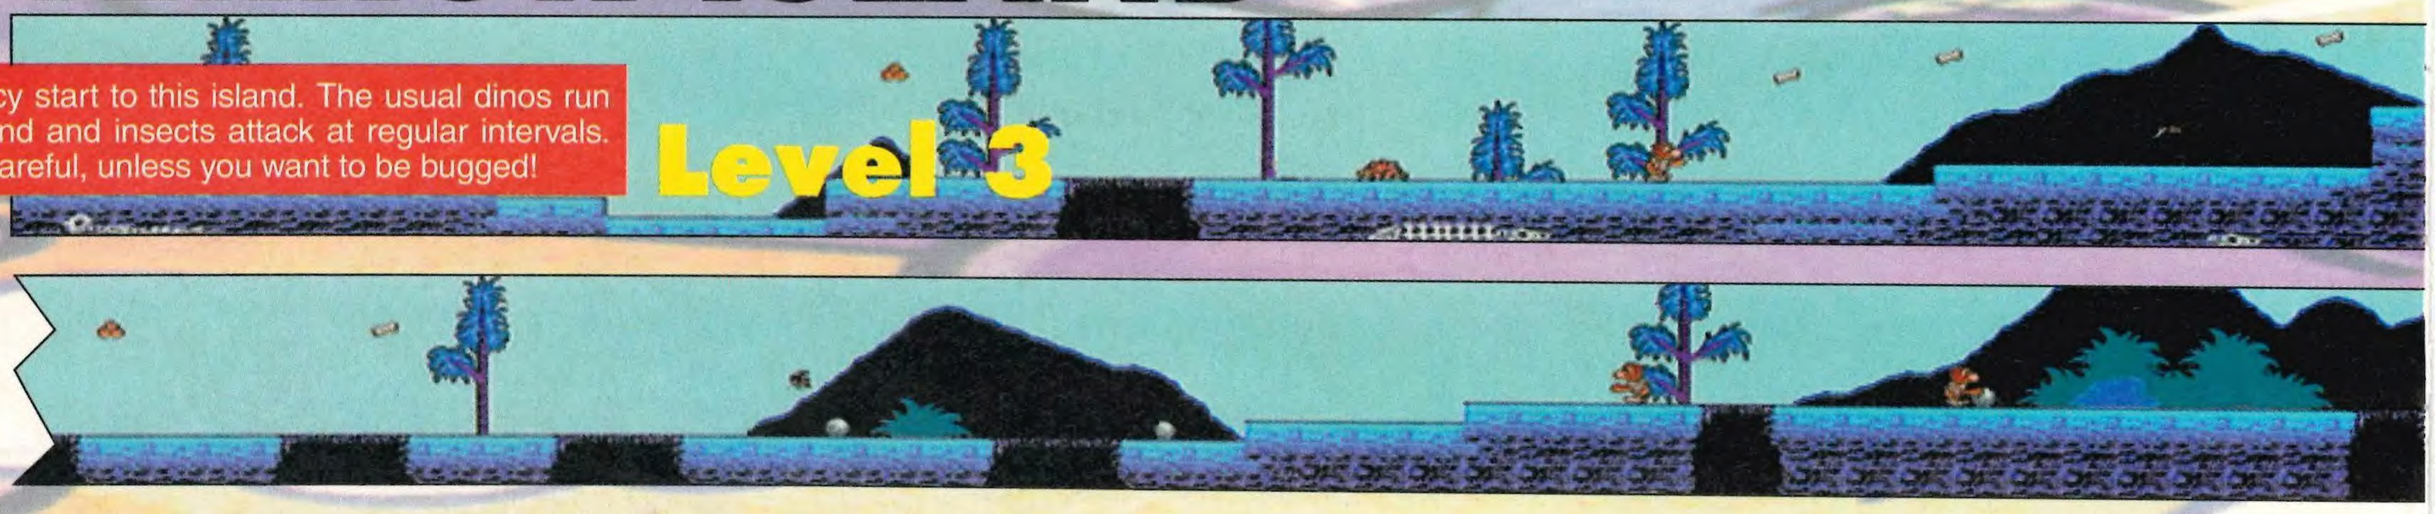

These volcanoes spit lava out at different rates. Learn the rhythms and wait till the last moment to fly past.

TERROR ISLAND

Birds swoop in from left and right so be ready to fire or move.

An icy start to this island. The usual dinos run around and insects attack at regular intervals. Be careful, unless you want to be bugged!

Level 3

Run for it! This bird can only be avoided by getting to higher ground than it 's flight path.

This crusty old scorpion can be dealt with easily by stone or club, so best not to waste a spell.

Watch out for a swooping insect near the end turtle. Just jump and bash when you see it .

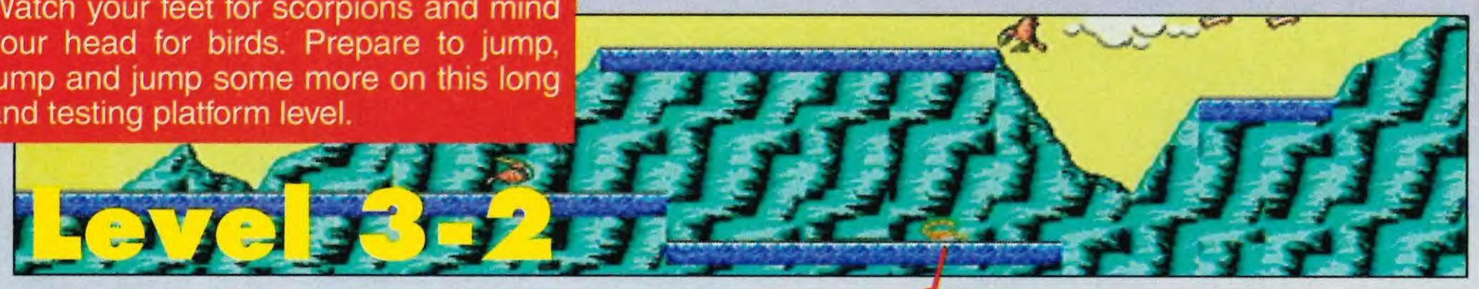

This whale spurts out a jet of water at our hero. Fly high or get waterlogged.

A bug flies by just as you near the final guardian. Touch it and you'll lose your firepower.

The final guardian tries to snatch you from the air.Stay high and fire from a distance. With only a club it's very tricky.

Watch your feet for scorpions and mind your head for birds. Prepare to jump, jump and jump some more on this long and testing platform level.

Level 3-2

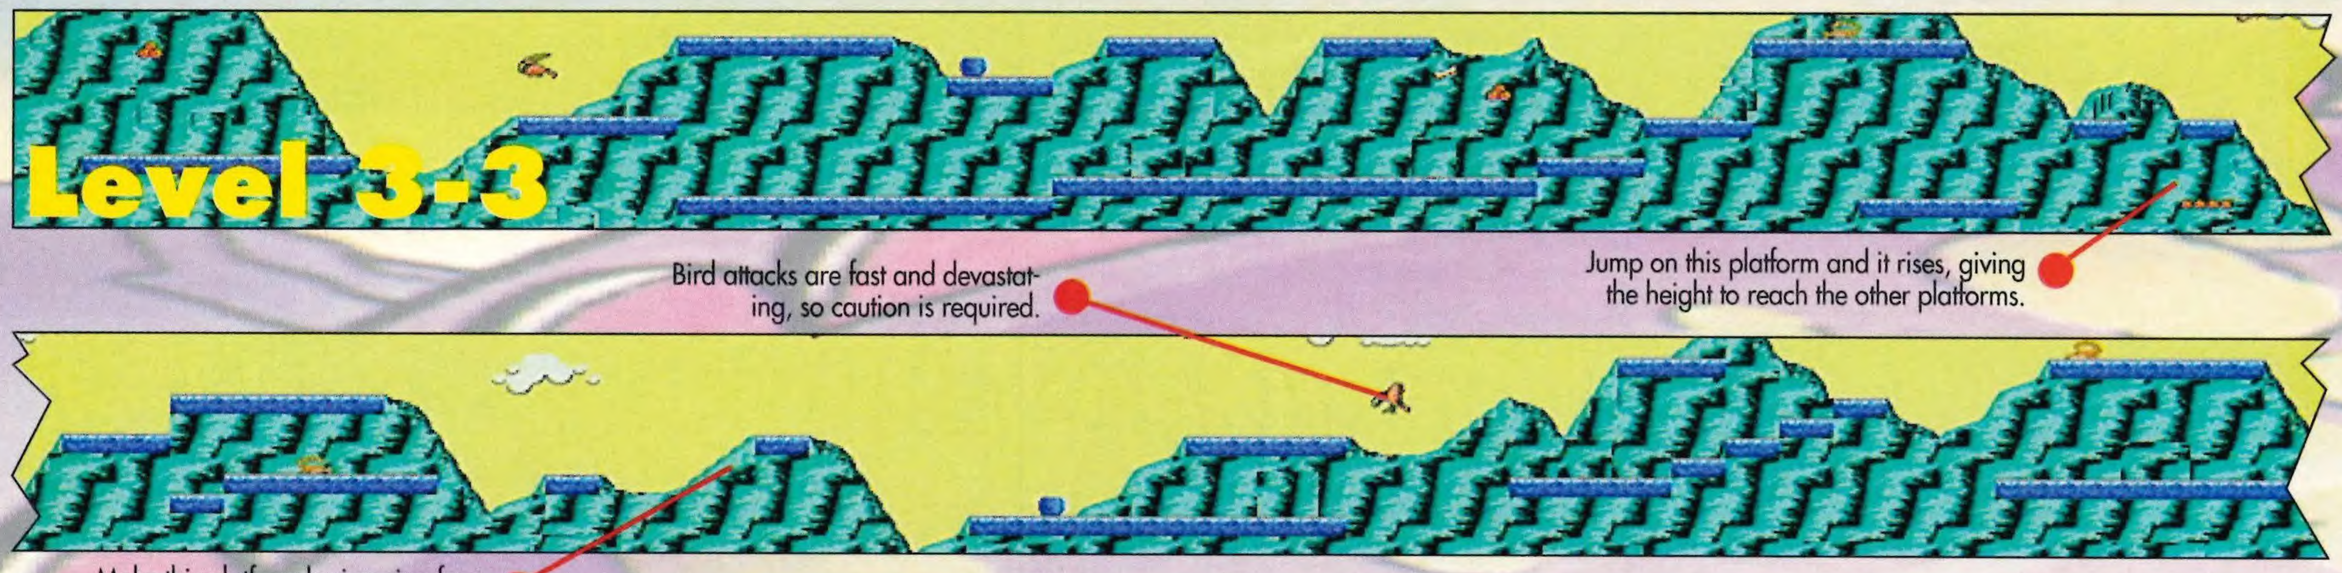

Scorpions dash about ready to pump Bignose full of venom. Bonk them on the head!

IN THE CLOUDS

It's easy to negotiate the clouds on this little half way stage.

Level 3-3

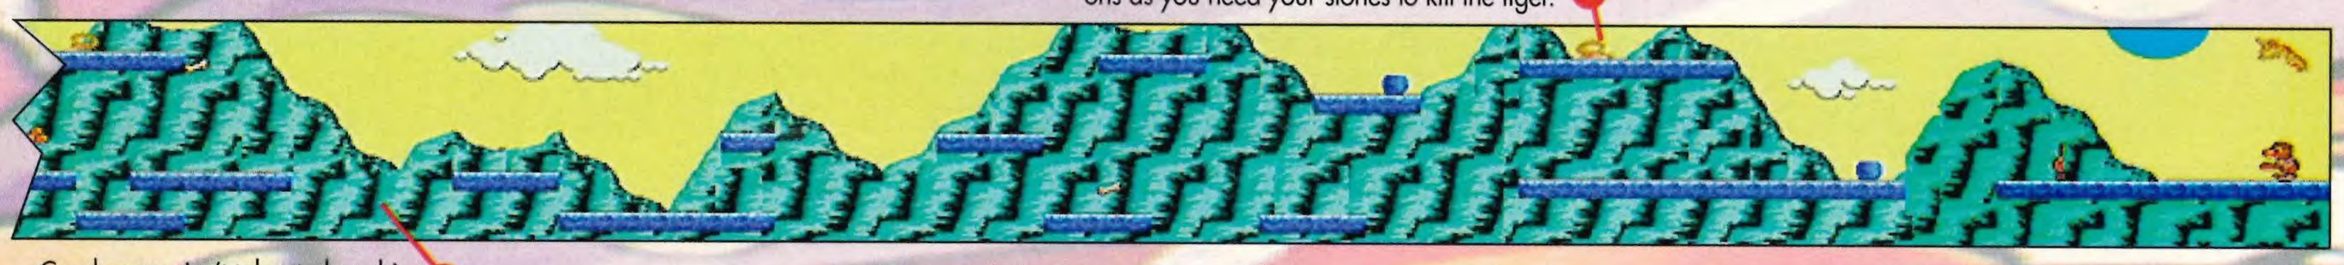

Bird attacks are fast and devastating, so caution is required.

Jump on this platform and it rises, giving the height to reach the other platforms.

Make this platform by jumping from the previous platform late.

Be extra careful not to trip up on the scorpions as you need your stones to kill the tiger.

Carelessness isn't tolerated on this level, so don't miss the wide jumps!

Underground in the dark and dingy bat invested caves. Watch out for the bats, they're a little hard to see. The same can't be said for the giant frogs!

Level 3-4

This hole leads to an underground route but it's not easy so be warned.

Jump down here to move on to progressing levels

Jump down the hole and the pillar blocking your way rises.

These pillars don't block your path as they're in the foreground. Beware of bat attack.

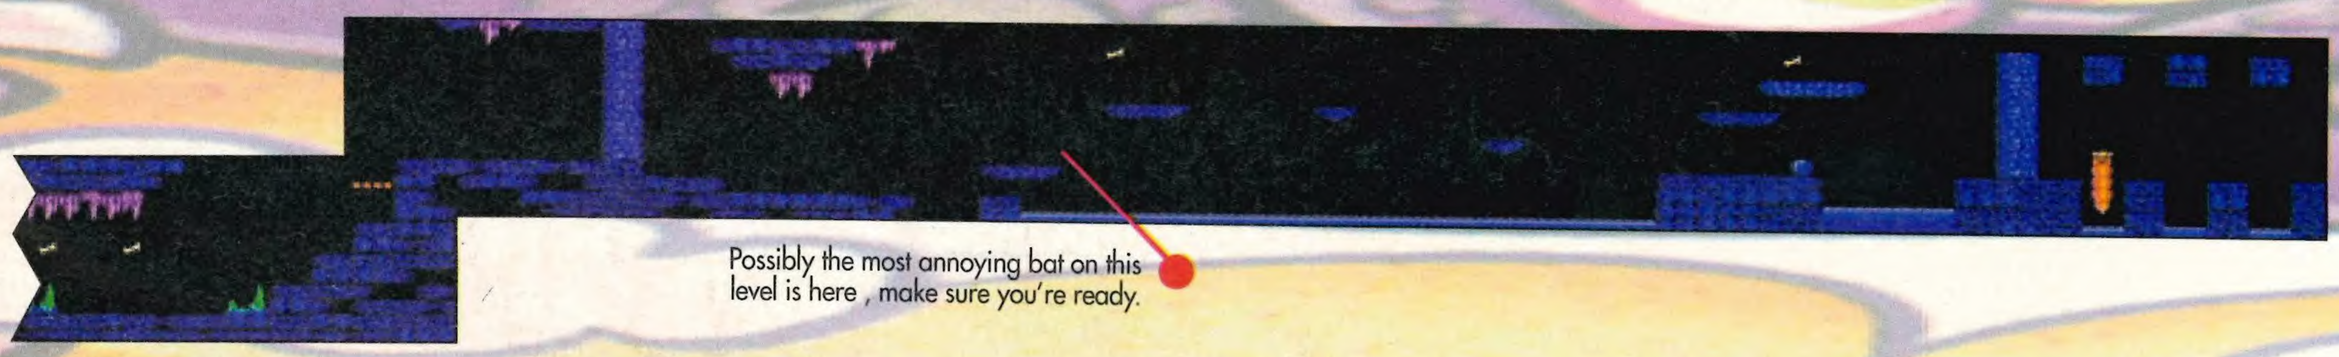

Jump down here and a platform appears, the pole blocking your way vanishes.

This lift goes up to the higher level. A bat is sneaking around here.

Tell this amphibian to frog off and give him a fair old clubbing. Watch out for the bats here.

Possibly the most annoying bat on this level is here , make sure you're ready.

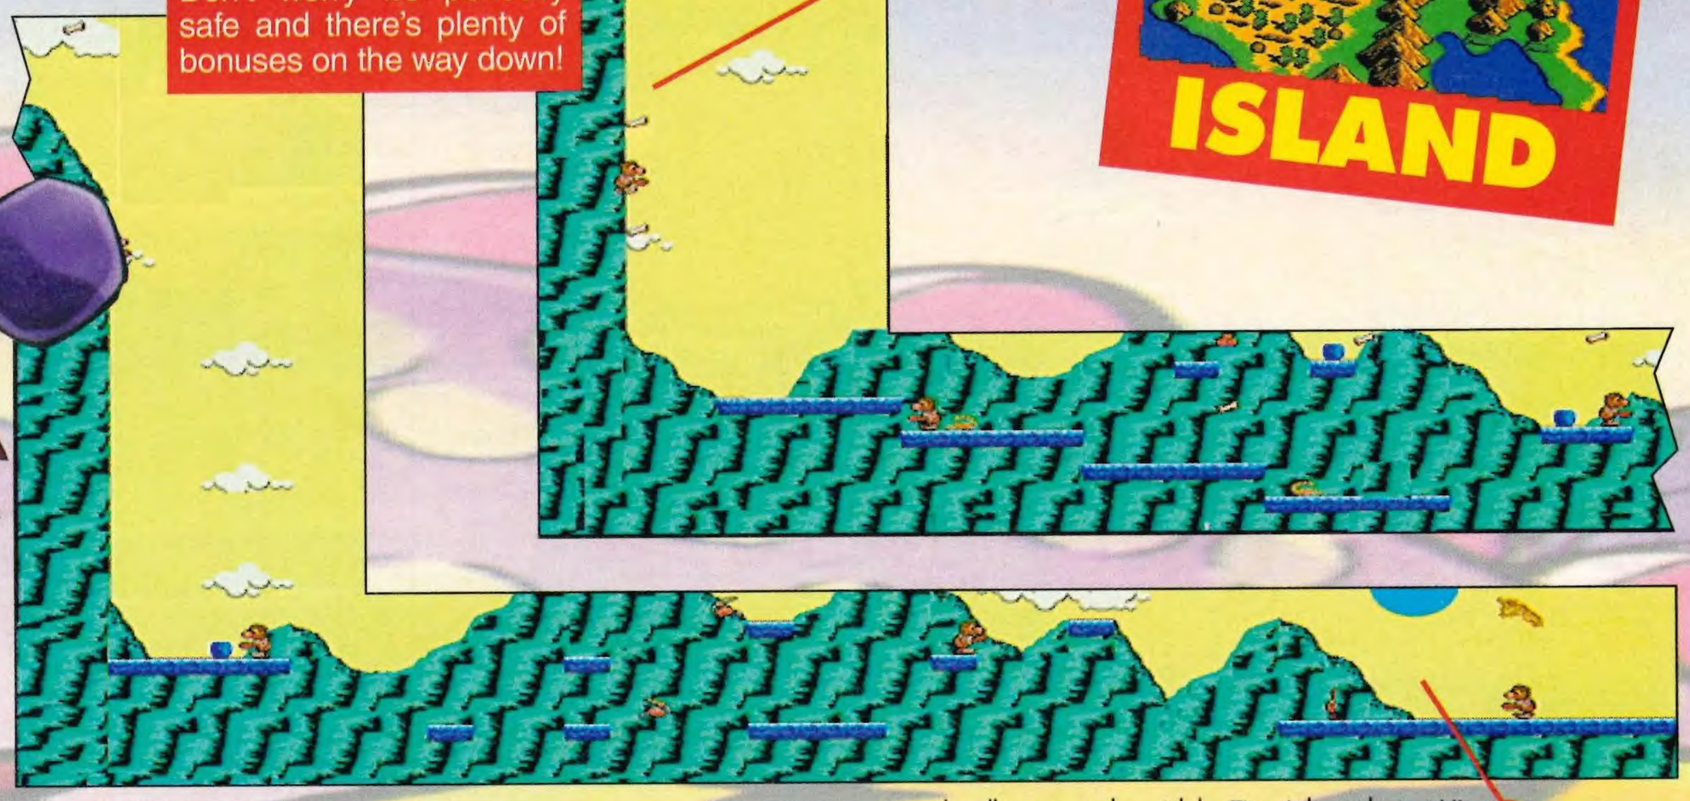

TERROR ISLAND

Level 3-5

To complete this level you have to jump off cliffs. Don't worry it's perfectly safe and there's plenty of bonuses on the way down!

Fall off the cliff. Yes, you heard me! Bones and stones await collection. What a great bonus!

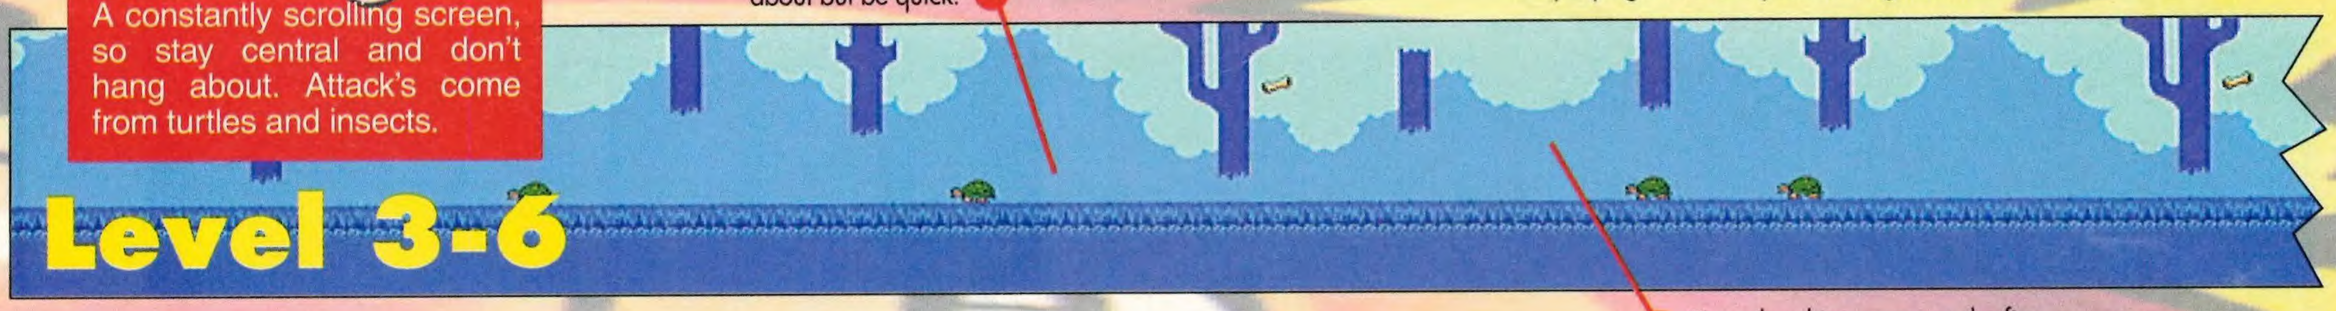

Level 3-6

A constantly scrolling screen, so stay central and don't hang about. Attack's come from turtles and insects.

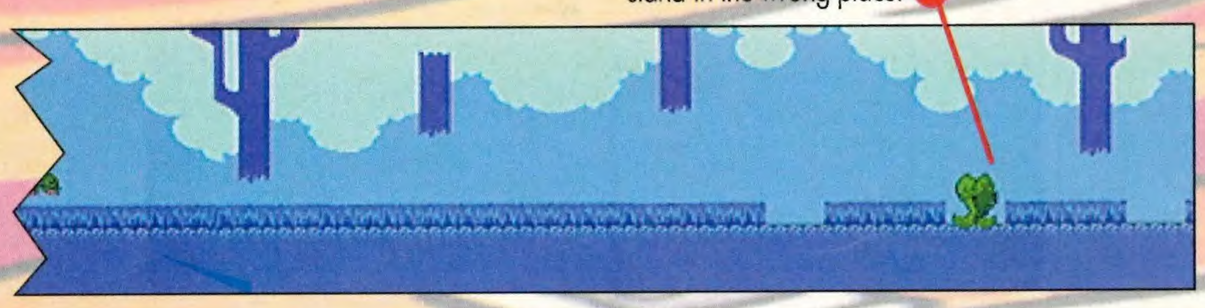

Only turtles and insects to worry about but be quick.

Stand well away and avoid the Tiger's huge leaps. His jumps get closer to you the longer it takes to kill him.

The fish knocks you flying if you stand in the wrong place.

Keep thrashing away on the fire button and stay fairly central.

GUARDIAN

Here fishy fishy! That cave cod is worth a free subscription to Angling Weekly. Stay in the middle of the second platform and fire or hit. Three hits should do the trick.

CAVE TRADERS

A choice of three caves confronts you every two or three levels.

An extra life is usually available if you enter the cave to the right

The Stun spell freezes any life around so you can put your club to work safely.

Percy may look cool, but his goods are rubbish!

The Hard Feet spell allows you to jump on anything and kill it.

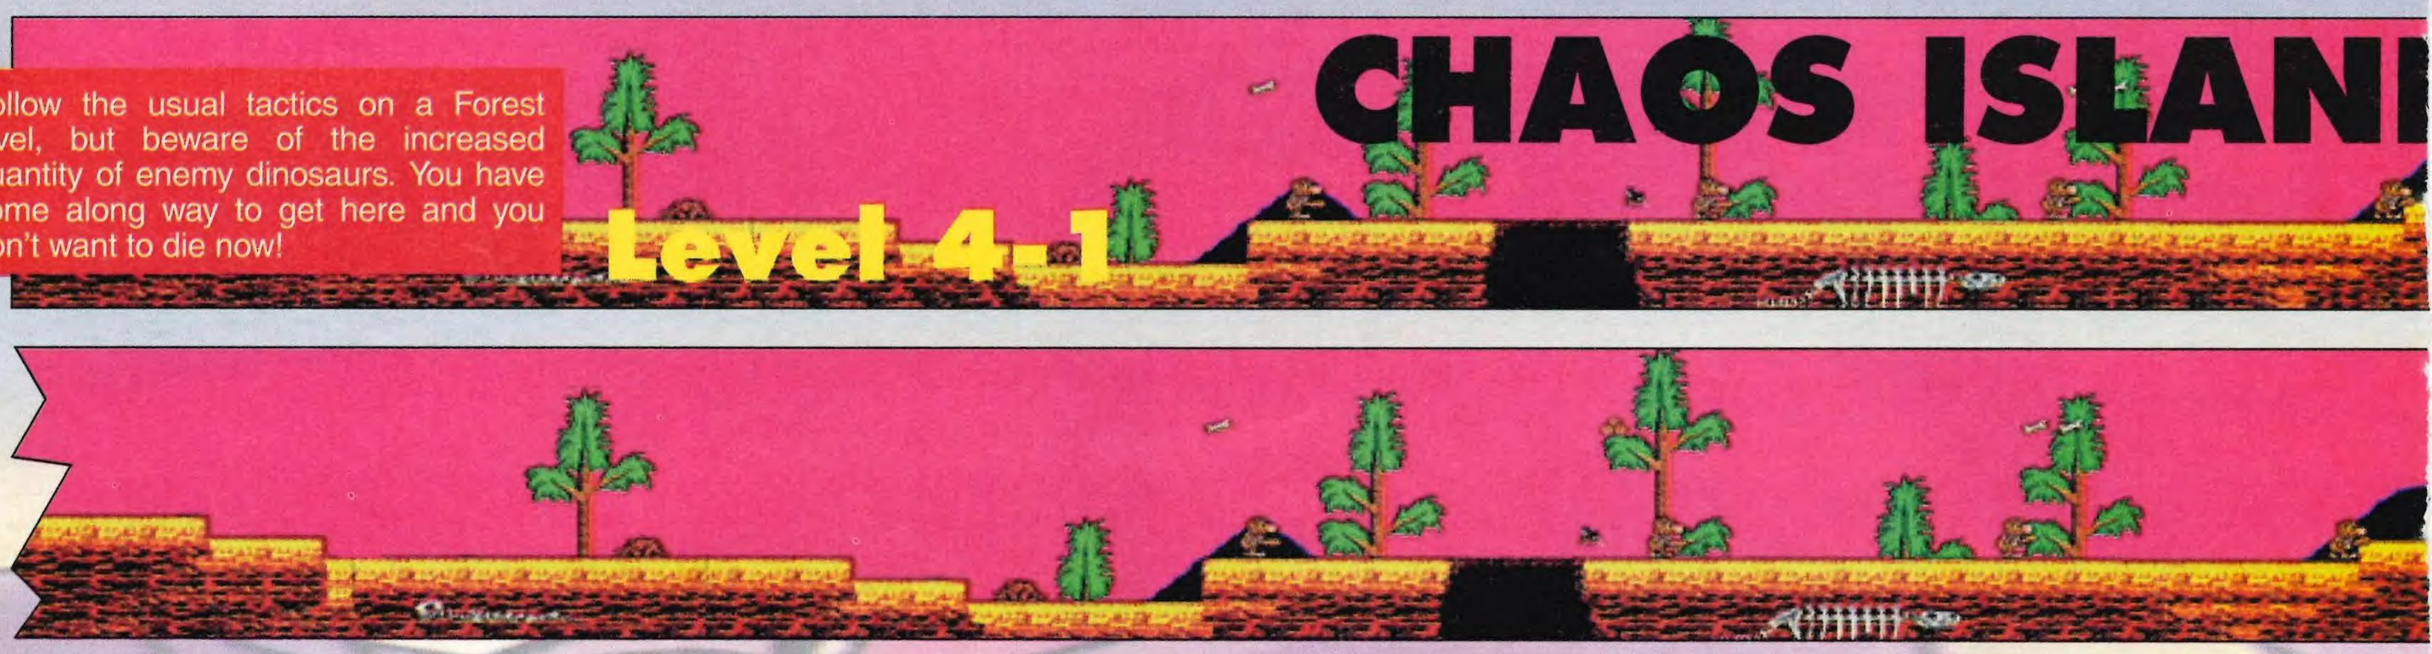

Stay off the drugs Stanley! Would you trust this man?

CHAOS ISLAND

Level 4-1

Follow the usual tactics on a Forest level, but beware of the increased quantity of enemy dinosaurs. You have come along way to get here and you don't want to die now!

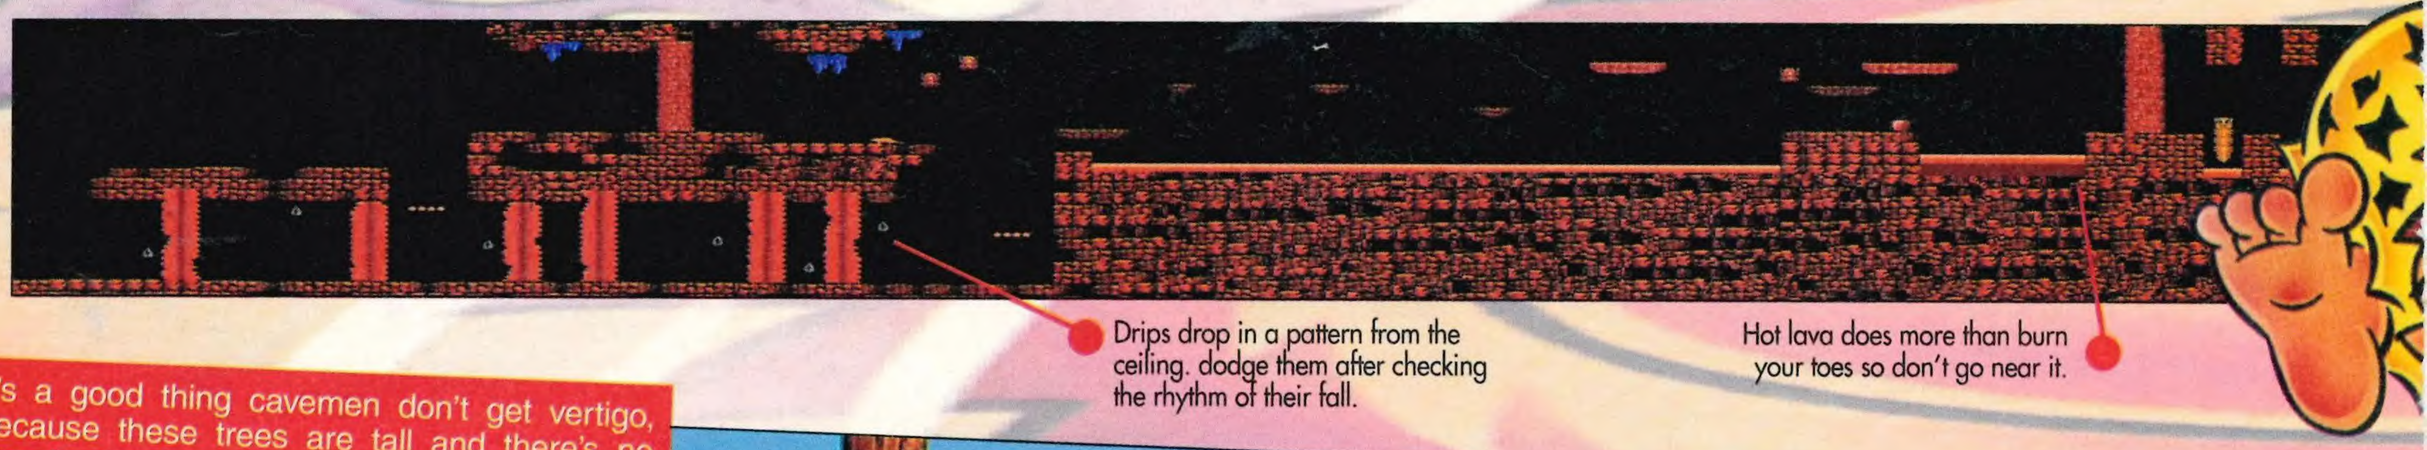

Level 4-2

Once again Bignose enters the dark inner chambers of his Prehistoric land. As this is the final world, and it's aptly titled Chaos Island, expect the action to really hot up It's best to take this level slowly and surely — remember less haste means more speed, or something!

An Underground level's down this hole, it's every bit as awkward as the upper level.

This is another one of the holes you jump in to trigger the release of the obstructing pillar.

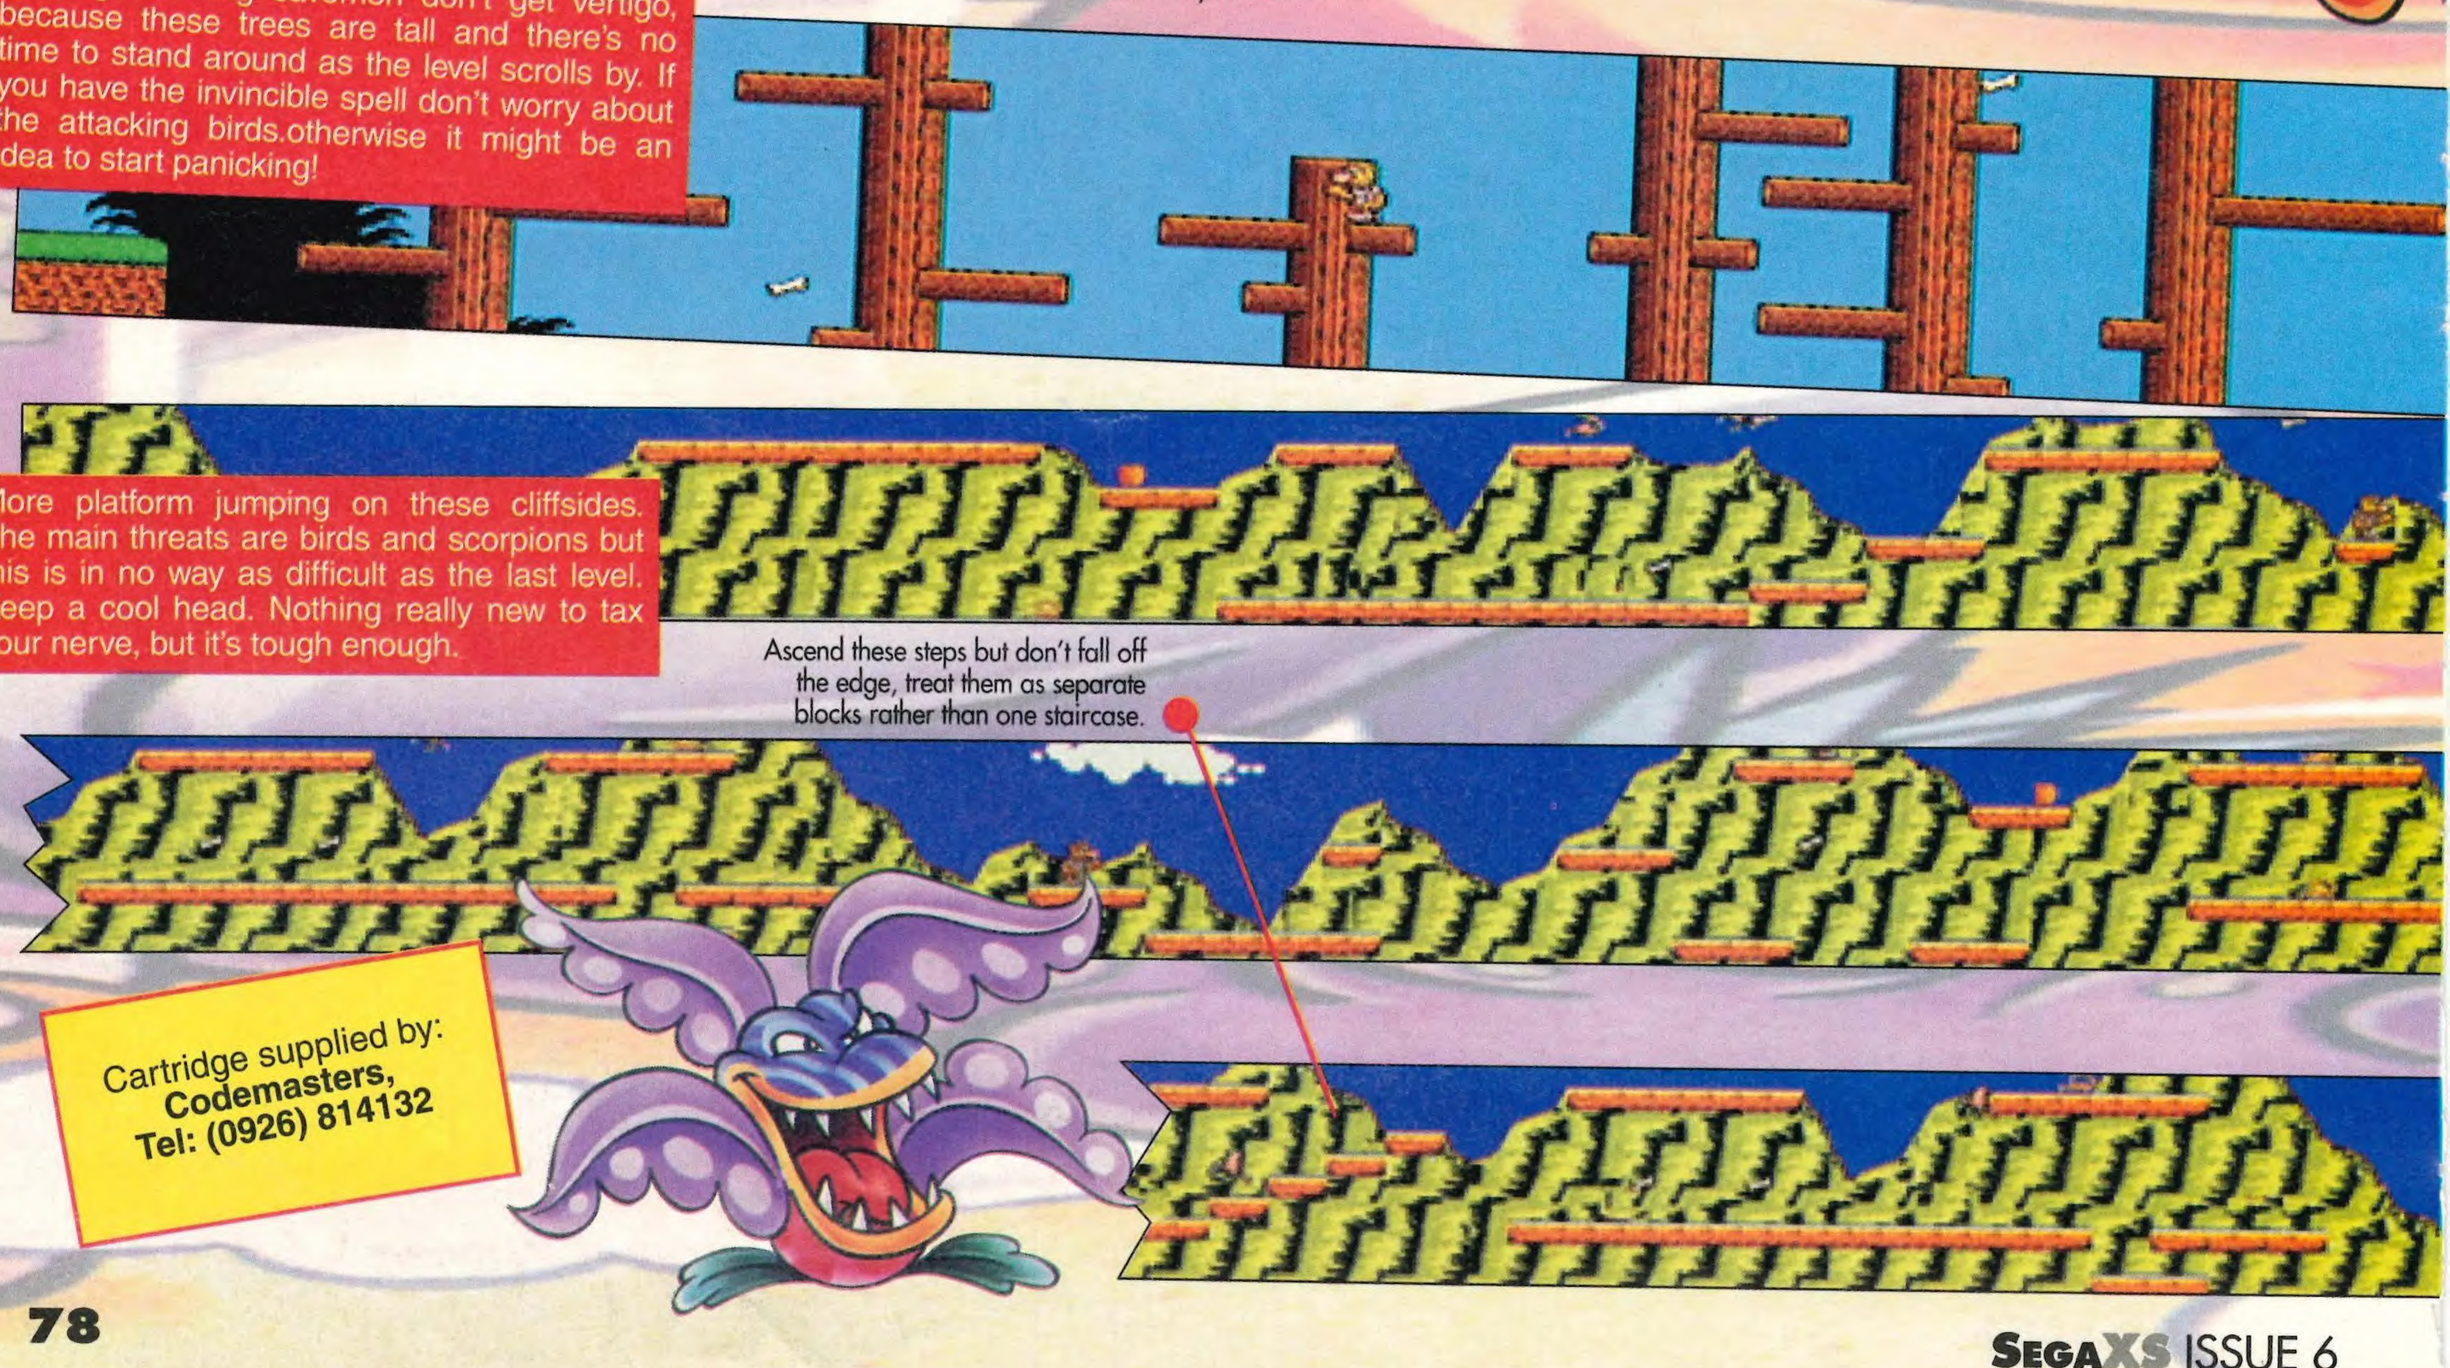

Drips drop in a pattern from the ceiling. dodge them after checking the rhythm of their fall.

Hot lava does more than burn your toes so don't go near it.

It's a good thing cavemen don't get vertigo, because these trees are tall and there's no time to stand around as the level scrolls by. If you have the invincible spell don't worry about the attacking birds.otherwise it might be an idea to start panicking!

More platform jumping on these cliffsides. The main threats are birds and scorpions but this is in no way as difficult as the last level. Keep a cool head. Nothing really new to tax your nerve, but it's tough enough.

Ascend these steps but don't fall off the edge, treat them as separate blocks rather than one staircase.

This fly creeps up behind you at head level. It's a good idea to jump it.

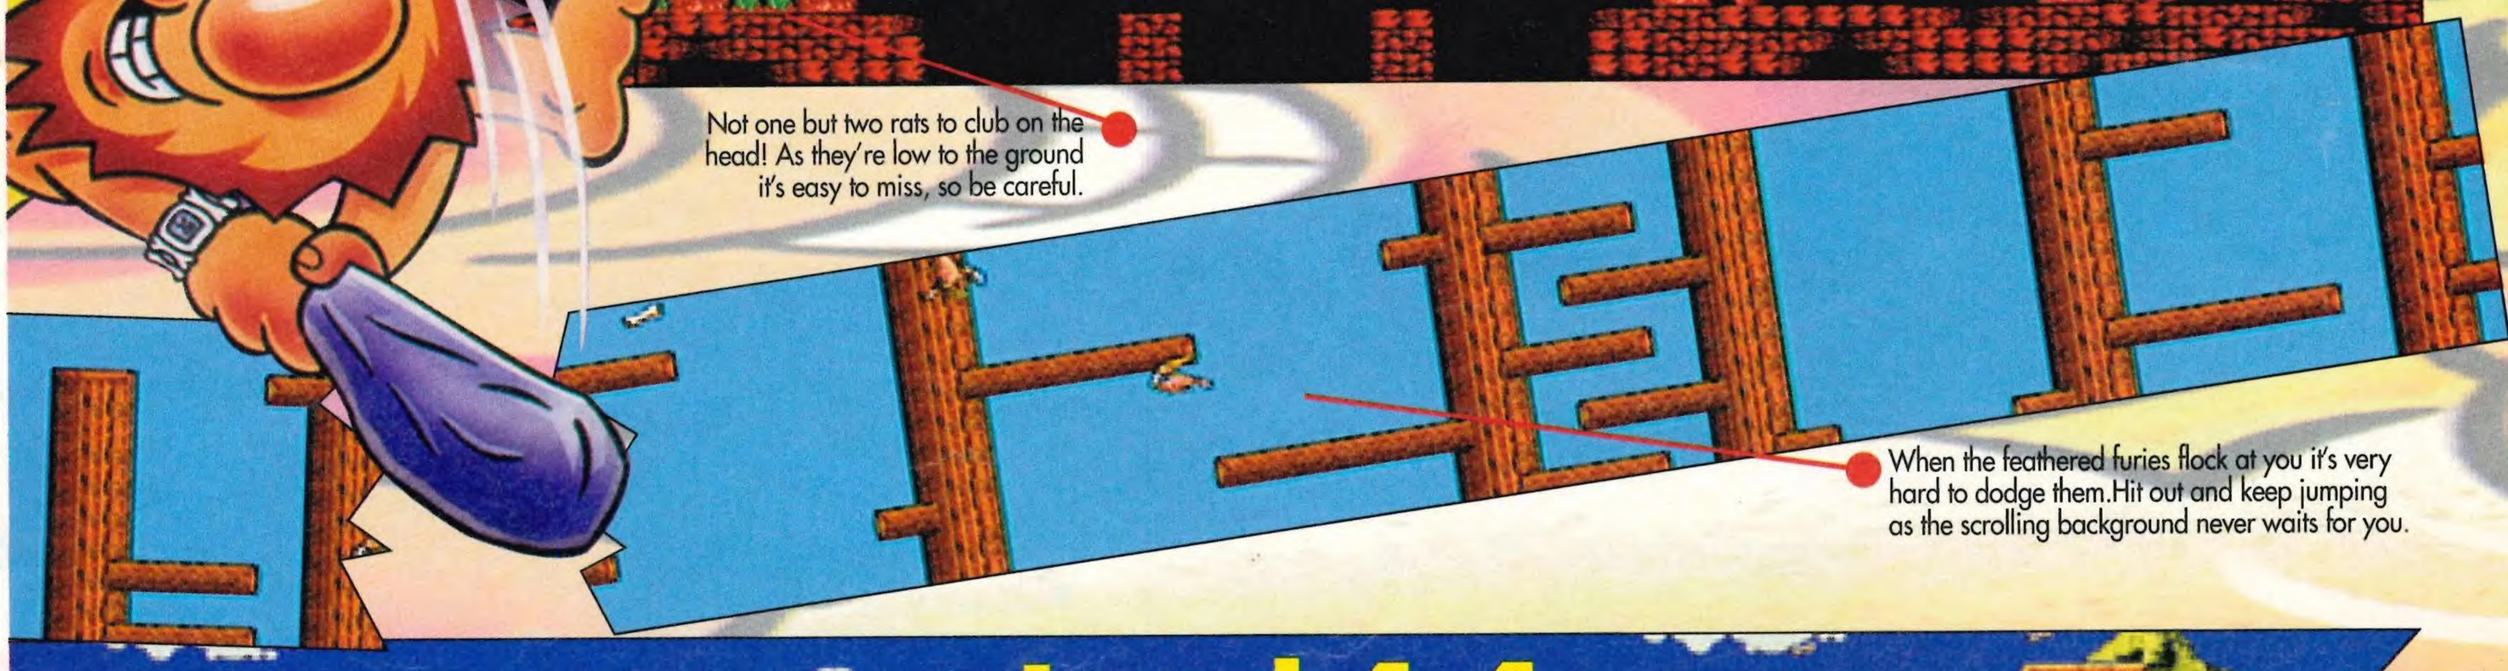

Big nasty spiders dangle on invisible threads. Time your runs to avoid them.

Not one but two rats to club on the head! As they're low to the ground it's easy to miss, so be careful.

When the feathered furies flock at you it's very hard to dodge them.Hit out and keep jumping as the scrolling background never waits for you.

Level 4-4

Once on this platform, make a huge leap to the next ledge.

Jumping here means losing sight of Bignose, so predict where he lands.

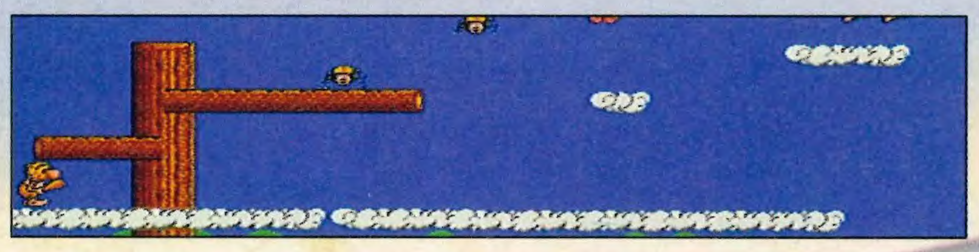

Level 4-7

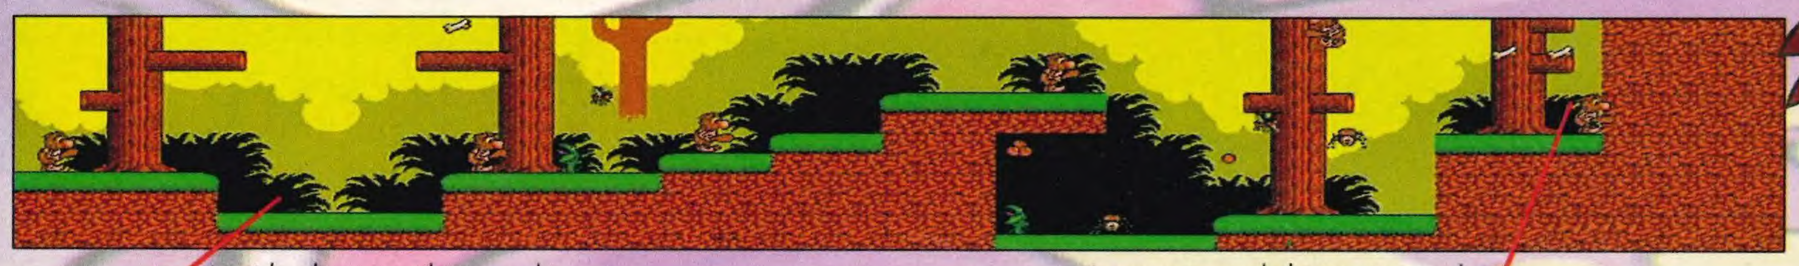

Spiders and man eating plants stand in your way on the jungle floor. Traverse the trees and tree stumps to reach the Scorpion guardian who awaits at the end.

Stay up with this moving bridge, as it moves while you stand still.

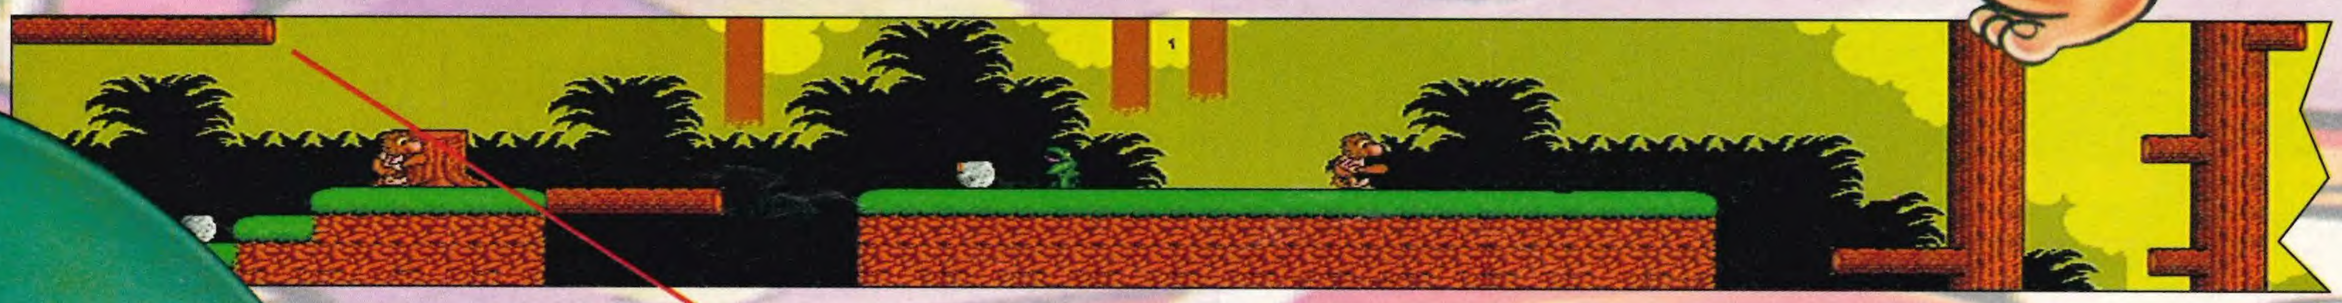

A spider dances on the ground between these trees so go above, on the branch platforms.

Jump up to reach the tree tops and get over the hill in the clouds.

Jumping from this branch leads to a trader and the chance to gain some spells.

Watch these spiders. Don't lose your ammo because you're about to face the guardian!

Fly over more lava-spewing volcanoes and battle it out with big irritating birds. An invincible spell would make your life a million times easier so prey you have one!

You've had it good up until now! These birds are in great supply and attack in waves of up to five!

REVIEWS

This the part of the magazine where we tell you what the Pros think of the latest batch of releases. That's right – reviews! Each review contains no less than 1000 words of complete critical appraisal and utter lies because we want the software companies to send us Ferraris and loads of dosh. No, really, each review will concentrate on value for money and how the game rates with the competition. Remember, the XS team complete every game they play and so who better talk about the entire game?

The 'XS Recommended' award will only go to those games that we would actually buy ourselves and must be of the highest quality. Examples of Recommended games are Street Fighter II:Special Champ Edition, Landstalker and Thunderhawk. Only the cremé de la cremé will get an 'XS Recommended'.

Well, it's a picture, innit! We concentrate on the words rather than the visuals and so the game shots in each review are limited. A selection of the levels will be pictured, unless it is a beat-'em-up when a selection of the moves will be illustrated. They say a picture can tell a thousand words, but XS reviews give you both!

The bulk text of the review will be an honest opinion on the game's merits and faults. The reviewers at XS are expert gamesplayers and so no one else can fill you in on the complete picture. Graphics, sound and general gameplay are explained in detail, but we also feel that the much-underrated challenge factor is often neglected. XS reviews will be concentrating on value for money and whether or not the game is actually worth the cash.

Instead of a percentage mark, we have included this 'at a glance' guide to the game's good and bad points. Each of these points will be expanded in the text of the review.

As we are a solutions magazine, each game gets a small selection of tips and cheats that we've discovered while playing the game. This section will also tell you if the game will be solved in a future issue.

No messin', this stats box will immediately tell you what you need to know. What machine? How much? How big? Where to get it and from whom. The MEG refers to the size of the game in Mbits. Most Mega Drive games vary between eight and 24 Mbits.

SEGA XS REVIEW

GROUND ZERO TEXAS

After Sewer Shark, Sony's firmly established itself in the fast growing CD market. Not wishing to let this creative outlet burn itself out they've invested a massive three million dollars just for the film footage in Ground Zero Texas — their latest interactive enterprise. Is this going to be money well spent or a case of flash the cash and dress an average game up with hype?

Set in a small, dusty Texan town, you're the last hope to rid the Earth of evil alien invaders. These guys aren't messing. They assume human form to fool the townspeople and pack state of the art alien laser guns.

To begin with you control four secret installations, situated at set locations in the town. These installations contain a camera, which acts as your window on specific parts of the town, and a particle beam disrupter, which, in shorthand, translates to, a gun! To fire your weapon simply aim at the cross-hair overlaid on the film.

It's hard not to draw comparisons to the old 60's cult TV serial The Invaders starring David Vincent. The game contains a similar contrived atmosphere of spooky suspense.

The sinister mood of distrust is felt with every pan of the camera along the busy streets, leaving you constantly wondering who's human and who's an alien impostor.

Ground Zero Texas is a variation on recent light gun games such as Lethal Enforcers and Mad Dog Mcree. It also has strong similarities to Night Trap.

You can alter your physical position, and thus viewpoint, within the town via the camera installations. Checking the town is simply a case of moving between the four camera posts.

Agents scattered around the town aid you and add a little character to the game. In some sequences your job's to act as cover for them in a confrontation.

Saving their hides gains a valuable code vital once you enter the Alien Base in Stage Two. Without the codes accessing the alien's computer and raiding their vast arsenal of high-tech weaponry is impossible.

Plenty of introductory film footage both enhances atmosphere and interrupts game action. There's apparently seventy minutes of pure film footage crammed in the grooves of the two CDs.

All the footage was directed by Dwight Little of Halloween IV and Home Alone fame. In this sense the CD can be described as the first interactive movie. Not bad for three million dollars!

The one disadvantage is play's via the joypad. Light Gun fans may feel this detracts from the excitement generated by using their favourite toy.

However, this small niggle shouldn't deter you from considering this superb game. There's simply too many commands for the Light Gun to handle. Not only do you shoot the bad guys, but joypad commands also protect the camera by erecting shields, as well as changing your location.

The CD images aren't digitised, but real film footage with loads of real actors and actresses. Shooting someone accesses a classic bit of overacting in the death sequence. Arms are thrown dramatically into the air as the victims fling themselves athletically against the walls.

This is all excellent fun, particularly in the later stages when the aliens discard their human disguises. These rubber suited fiends look like they've escaped from an early episode of Doctor Who!

The second stage begins with a mobile unit entering the alien base for some serious blasting.

Rest in peace, alien scumbag!

However, most impressive is the way they gruesomely explode in a shower of blood and guts when shot. Now that's what I call a brilliant piece of film footage!

Throughout the action the CD access is fast and glitch free. Sony obviously thought about the gameplay before they embarked on the programming. Until now these shooting games had one serious disadvantage — the predictability of the action.

In Ground Zero Texas just when you're feeling cocky and training your sights on the man shot last time round, the alien aggressor turns out to be someone completely different. Thus your reflexes are constantly in question and there's no chance to relax.

As the game progresses the action switches to a camera held by a mobile unit. This adds a different viewpoint on the game, placing it ahead of Lethal Enforcers in my estimation.

Another small difference between the games is the consequences of shooting an innocent bystander. If you kill some ordinary Joe or one of your own men prepare to be smacked very hard on the jaw by your superior officer. Ouch, nice touch Sony!

Ground Force Zero may not be particularly original, but, along with Thunderhawk, it's definitely the best game to blast it's way onto the Mega-CD at present.

I'm impressed by the feeling of quality exuding from the game. They've got the atmosphere and gameplay about right, while I applaud the way the game's been designed with a seemingly random selection of alien targets.

A must for fans of blood, gore and fast-paced shooters, Ground Zero Texas has taken up where the heavily flawed Night Trap left off. Definitely the best in the genre to date.

PROS

- The price is below average for CD's. A good sign considering the quality of the game. Keep it up Sony!
- Oodles of real film footage make this highly watchable and hugely entertaining.
- Gameplay's not as repetitive as predecessors in this genre.
- Reflexes are put through the mill.
- More plot than usual for a shoot-'em-up.
- Alien shrieks, eerie intro and credits music, and real film sound makes for realism. A definite plus in the atmosphere stakes.

CONS

- Action can get a little repetitive as you progress.
- Some of the film sequences may get on your nerves if you're thirsting for more action.
- No light gun detracts from shooting action.

TIPS

- Always check for the targets around alien impostors as distractions may occur to drag your attention away from the real foe.

XS RECOMMENDED

Jetta's not too happy about Xaviar's chat-up technique!

At long last there's a fight game to top Street Fighter II! Eternal Champions is the ultimate beat-'em-up, wiping the floor with the likes of Mortal Kombat and scrambling ahead of all the rest. Nine varied and awesome fighters compete in a superbly addictive and challenging tournament — the prize being life itself. With special moves in abundance and excellent graphics to boot, Eternal Champions looks every inch a classic!

Eternal Champions looks like a lot of other games in the genre. The big difference is it plays far better than anything I've seen before, including even Street Fighter II!

The graphics are up there with SF II, with atmospheric backgrounds and large, well defined sprites. There's nine superb characters to choose from, including Rax, a cyber-fighter, Slash, a prehistoric hunter and Shadow, a female corporate assassin. All fighting for the right to live once more.

Eternal Champions ' style improves upon the standard set by Street Fighter, with the greatest development being the control system. The special moves are quick and easy to perform, mainly due to the combinations of buttons and directions being more straightforward.

This doesn't mean the moves are limited though. The game boasts over a hundred different attacks and blocks, with each player's special moves being easy to activate. It can be played using a six button joypad, but a three button pad will do the trick. Simply use the start button to flick between kick and punch options.

This simple doubling up of buttons provides a good selection of differing combinations, bringing power to your finger tips, without having to go through difficult joypad manoeuvres.

The game boasts a vast array of options. The most notable of these is the background control panel. This feature is the first of it's kind, allowing you to add to the difficulty of the fight by turning weaponry on in the background.

Slash attacks below the belt.

As you fight, avoiding these weapons is vital. Flying rotary saws, fire mines, spiked balls, scatter grenades and another dozen or so hazards can be activated.

This extra option really adds to the difficulty of the fight, forcing you to not only avoid your opponents special moves, but also the crazy weaponry that races around the arena. It's great stuff and I love every minute of it!

This isn't the only game-changing option. The speed of the characters can be adjusted to slow, normal or overdrive, which is much faster than a full star compliment in SF II Turbo. The power of all the moves can also be turned down, making victory much harder and consequently more satisfying when victory's achieved.

Add the choice of background, and the built-in option to fight the same character, and you have a wonderful control basis to shape fight scenarios. There's even an instant replay option, allowing you to revel in your best bone-crunching moves over and over again!

The choice of characters is superb. The players all look great, with not one but two large breasted female characters (obviously the word sexist means nothing to you Neil!- Ed) to choose from. Shadow is a sort of Gothic Queen with thigh boots and suspenders, while Jetta has a more lady like appearance, wrapped in flimsy fabrics and chains of pure gold.

The other characters all have very distinctive looks and graceful moves. Blade, a bounty hunter from the future, looks like Wesley Snipes in Demolition Man and has awesome punching power. His arrogant attitude also insults the opposition and drains their inner-strength, weakening them for combat.

Rax is a CyberPunk kickboxer from the 24th century who produces a powerful fire ball from his stomach; Slash is a Prehistoric hunter who's weapon is a huge club and my favourite, Trident, is a green, fishy looking bloke from Atlantis with the best special moves I've ever seen. These include a very impressive scissors lock and flip.

The other characters all have their own little quirks and mysterious powers and they're always well designed and visually pleasing.

There are also plenty of options for the type of contest to compete in. Play in one player mode, fighting the characters in one-off battles, or in the main tournament. You can play in frenetic two player battles, or more than one player can enter the tournament in a battle for supremacy.

It's also possible to set up a multi-player event, allowing more than two players to compete. Ideal for settling simmering feuds about who's the best player in the SEGA XS office!

The number of options is stunning, making this the most addictive game of it's type ever to hit the streets. Eternal Champions leaves Street Fighter II and the best selling, but ultimately disappointing, Mortal Kombat in it's wake.

The best thing about Eternal Champions is the perfect blend of brilliant graphics and animation, with amazingly addictive gameplay. All too often a game will bring you one or the other. Eternal Champions not only looks cool but plays cool — it's simply the best!

NA

PROS

- Colourful and well drawn backgrounds.
- Excellent variation of characters and moves.
- Staggeringly crisp graphics are complemented by clear and well designed sprites.
- Awesome playability and instantly addictive gameplay
- Superb sound FX.
- Easy to use control system.

CONS

- The high price of the cart may be off putting to all but die-hard beat-'em-up fans.
- A similar style to Street Fighter II.

TIPS

- Once you learn the special moves for a couple of characters you find the same buttons are used for most special moves. If using a three button joypad, it's easy enough to swap between the kick and punch options to gain the effect of all the special moves.
- Before entering the contest for real it's a good idea to first get some practice in in the Training Mode. This allows you to improve your reactions through a series of different tests. Each of the tests also allow you to learn a characters special moves and test them out without the pressure of combat. Remember practice nearly always makes perfect!

SKITCHIN'

Rollerblading down highways and grabbing onto the back of the nearest passing car's always a favourite pastime of mine. Oh, how I remember those wild, carefree and misspent days of youth. My, what fun... Of course, I'm much older now (13 and counting!) and those days are far behind me, but can you imagine my joy when this game turned up at the office? This takes me back, I can tell you!

Much in the Road Rash mould, Electronic Arts latest extravaganza's based on the mad, bad world of Skitcin'. The game's a street smart and gritty portrayal of a young rookie skitcher, trying to upstage the veterans in a series of illegal races across America and Canada. The ultimate goal's claiming the title of Top Dog.

When you first switch the machine on there's a warning message telling you not to attempt any of the stunts portrayed in the game. Ha! Those crazy guys at EA! I mean as if we would, eh?

Everything from the scrolling, to the screen layout, right up to the way the screen pans out from you at the finish of a race is half-inched from Road Rash. What's different though is the controls and means of travel — gone's the bike, only to be replaced by a radical pair of rollerblades.

The Skitchin' formation dancers lean to the left!

Don't try this at home kids. Well, it looks bloody painful for a start.

With shirt-tails flying and drum-heavy rock blaring, the skating begins. After a few seconds, the first car approaches in the rear-view mirror. Waiting in the middle of the road until it's level with you, you skate across and grab hold of it's back bumper, hanging on for dear life.

It's possible to use the car's momentum to propel the skater forward to the next car along the road. If you happen to meet one of the other competitors along the way? Well, heh, what's an elbow in the face ever done to anyone? Just ask Gary Mabbutt!

Along the way, there's plenty to pick-up. A small armoury of weapons to use against the other skitchers is at your disposal — crowbars, whips, screwdrivers, nunchuchas, chains and iron bars; name it and these guys use it!

Obstacles make the road even more dangerous. These include potholes and wire-mesh. Grabbing onto the backs of cars has it's dangers as well, it's no fun being smacked in the face by a car boot or another skater!

Straight up guv, it just fell off the back of a lorry.

To advance in the competition, you must win loads of money in order to pay your way. There's several ways of doing this, including hitting people, skitchin' cars and trucks and performing outrageous tricks.

To perform tricks jump over ramps and generally act like a complete idiot along the way. The more daring the stunt, the higher the prize money.

After each race, it's into the local skate shop to get hold of the latest high-tech skate wear. The more money you have, the better the equipment. Knee pads, elbow pads and better skates are all available and add a bit of variety to the proceedings.

The game contains some brilliant music, depending on your tastes. Metallica style metal is the order of the day. Headbanging? Was I!

Sound effects are top notch, with the soothing swish of the skates clashing with the bone-crunching thud of a car hitting a skater in the back. Well done Electronic Arts, ten out of ten in the jive stakes!

The graphics are way above average with convincing cars, buildings, trees and other skitchers flashing past at quite a rate; especially in the single player mode. Even in the split-screen two player mode, the game hardly slows down, although the sprites are noticeably smaller.

One small niggle, the two player mode's smaller graphics make catching onto the back of vehicle's much harder. Although the competitive edge more than compensates for this.

Everything about this game suggests hardwork on the programmers part. The games front end is very polished, with the spotlight in the options screen a refreshing break from the usual arrows and spots you normally get as a cursor.

The game's full of radical options — the pre-race television build-up as the rival skaters give their tips on skitching, the built-in 'CD'-player that acts as a sound test, I could go on and on. The bottom-line is — it's a brilliant game. It's got a thumping soundtrack, superb graphics and it's just awesome to play.

So why no recommendation? To put it simply, as good as the game is, there's no variety. Once you've won a few races, you've seen most of the game.

On the other hand, if you're a fan of Metallica, skating or skitching (like me!) this is the game for you. Buy baby, buy!

MP

The long road home!

PROS

- The actual concept of the game is very brave and original.
- This game's fast and furious, even in two player mode.
- The music is trash-metal-tastic mates! If you like that sort of thing.
- The graphics are top quality.
- There's new equipment to buy after every race.

CONS

- Too similar to the Road Rash games to ever win awards for originality.
- There is not a lot of variation between the races.

TIPS

- Stay in the centre of the road to avoid being knocked down by overtaking cars. It's also easier to grab onto them in this position.
- Note down the password after every race, so, if something goes wrong in the next race, simply enter the old password and you don't lose any money.

As you can see, these girls are impressed by Normy!

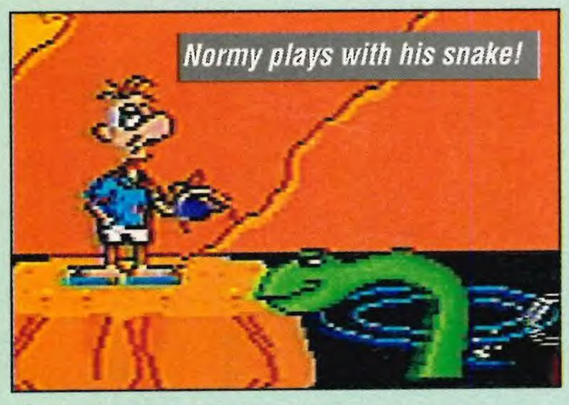

NORMY

This Normy's a bit of a nerd! I mean, just look at him. He's best described as a cross between David Bellamy and Bart Simpson. Normy's the type of guy everyone calls rude names and generally makes life miserable for at school. Anyway, he's an unlikely hero, but hero he becomes in the latest platformer from Electronic Arts.

Normy is something of a departure for Electronic Arts. I mean, this game's weird! The environments are really varied — how many game's do you know with levels ranging from the Californian surfing beaches to Transylvania and all the way back to the Stone Age. Like I said, weird!

There's six worlds in all to explore, each with it's own peculiarities and problems. For instance, in 1970s Transylvania you've four wacky stages of a spooky castle to overcome. It's packed to the rafters with ghosts and ghoulies, all out to scare the pants off poor old Normy!

The game ends up in the dark depths of hell, taking you on another exploration of the spooky side of life and death.

Normy plays with his snake!

It all sounds like great fun, but, before you get too excited, read on. Let me explain why Normy's moving through time and, more importantly, what I actually think of the game…

Normy's walking down the street one bright, sunny day, admiring the girls

It must be love.

when a most unlikely event occurs. A flying saucer zooms down from the heavens and literally sucks up all the beach babes! Jeepers! What shall poor old Normy do?

As the poor guy's musing over this very question, a passing crane, that's a type of bird, fool, drops him the answer in the form of a note. This tells him to travel through time after the girls and save the day.

A few seconds later the crane flies by again, as they do, this time dropping a bottle of suntan time-travel oil — you know the stuff, £4.99 in Boots. Normy promptly rubs half the cream onto himself and drinks the rest, this scenario just gets weirder and weirder!

A white light surrounds our hero and he's engulfed in a ball of energy, disappearing into the mists of time in search of the scantily clad babes. Definitely a plot short on political correctness!

Normy's a one-player, platform puzzle/beat-'em-up. Unfortunately, it's also the worst EA game to come along in a long while. There's no skill levels, the graphics are terrible, the sound's even worse and it plays like a second-rate B.O.B. (and that was bad enough).

Now don't get me wrong, I love Electronic Arts, but quite who they want to sell this to is beyond me. Compared to top-quality platform games like Aladdin, Sonic and Flashback it's a stinker. Normy fails to do justice to a genre already stretched to the limit.

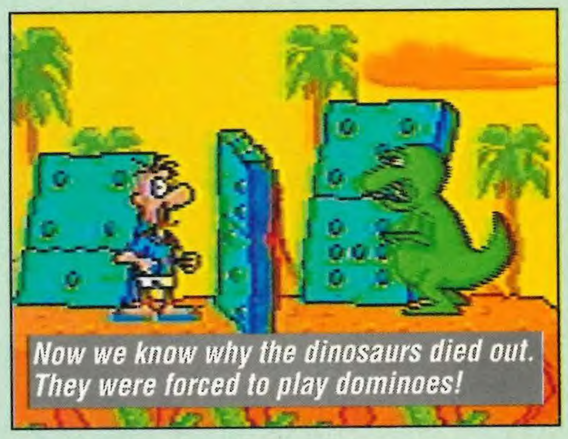

So where do I begin to explain my bad vibes, baby? Well let's start with the graphics. At first the words 'Interactive Cartoon' flash to mind. Big, exaggerated and colourful creatures wander around a funky landscape, bringing a grin to your face.

Sadly these positive vibes last about a minute, before you realise actually playing the game's disrupted by the style of the graphics.

They're so annoying! It's the way they're drawn — big heads, skinny arms and big feet. It just doesn't work, distracting you constantly from the, already poor, gameplay.

The sound's also well below par. If you want to hear a bad rendition of the Toe Jam and Earl theme look no further! It all sounds like great fun, but, before you get too excited, read on. Let me explain why Normy's moving through time and, more importantly, what I actually think of the game…

Normy attempts his best pig impression.

Now we know why the dinosaurs died out. They were forced to play dominoes!

ther! It tries to be cute and funky, but sadly doesn't succeed.

During play the idea's to solve puzzles in order to progress. For example, the route in the first level is blocked by a giant female dinosaur.

What do you do to pass her? Go back and kill another female dinosaur, leaving her baby all alone. The baby follows you until you reach the other dinosaur, who then adopts the orphan and allows you to continue. It's a cruel idea, granted, but the baby seems to recover from the shock fairly quickly!

The gameplay isn't particularly riveting. You jump, you kill, you collect, you fall asleep, you wake up, you curse yourself for not reading the SEGA XS review and buying a smashing game like Eternal Champions instead!

To put it bluntly, the game's formula is too old and repetitive to stand up to today's standards. Sorry EA, but that's the way the cookie crumbles.

To be frank EA should stick to sports games; it's what they do best and we love 'em for it!

MP

PROS

- Quite original plot (I suppose…).
- Colourful graphics.

CONS

- The graphics are not only poor, but annoying as well.
- The music's of a low standard.
- The sound effects are harsh on the ears.
- The game formula is very stale.

TIPS

- When jumping across the gaps on the second stage of level one, jump slightly before the edge to avoid being bitten by the snakes.

These installations contain a camera, which acts as your window on specific parts of the town, and a particle beam disrupter, which, in shorthand, translates to, a gun! To fire your weapon simply aim at the cross-hair overlaid on the film.

It's hard not to draw comparisons to the old 60's cult TV serial The Invaders starring David Vincent. The game contains a similar contrived atmosphere of spooky suspense.

The sinister mood of distrust is felt with every pan of the camera along the busy streets, leaving you constantly wondering who's human and who's an alien impostor.

Ground Zero Texas is a variation on recent light gun games such as Lethal Enforcers and Mad Dog Mcree. It also has strong similarities to Night Trap.

You can alter your physical position, and thus viewpoint, within the town via the camera installations. Checking the town is simply a case of moving between the four camera posts.

Agents scattered around the town aid you and add a little character to the game. In some sequences your job's to act as cover for them in a confrontation.

Saving their hides gains a valuable code vital once you enter the Alien Base in Stage Two. Without the codes accessing the alien's computer and raiding their vast arsenal of high-tech weaponry is impossible.

Plenty of introductory film footage both enhances atmosphere and interrupts game action. There's apparently seventy minutes of pure film footage crammed in the grooves of the two CDs.

All the footage was directed by Dwight Little of Halloween IV and Home Alone fame. In this sense the CD can be described as the first interactive movie. Not bad for three million dollars!

The one disadvantage is play's via the joypad. Light Gun fans may feel this detracts from the excitement generated by using their favourite toy.

However, this small niggle shouldn't deter you from considering this superb game. There's simply too many commands for the Light Gun to handle. Not only do you shoot the bad guys, but joypad commands also protect the camera by erecting shields, as well as changing your location.

The CD images aren't digitised, but real film footage with loads of real actors and actresses. Shooting someone accesses a classic bit of overacting in the death sequence. Arms are thrown dramatically into the air as the victims fling themselves athletically against the walls.

This is all excellent fun, particularly in the later stages when the aliens discard their human disguises. These rubber suited fiends look like they've escaped from an early episode of Doctor Who!

Rest in peace, alien scumbag!

However, most impressive is the way they gruesomely explode in a shower of blood and guts when shot. Now that's what I call a brilliant piece of film footage!

Throughout the action the CD access is fast and glitch free. Sony obviously thought about the gameplay before they embarked on the programming. Until now these shooting games had one serious disadvantage — the predictability of the action.

In Ground Zero Texas just when you're feeling cocky and training your sights on the man shot last time round, the alien aggressor turns out to be someone completely different. Thus your reflexes are constantly in question and there's no chance to relax.

As the game progresses the action switches to a camera held by a mobile unit. This adds a different viewpoint on the game, placing it ahead of Lethal Enforcers in my estimation.

Another small difference between the games is the consequences of shooting an innocent bystander. If you kill some ordinary Joe or one of your own men prepare to be smacked very hard on the jaw by your superior officer. Ouch, nice touch Sony!

Ground Force Zero may not be particularly original, but, along with Thunderhawk, it's definitely the best game to blast it's way onto the Mega-CD at present.

I'm impressed by the feeling of quality exuding from the game. They've got the atmosphere and gameplay about right, while I applaud the way the game's been designed with a seemingly random selection of alien targets.

A must for fans of blood, gore and fast-paced shooters, Ground Zero Texas has taken up where the heavily flawed Night Trap left off. Definitely the best in the genre to date.

RF

The second stage begins with a mobile unit entering the alien base for some serious blasting.

PROS

- The price is below average for CD's. A good sign considering the quality of the game. Keep it up Sony!
- Oodles of real film footage make this highly watchable and hugely entertaining.
- Gameplay's not as repetitive as predecessors in this genre.
- Reflexes are put through the mill.
- More plot than usual for a shoot-'em-up.
- Alien shrieks, eerie intro and credits music, and real film sound makes for realism. A definite plus in the atmosphere stakes.

CONS

- Action can get a little repetitive as you progress.
- Some of the film sequences may get on your nerves if you're thirsting for more action.
- No light gun detracts from shooting action.

TIPS

Always check for the targets around alien impostors as distractions may occur to drag your attention away from the real foe.
Never rely on what you have learnt about the identity of villains from a previous game.
If you leave your camera, put a shield around it for safety.

The goalie leathers the ball up-field

As the World Cup looms closer the amount of football simulations for the Mega Drive is ever increasing. The latest off the conveyor belt is Accolade's Pelé, officially endorsed by the superstar himself. The big question is, can it match up to the heady heights already set by EA's FIFA International Soccer?

Pelé — the name conjures up sweet, sweet memories. The man's arguably the greatest footballer ever to walk this earth, while the Brazilian team he graced played with a style and panache rarely seen since. If only England could play the game the same way, we might not be the laughing stock we are now. I'm allowed to dream aren't I?

Brazil's also the team that Charles Hughes, Director of Football at the English FA, accuses of playing the game incorrectly. According to this great footballing brain, the Brazilian World Cup winners played around with the ball too much. His philosophy is simple — get the ball forward as quickly as possible, sacrifice skill for aggression and ignore ball players in favour of workers.

He was also partly responsible for the appointment of Graham Taylor (Thank god he's long gone!) as England manager. Let's hope the new manager, Terry Venables, lives up to his promises.

It's really no wonder our national game's sunk to the depths it has. Let's hope the future sees English football attempting to emulate the better qualities of the Brazilian style of play, while still retaining our own attributes. However, with Hughes controlling the game from the grass roots up, the future looks bleak.

Anyway, enough of my ranting, what about Pelé the game? Well, unfortunately, it ignores all the qualities associated with the great man. Apparently Pelé was involved in all levels of the game's development, and kept a close eye on what went into the game. If this is the case something went ever so slightly wrong.

A dazzling piece of wing-wizardry leaves the defender gobsmacked!

For a start, the easiest way to win the game is by belting the ball down the field, scrapping for possession and then attempting a quick snapshot. This all seems more akin to the Charlie Hughes school of football methinks!

Before looking at the gameplay, let's inspect the options available to you. The game allows you to control club teams from around the world, there's teams from Europe, South America and even the USA.

The next stage is selecting the type of competition you wish to participate in. There's a choice of an exhibition match, a knock-out tournament or a full league season.

Other options include changing the colour of your team strip, selecting your team members from the player roster and changing the team formation to suit your style of play.

As in all footie sims, the players can pass the ball long or short, slide tackle or barge, and head the ball. They can also perform bicycle kicks if your timing's just right. It's more likely they'll be kicking thin air than the ball though!

The match is viewed from a similar perspective to FIFA International, and the player controls are also from the same school. Sadly, that's where the similarities end.

Pelé is simply not in the same league as it's illustrious predecessor. The action is far too laborious and the response of the players is poor.

These guys don't have the same talents as the players in FIFA, or Sensible Soccer for that matter — compare their pathetic attempts at slide tackles to see what I mean.

I'd also like to know what the hell's wrong with the computer-controlled goalies. Sure they make some irritatingly good saves, but they look like the misshapen spawn of some hideous genetic experiment?

I mean their appearance is repugnant; check the way they painfully contort their bodies as they fly through the air, while the ball mysteriously sticks to every part of their anatomy. Something's not quite right!

The sub-standard gameplay isn't boosted by any impressive cosmetics either. The graphics and sound are lousy, completely failing to provide any atmosphere during the match. You only have to think of the thunderous crowd noises in FIFA to know what can be achieved.

Okay I know I keep harping on about FIFA, but at the moment it has to be the benchmark against which other football simulations are measured.

Accolade's only other attempt at jazzing the game up comes in the form of some digitised film. This depicts Pele scoring a goal when you spank one home and the referee signalling a foul when a player is penalised. These sequences are poorly presented and swiftly become annoying , destroying what little excitement the game's generated by constantly pausing the action.

To be honest, Pelé looks, feels and plays like a donkey (perhaps the cart should be renamed Tony Adams) compared to the other brilliant sims now on the market. In the days before FIFA and Sensible, when there was a real dearth of quality footie sims for the Mega Drive, Pelé may have got away it. Today, I'm afraid, it's definitely a relegation certainty.

CM

You're off for an early bath son.

PROS

- Fairly easy to pick up and play.
- Plenty of options, including a two player game, before the match starts.
- Despite their appearance and ridiculous diving technique the computer controlled goalkeepers do keep the score down to realistic levels.

CONS

- Slow and awkward gameplay.
- Poor animation intrudes on a game that already lacks any real excitement.
- Bland sound effects and dodgy graphics.
- Bicycle kicks are virtually impossible to accomplish.

TIPS

- When attacking the opponents penalty box pass the ball around to your players feet. The goalkeeper often comes to intercept the ball, leaving you with an open net to shoot at if he misses.
- It's best to float corners into the box. This allows your players to try and direct bullet headers into the roof of the net.
- Long balls up field from your 'keeper usually land in front of the oppositions defence, allowing you to use an attacker to slide in and win the ball, before setting up a shot on goal.

D*r Robotnik's Mean Bean Machine*. Hmmm, an interesting title! What could it mean? Probably the best way to describe the plot is to quote the good doctor himself: 'Witness my evil dream to rid Mobious of music and fun forever. My latest invention, the Mean Bean-Steaming Machine will not only dispose of those fun-loving jolly beans from Beansville, but will turn them into robot slaves to fulfil my evil purpose." Yes well, that explains it all really — but where's the hedgehog?

Drop those beans, baby!

Originally released in Japan under the title Puyo Puyo, it's name was changed for the 'Western' market. I don't think it'd be too cynical to call this a piece of crass commercialism. Not even the combined might of McDonalds, Disney and Jeremy Beadle could come up with a stunt this cheap!

Sonic-mad kids will force their distraught parents to buy this purely because of the Robotnik name tag, but, I predict, it will all end in tears. For a start it's definitely not in the mould of Sega's number one star. Secondly, the kids won't ever get to play it.

The reason being Dr Robotnik's is the type of game Mum and Dad are going to love! It's a fascinating puzzle game, that's a must for any self-respecting Master System owner.

The concepts so simple, yet ,like Columns, so addictive. All you have to do is juggle the beans until four of the same colour are linked. This makes the beans disappear, with the speed depending on how many sequences of beans vanish at the same time.

The faster you work the easier it is to keep the height of your wall of beans down, while simultaneously causing problems for your opponent.

Two beans of a random colour fall from the top of the screen and it's up to you to position them strategically to create a chain reaction of beans. If you can do this, you cause some black beans to fall down into your opponents half of the screen. These prevent beans from connecting, but they can be destroyed if a set of four beans is created next to them. As soon as beans fill-up the screen it's game over!

There's several modes of play to choose from — Scenario mode, Puzzle mode, Exercise mode and the two player mode. In general you tend to use the Scenario and Two player modes. In both these the screen is split down the middle, one side is your territory and the other the opponents.

The purpose of the Scenario mode is to defeat each of Dr Robotnik's evil henchmen, and save the beans. The further into the action you get the more it hots up.

The artificial intelligence of the robots gradually gets more cunning and the beans fall faster and faster the further you progress.

This all makes for a very challenging game you won't be completing for a while. It's good fun to play, although it can get slightly repetitive after a while, and the dastardly henchman certainly know their stuff in the later stages.

The two-player mode on it's own makes the game worth getting. This is where Dr Robotnik's arguably the most fun to play, creating genuine competition between the players.

The puzzle mode pits you against some of the more unusual aspects of the game. Giant monster beans destroy whole columns of your innocent beans, while loads of other strange creatures cause a variety of weird and wonderful things to happen.

Graphically, the game is never more than average. A decent front-end gives the impression of quality, but once you start to play this bubble quickly bursts.

Blocky sprites and dull colours abound , making the game as a whole a bit drab. The same goes for the sound, with tinny renditions of the game's tunes.

Although these are obvious criticisms it's important to remember that this type of game lives or dies on it's gameplay. It's all very well looking superb, but if the puzzle's too easy or too hard the game fails.

Fortunately Dr Robotnik's has found the happy medium. True, it may not look particularly good, but the playability is excellent, making for a genuinely addictive game.

This is the type of cart even Mary Whitehouse couldn't complain about.

Dr Robotnik sends his heinous henchmen out to get a bite to eat!

This is the rogue's gallery, beat all of these guys to face the evil Robotnik.

It's non-violent, addictive and incredibly easy to play.

It's universal in it's appeal and is one of those games you come back to again and again. That's if you can prise the rest of the family from the console!

Then again it does have it's down points. The sound's nothing to shout about, the scenery doesn't ever change and it definitely doesn't push the Master System to it's limits; but, hey, at the end of the day, who gives a damn when a game's as good as this?

MP

PROS

- Addictive gameplay.
- Two play mode is genuinely competitive.
- The ever increasing difficulty curve means you can never rest on your laurels.
- Nothing in the game offends anybody, which makes a change these days, if you really care about such trivial things!

CONS

- The usual poor Master System tunes are served up.
- Chunky graphics don't really do justice to the quality of the gameplay.
- Doesn't push the machine to it's limits

TIPS

- Set up chain reactions by building the beans up until about half of the screen is full, then start to connect beans together.
Stay calm if a whole load of black beans come falling into your half as you might still have a chance to win the game.
By pulling down on the joypad when laying your beans, your points total goes up.

The Prince's humble abode awaits his return.

Through the ages there's been a host of famous princes you may have heard of. While recently there's been Prince Charles, Prince William, Prince Harry and, er, Prince! Now joining this prestigious circle's the latest star to burst onto the Mega Drive. All the way from the ancient Far East — it's the one, it's the only, it's the Prince of Persia. Yeah I know it's a weak comparison, but come on I desperately needed an intro!

Prince of Persia is one of those games that seems to have been around on almost every format under the sun for years. It first appeared on 16-bit home computers several years ago, causing quite a stir.

DoMark saw the games potential, went bananas and the multi-format releases began. The Master System, Game Boy, Game Gear, Mega-CD and SNES all had their own special versions of this 'classic', until only the Mega Drive remained to be conquered.

Now, finally, I have the Mega Drive version in front of me. What do I think of it? Well read on...

In the game, you play the part, obviously enough, of the Prince. He's madly in love with a beautiful Princess, who's very, very, VERY attractive! The only thing stopping her from marrying the young, dashing, handsome Prince is the older, fatter, bearded Sultan!

This Sultan kidnaps the Princess and locks her away in his palace, leaving you the brave and noble task of setting her free. The only question is — Are you up to it?

The first thing that strikes you when playing the game is the animation of the Prince. The programmers, using a special technique, have filmed an actor performing various different moves. By using this in the game the Prince walks, jumps and hops (yes, hops!) just like a normal, living, breathing human. This, if the truth be told, is probably the best part about the game and is the main reason it's earned such high praise in the past.

Graphically, it's an extremely good-looking game. The Dungeon walls, chains and spikes all look the part, adding considerably to the overall atmosphere. All in all the look of this cart is way above average.

On the other hand, the sound is nothing to get excited about; with a limp Arabian tune spluttering irritatingly along with the in-game action. True, there's some decent samples, but, on the whole the sound is weak. As Richard said: "It's a case of great animation, shame about the music." For once I couldn't agree with him more!

Another irritant's the game's difficulty level. Frankly it's just too hard to be enjoyable. Whenever you die you're sent straight back to the start of the level. This wouldn't be a problem on most games, but when you consider you only have three energy notches to combat a vast array of fiendish traps, it all begins to look a bit daunting.

All right, there's infinite lives until the 60 minutes run out, but that is small consolation for such an incredibly tough game. I mean, hey, I'm not saying for one second that I didn't complete it — we at SEGA XS complete all the games we play. However, 'normal' games player's find it hard — look, I did complete it, OK! (We believe you Mark, honest we do! — Ed)

Playing the game is basically a case of trial and error. Let's face it, there's little skill in getting through a level by killing yourself loads of times to find the right route.

You're limited by the level of perfection needed to overcome obstacles. Everything has to be pixel-perfect, like jumping and avoiding traps for instance, which, in the end, negates the ability to improvise.

Where's the skill in that? Well there's hardly any actually. Oh sure, a certain degree of skill is needed to get anywhere, but ,once you know how to progress past a certain point, simply repeat what you've done before to succeed. It works for me!

Despite these reservations Prince of Persia has hit written all over it. Although I expect sales to be based more on the praise gained by the animation than the actual playability.

My advice? Save your money or buy Flashback instead. It has superior graphics, the animation is a class apart and the game as a whole is more involving. Sadly, Prince of Persia is little more than a case of jumping, fighting and avoiding traps. Nuff said?

MP

This bloke's lengthy sword looks menacing!

Nice to see Police methods never change.

The Fat-Free diet seems to be working well!

PROS

- Smooth animation on the main sprite.
- Very challenging gameplay.

CONS

- Gameplay itself is old and stale.
- The in-game tunes are terrible.
- Starting back at the beginning of the level every time you die is a real pain.
- There's hardly any skill involved when playing.

TIPS

- To stand a better chance of winning at sword-fighting, let the enemy advance towards you and then, when he's in range, swing that sword!
- It's safe to lower yourself into spikes and tip-toe through them. Just don't try running, unless you fancy being the meat on a kebab!
- Try playing each level several times until you're sure of the route to the next stage. Remember you only have 60 minutes to complete the game, so, as a certain shiny domed and vertically challenged magician says; "every second counts!"

Roadrunner and Wile E Coyote are up to all their old wacky antics, as the new genre of platform chase-'yo-lunch is created by Sega for the Game Gear. Playing the annoyingly smug Roadrunner, your mission is to eat as much bird seed as possible, while avoiding the psychopathic Coyote and his Acme booby traps. It's not going to be easy, but will this cartoon caper turn out to be a new angle on an old theme or just another platform jump around?

The first thing that strikes you about Desert Speedtrap is the frantic pace the game's played at. Roadrunner (being the fastest bird in the West) simply rockets along, with Wile E Coyote having to use a specially designed Acme rocket to keep up.

It's not always best to play the game at a blistering pace. With booby traps and a whole host of other hazards to avoid, as well as bonus items and secret rooms to uncover, running at breakneck speed is a tactic littered with pitfalls.

Although speed can be used to good effect in the game, getting through safely means treading carefully, protecting your energy and collecting star icons for extra running time.

Time is tight and more than anything else beating the clock's the hardest thing to do. Most of the other hazards are found in the desert terrain itself. Watch out for obstacles such as waterfalls, scorpions, vultures and of course the desperately hungry Wile E himself! The going is tough with no room for mistakes as, even in the early levels, there are crazy Wile E traps around every corner.

The stages are vast in size and well designed, with oceans of scenery to explore. Huge open areas, followed by tight and tricky leaps across the tops of mountains, certainly keep you on your toes. It's in these high sections Roadrunner comes under the strongest of bombardments.

Wile E cruises around on his missile, shaving bird brain's butt as he passes, while vultures swoop down to gather any spare energy they can scavenge. It's vital to be alert here, one slip sends you plummeting to the bottom of the valley, having to scramble back up as valuable seconds tick away.

The directions to take are indicted by arrows on sign posts, but these can sometimes be deceptive, drawing you away from a short cut or a bonus filled secret room. Wile E isn't always as stupid as he looks!

The game contains some good features designed to help the tight time frame. For instance, restart points, indicated by piles of seed, can be pecked into operation. Other variations on the bird seed theme include extra energy and bonus points, but beware, some of the seed's been tampered with and instead of giving energy it saps it.

Limited continues are another helpful feature, restarting the action at the level you failed on. This, combined with a well-designed difficulty select, means a fare amount of practise and patience is needed to complete the game.

Visually, Desert Speedtrap is impressive. The sprite animation, on Roadrunner especially, is very similar to the cartoon. When running off the end of a cliff, Roadrunner continues running for a second, looks at you quizzically and falls to the ground below like a brick. This remains faithful to the original cartoon's animation, while also displaying the graphical qualities of the Game Gear.

Another funny interlude appears when our feathery hero comes to an abrupt stop. He recoils like a spring from his sudden lack of acceleration and, in true cartoon style, holds aloft a sign when he's out of energy which reads, "Out to Lunch".

Wile E Coyote's been well drawn, flying back and forth on his bright red Acme rocket. Unfortunately he does little else, with the option to play as the hunter rather than the hunted having been left out of the scenario. This could've added another exciting element to the gameplay, while increasing the lastability at the same time.

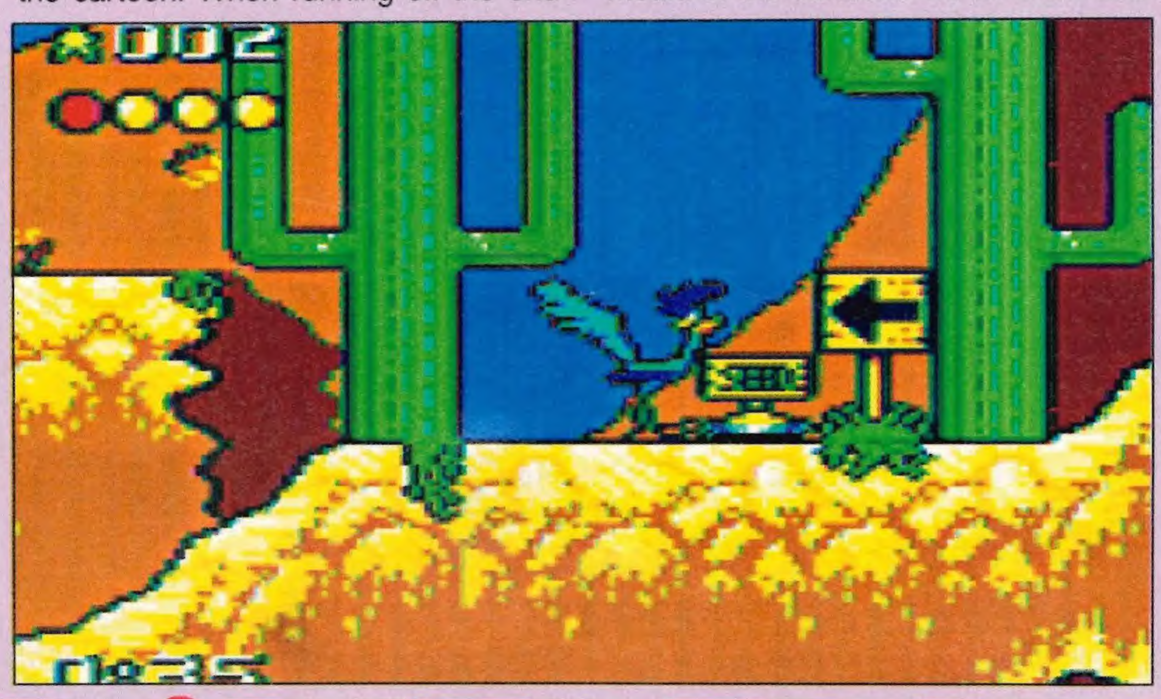

The other graphical elements are also rendered cartoon style. The desert backgrounds and the tall winding mountain faces are all there, but the cartoon feel is let down in the end by the worst rendition of the Warner Bros tune ever heard!

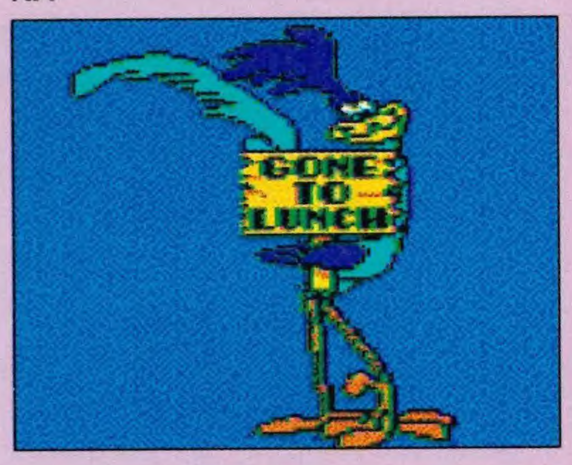

The sound effects are also not up to scratch with a very weak catch-phrase from Roadrunner. His 'Beep Beep' sounds tinny and hollow, giving the impression Roadrunner's a wimp rather then a cheeky blighter, although I suppose he does poke his tongue out!

Desert Speedtrap is essentially a good game, adding something different to the usual platform style. Unfortunately the negative hallmarks of the genre, such as short lastability and predictable play, still remain.

The playability's good and it's all fairly addictive and, for a game in the mould of the cartoons we all know and love, this can't be bad. Desert Speedtrap does the Game Gear proud, in fact there's only one comment left to make — that's all folks!

NA

PROS

- Fast and challenging gameplay.
- Well-designed sprites and colourful backgrounds.
- Plenty of secret bonus rooms.
- The bonus of a difficulty option.
- Contains a continue feature.

CONS

- Amusing cartoon-like characters.
- Despite the strong challenge the playability's limited.
- The levels are repetitive and therefore short on lastability.
- Poor and unoriginal sound.
- The Game Gear's small screen makes such a fast game incredibly hard work at times.

TIPS

- Don't simply rush through the levels as quickly as you can. Take time to explore and find extra items and bonus rooms. There's lots of secret elements to the game, including short cuts, so time must be taken to explore the terrain, rather then simply rushing to locate the level's exit.
- Collect as many star symbols possible. These count as valuable extra time, vital to completing each level.
- When racing around the level, take time to get familiar with the different sorts of bird seed available. While some seed will reward you with energy, other, booby trapped, seed will take it away.
- Experiment with the different switches and buttons dotted around the levels. These turn certain things off and on, so you need to know exactly what they do to get to the finish.

Basketball games are big business on the Mega Drive, so there's stiff competition for Hyper Dunk to match up to. The wonderful NBA Jam for instance and the much talked about new release from Accolade, Barkley: Shut up and Jam. With all these Basketball games around at the moment, or due to come out, can Konami net a winner with Hyper Dunk or will they end up Slam Dunked into oblivion?

As the introduction screen flashes at the beginning of the game, the crowd go wild and the music cranks up. A top tune — the Fresh Prince of Bel Air would be well proud of this pounding track — cranks up and booms out a mega drum riff!

This is excellent music to funk and dunk to. The sound system's pumping and I'm compelled to start up the famous SEGA XS rap. Let me tell you folks, the room's always kickin' when the raps going down!

Here's a great chance to slam dunk the ball, before your opponent can react. Go for it!

Anyway, I was gettin' funky, and generally enjoying myself, admiring the superb visuals accompanying the glam sound, when the game began. This is guaranteed to change your mood.

You're confronted by a rather bland looking court and a handful of large, bulky rugby players (Looking not dissimilar to Neil himself! -Ed) masquerading as Basketball jocks. These sprites are far too chunky for a basketball simulation and there's not a seven-foot American in sight.

To be fair, the players aren't badly drawn. In fact the multi-racial team looks good, but, because of their frame, they move slowly and look quite awkward. Compare this to the standard of sprites in NBA Jam or even Bulls And Blazers to see what I mean. The Hyper Dunk crew look pedestrian (No wonder white men can't jump!), while the other graphics, like the court and the crowd, aren't hot either.

The crowd of identical twins and social misfits mill about looking bored, while the court simply sat there (Isn't that what courts do? -Ed) in two colours looking flat and uninspired. It all needs a bit more inspiration, which, when achieved, always adds to the atmosphere of a sports sim. The crowd in EA's FIFA Soccer is a perfect example of what's achieved with a little thought.

There's some good touches, for instance the players wear hideous white-framed sports spectacles, famous in the NBA; while Photographers snap their flashes, as the players scramble around under the basket.

On the whole though, Hyper Dunk simply fails to live up to it's name visually — apart from the stylish opening. It needs to improve graphically during game-time. It clearly fails to live up to the standards set by other Basketball sims in particular, and the best sports sims in general.

Graphics aren't everything and it's often the case that games look plain but actually have wonderful playability and lastability — I immediately think of the wonderful Sensible Soccer. Unfortunately this isn't the case with Hyper Dunk.

The gameplay, though slow, is quite good. The control system makes it easy to score a basket, although the real skill comes in open play — mastering all the blocking and jumping moves, as well as reacting to numerous rebounds. The one player game suffers from being a shade too hard, although a password system does help you along the way.

As always the real fun's found in the two player head-to-heads. The competition these create more than make up for any drawbacks the graphics cause.

Statistics appear at the end of every quarter, allowing you to establish what team tactics need changing, but, on the whole, the strategy section's poor. There's plenty of ways to score but, as far as tactics go, the only advice seems to be stick it in the hoop! The fact is there's little else to the game and after a while you begin to lose interest. Although a two player battle sustains interest longer.

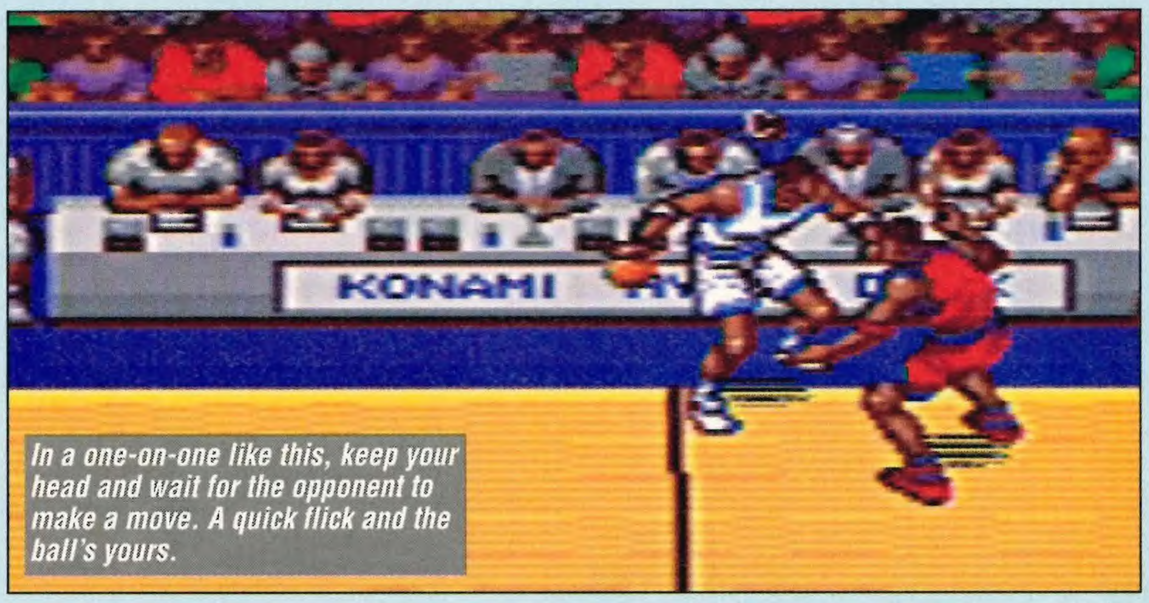

The sound effects are a high point, with the speech elements working very well. A voice-over says things like, 'In Yo Face', and 'Excellent', when scoring points and this blends nicely with the grunts and groans on court. Together with the music, these sound elements work well and give a certain atmosphere to the dull arena.

You can change the players, call Time Out and play in competitions or in exhibitions, but it's simply not as good as other games on the market. There's not enough variation for a lover of strategy, or excitement for an arcade type player. Hyper Dunk is simply playing it safe, not attempting anything different from the tried and tested scrolling sports sim formula.

If you're in the market for a basketball game, buying NBA Jam is a better bet. Hyper Dunk , while being a decent enough game, can't be taken as a serious contender when compared to the plethora of basketball sims now on the market.

MP

In a one-on-one like this, keep your head and wait for the opponent to make a move. A quick flick and the ball's yours.

PROS

- Kickin' title music and a smart introduction.
- Good speech, which is always 'In Yo Face'!
- The Multi - Player option always improves a game's lastability.
- The Password system allows you to continue an old competition.
- There's plenty of in-game options to check out.

CONS

- The sprites look a bit too bulky for the court.
- You always play in the same direction.
- The gameplay gets boring fairly quickly in one-player mode.
- Although the graphics have some nice touches, on the whole there isn't enough variation or scope, especially with the blandly coloured court.

TIPS

- It's easy to score in Hyper Dunk but the best players have to concentrate on defence. If you can stop the opponent while he's on the attack, you make the most of the time and always look more likely to win.
- The easy way to gain possession is getting goal side of the opponent and standing still, hopefully he runs into you giving you a foul situation. Alternately, leap up and down in front of the shooter blocking any shots. These tactics don't work all the time but when they do you can pick the ball up, counter-attack and dunk it.

DOCTOR M.

Greetings punters! How's life treating you? Got any new games? Are you stuck on them yet? Well don't worry, just get writing to me! I'm always ready for your letters of need and am more than willing to answer them. To contact me write to the following address : Dr M, SEGA XS, Paragon Publishing, Durham House, 124 Old ChristChurch Road, Bournemouth, Dorset BH1 1NF. My minions will ensure the most troubled souls among you receive my immediate attention. That's the introduction out of the way, now's the time to release you from this issue's torment!

DIZZY/CASTLE OF ILLUSION

I CANNOT GET INTO THE DIAMOND MINE IN DIZZY. ALSO I CAN'T KILL ANY OF THE GUARDIANS IN CASTLE OF ILLUSION! WHAT CAN I DO?

R Pemberton, Cheshire

First of all, to kill the guardians you'd better be aware each has a weak spot just waiting to be exploited. For example, the first guardian should be struck when he starts spinning, while the Chocolate Monster has a particular block which is vulnerable to attack.

Onto Dizzy, to get into the Diamond Mines simply go to the Countryside; on the far left of the screen there's a hole in the ground. Jump into it and into the Diamond Mines you fall!

Come now, surely you can provide me with more challenging problems than this. A brain as gifted as mine needs to be vigorously tested, otherwise it grows lazy. If that happens you will be the ones to suffer. You have been warned!

ECCO

IN THE DEEP WATER ZONE HOW DO YOU SPEAK TO THE ASTERITE?

Rhonda Clarke, Devon

To speak to the Asterite, hit five balls of the same colour. You're now free to speak to him to your hearts content. Although I really can't imagine anything of interest that mere mortals such as you could possibly find to say to anybody.

I on the other hand have held court throughout the length and breadth of this insignificant Planet you call home. My words have captivated Kings and held superstars spellbound. In fact … Snip. (Unfortunately the good Doctor's words became too nauseous to print at this point — Ed)

SPEEDBALL 2 (MD)

CAN YOU GIVE ME SOME TIPS ON THE MANAGER MODE?

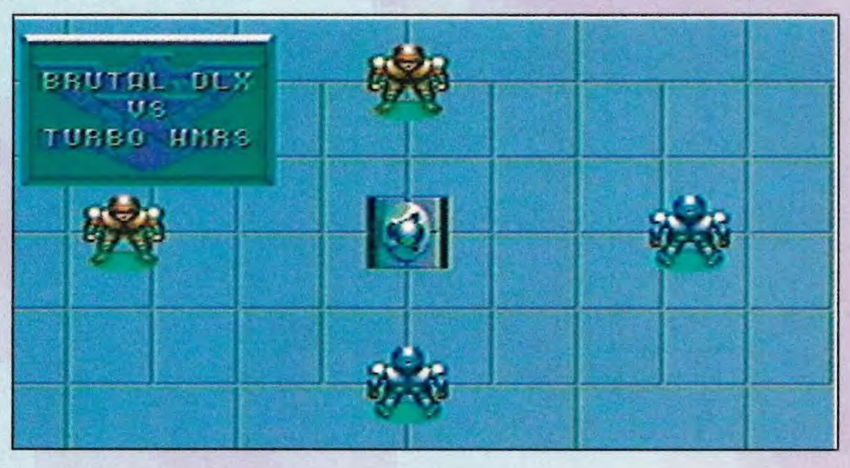

K Alsop, Hull

Can I give you some tips? Of course I can, if I feel like it, you cheeky young upstart!

Playing the part of the manager requires a logical and level-headed approach, something I suspect you lack. It's vital to concentrate on building your player's stamina up a bit to be competitive with other teams. Speed is important, as well as strength, so concentrate on building up those arms and legs.

After a few matches you should have enough money to buy a couple of star players and start winning some games. To begin with make the purchase of defenders a top priority. It may not be pretty, but it's a firm base to build the team around.

After all, as I've always believed, winning isn't the only thing it's everything. Show me a good loser and I'll happily feed the wimp to the vicious wolf pack that guards my laboratory!

ALTERED BEAST (MD)

I BOUGHT THIS SECOND-HAND, BUT SADLY DON'T HAVE A RULE BOOK. CAN YOU HELP ME?

Peter Mear, Rochdale

Well then, I presume you want to know what the joy pad buttons are and what to do in the game, eh? Ok, I'm feeling generous.

Start pauses the game, button A is for punch, B for kick and C makes your character jump. The direction pad will move you left and right.

The object of the game is to destroy any zombies, ghouls and ghosts you find by kicking and punching them. If you see any two-headed wolves, punch them and collect the crystals they release. After collecting three crystals change into a beast and prepare to face the end-of-level guardian. There are five tough levels in all, so check out our busters section for some juicy cheats. They do make life so much easier you know.

BATMAN (MD)

ARE THERE ANY CHEATS FOR THIS GAME?

Darren Hardman, Somewhere

Before answering your question Darren let me ask you something. What happened to your address? I like to know where my loyal readers come from, so try to remember the address in future please.

I don't know, standards have definitely slipped since my day. We respected our elders and betters, although that's a bit tough when the whole families immortal, as you maybe able to imagine Darren.

Anyway there's a simple answer to your question. No, I'm afraid there aren't any cheats at the time of writing, but I can give you some passwords — I know, I'm too kind for my own good sometimes.

FLASHBACK (MD)

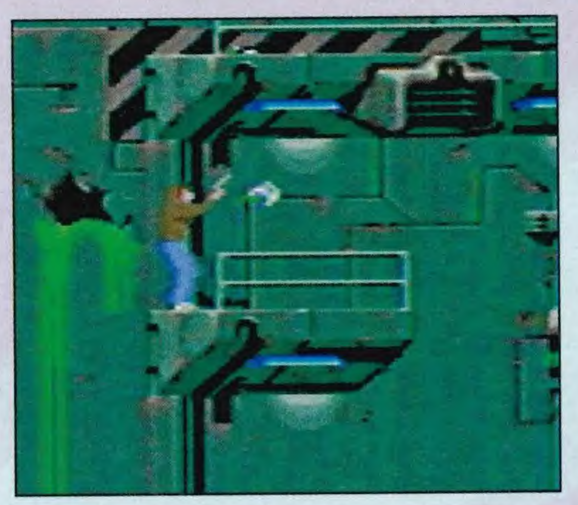

HOW DO I COMPLETE THE GAME?

Chris Chris (Alleged name)

It's sad to say this is another letter proving my point about the poor standards of today's youth. First of all, for the life of me I couldn't read your signature. If you want to see your name printed in the mag, then you should ideally print it in block capitals (my eyes aren't what they used to be, you understand).

Also, if my interpretation of your spidery scrawl is correct, and I pray to all that's holy it's not, may I suggest suing your parents. Anyone who inflicts this type of ridiculous name on a new-born baby deserves everything they get in my opinion. If you're a problem child they've no one to blame but themselves!

Anyway, to complete this cunning platformer, place the atomic charge and watch the whole place start to shake. Now run back into the corridor and through the door that was previously locked. You should now be in the spaceship room. Stand to the right of the leg strut and press up. The game is now completed and you're the envy of all your friends..

THUNDERHAWK (CD)

THE INFINITE ARMOUR/WEAPONS CODES IN BUSTERS DON'T WORK. WHY?

Mrs C Frandeual, Huddersfield

Well, let me apologise in advance for any inconvenience caused by faulty cheats. This experience has upset me greatly and once again I lay the blame at the feet of mere mortals. We get sent in many, many different codes, cheats and tips every day by our readers and we try our best to test every single one out before they get printed.

Unfortunately, even my resources are stretched to the limits by your demands. We simply can't find the time to test them all out, and so, inevitably, some bad apples do get through.

Can I just take this opportunity to tell all readers who send codes, cheats or whatever in to please check them all out before doing so? In this way we can be assured they all work.

Finally, if I ,Doctor M, discover any faulty cheats amongst all the fan mail you people send me I vow to personally boil those responsible in a vat of oil! Remember, my subterranean torture chamber awaits…

SPIDERMAN (MD)

I CAN'T GET PASS LEVEL TWO!

Peter Churchill, Herts

Any relation of Winston Peter? I bet it's the chubby cheeks and big cigars you puff that give the game away!

OK, in answer to your question, Level two is the Warehouse (if my memory serves me correctly), and this is where you must face the evils of Doc Octopus. The guards are no stronger than flies on this level, falling after a couple of hits. So they're no problem to even the weakest of players.

The dogs, on the other hand, should be avoided. Try not to get too close to the crates dotted around the level. The mutts have a nasty habit of running out from behind them and biting your legs. When all of the guards have been knocked-out, your spider-sense tells you the Doctor is near! First deal with the Fork-Lift truck driver, who's best attacked from the rear. When he dies, the 'puss enters the fray. If you can't defeat him I'm afraid you'll have to contact me again!

If evil invades your land, take away land instead of building up. Then, when they have moved, fill it in again. Doing this to drives evil off your territory.
When you gain enough manna to swamp, do so on the flat land it takes longest to get to. This should wipe out loads of evil walkers. This tactic is best employed either straight away or just before you want to claim Armageddon.Passwords

XS CODES

How we manage to cram all the codes into this section is still a mystery. Here you will find all the best codes for the Datel Action Replay and Hornby Hobbies Game Genie. No other magazine regularly prints ALL the codes you will ever need. Every code printed here can only be used with the relevent device. You CANNOT press F, F, 1, B, Ø, 4 on the joypad – just in case there were any of you still trying to get them to work. You MUST have an Action Replay, or a Game Genie, to make full use of these codes. Both devices are available from our Super Savers at the back of the magazine.
